Candidate wants politics out of job

showed interest in running for secretary of state before he decided to run for attorney general, De Zago said, even going as far as appointing a treasurer for his campaign committee.

The primary winner will most likely face incumbent Democrat Steve Six in November. Six, a former district judge, took over the job in 2008 after Paul Morrison resigned in the midst of a sex scandal involving a former colleague he had an affair with. She later accused him of sexual harassment and legal misconduct. De Zago said Six really hadn't been in office long enough for him to criticize him.

An attorney general needs to have four kinds of experience, De Zago said: working in an attorney general's office, running an office of lawyers, working in criminal law and having run an office within a larger organization. De Zago said he worked for former Attorney General Phil Kline from 2003 to 2007, served in the Army and held leadership posts from 1971 to 1975, was a trial lawyer for 28 years, serving as a prosecutor and a defense lawyer, and ran an office of 10 lawyers and a support staff for 16 years while he was the chief public defender for north-central Kansas. He is currently the city prosecutor for Junction City.

During his time in the attorney general's office, he said, he wrote opinions and defended state agencies against lawsuits. De Zago said the agency he spent the most time defending was the Department of Corrections. He said he handled thousands of cases from misdemeanors to murders during his 28 years as a trial lawyer.

De Zago said he spent the first 23 years of his life in New York City. He was an officer in the Army, serving as a platoon leader, company executive officer, company commander and staff officer in the division support command of the 1st Infantry Division. De Zago received an honorable discharge and went on to get a master's degree from Kansas State University in 1977 and a law degree from the University of Kansas in 1981.

After he finished law school, he said, he became the chief public defender for the 8th Judicial District and eventually became the chief public defender in north-central Kansas. He was in charge of state public defenders representing felony defendants in several counties, including Lincoln, Riley, Washington and Marion. This area included Salina, Manhattan, Junction City and Abilene.

A picnic is planned Saturday in Fike Park, with Big Boy's BBQ again catering the event. Bring your own lawn chairs to relax during the entertainment in the gazebo. A horseshoe tournament and sand volleyball game will be held in the park Saturday night.

Saturday night, everyone can dance to the music of King Midas and the Mufflers at the City Limits Convention Center and the Innocence at the American Legion. Both dances begin at 8 p.m. Everyone else can meet at Meadow Lake Country Club from 8 p.m. to midnight. Check out the bands at www.kingmidasband.com or www.theinnocencelive.com. Organizers say both bands are great. Wear your name tag to be admitted.

To interest runners and walkers alike, everyone is invited to participate in the Marvin Stark 5K run/walk beginning at 8 a.m. Saturday at the Community Building. It is a great way to see Colby. Prizes will be given to the top men and women finishers. Cost to participate is $15 with registration by April 15 if you want a T-shirt.

Registration packets can be picked up on between 9 a.m. and 5 p.m. Friday, June 18, in the high school commons.

Registration for the reunion will be June 18 and the cost is $50 to get into every event or participants can pay to get in at each one.

For general information and questions on all activities, go to the alumni website at www.eagle-alumni.org.

Practicing for state

JAN BARNUM
 Colby High School senior Barbara Bickner (left), sophomore Rachel Juenemann and juniors Amanda Barnum and Alex Juenemann practiced for the State Piano Festival on Tuesday. The competition is Saturday at Wichita State University. All four students qualified for state at the regional competition Feb. 6 at Fort Hays State University.
