

FREE PRESS

Thursday

March 18, 2010

Volume 121, Number 43 Serving Thomas County since 1888

City plans public hearing on Embark

The Colby City Council unanimously approved holding a public hearing to get comment from citizens on a $100,000 loan to Embark Health, the end-of-life services company now operating in Colby, from the economic development sales

The motion was made by councilmen firm held Feb. 18.

Mark Beringer and approved by the coun-Colby Free Press cil at a meeting Tuesday at City Hall. The told him how excited they were about the salaries or administrative expenses. City aheintz@nwkansas.com hearing will be at 7:30 p.m. Tuesday at the same place.

> At a council meeting March 2, Embark Chief Executive Officer Michael Brouthers asked the city to consider giving the company a loan. Brouthers said he had been encouraged by two councilmen money from the city's sales-tax fund. to ask for money to help with cash flow

Brouthers said the councilmen had being spent to refinance debt, or to pay Embark's utilities, salaries and AT&T company, which hopes to have more than 100 jobs here, coming to Colby. He said he responded that he was also excited, but his company could use some money until cash starts to flow in from customers. He said the councilmen suggested he get the

At the meeting March 2, City Manager after talking with them at a reception the Carolyn Armstrong said guidelines for the fund prohibit the sales tax money from said the money would go for paying for attorney John Gatz said since the council made the rule, it could change it.

Brouthers said council approval for the loan won't make the difference between success and failure for his firm – he is looking for more money from investors as well – but every dollar counts, and it would help him get leverage when he negotiates with large investors. Armstrong phone bills.

Brouthers asked for $250,000 at the March 2 meeting. Councilwoman Beverly Eicher suggested the city consider a loan of $100,000. At Tuesday's meeting, councilmen Dave Voss and Fred Taylor said they were concerned about making an exception to guidelines that had already been put in place.

See "EMBARK," Page 3

Fancy a race before work?

When the cat's away, the mice will play, but only for a little for his work day. He said the car will run about 30 mph for five while. Servi-Tech employee Wyatt Watson just had to try out to 10 minutes on a full tank of gas. The tank holds slightly over his new remote control car during a lull in traffic early Thursday a half cup of nitromethane, the same fuel used by full-scale morning in front of the office on Fifth Street before settling in dragsters.

Dem to testify in ethics probe

By John Hanna

Associated Press Writer

leader in the Kansas House was expected to face questions Thursday about his party's misconduct He also has said Democrats can't complaint against the chamber's Republican speaker.

Minority Leader Paul Davis, a Lawrence Democrat, was scheduled to be the first witness before a special bipartisan committee investigating Speaker Mike O'Neal, a Hutchinson Republican.

Democrats filed a complaint against O'Neal because O'Neal, an attorney, is representing businesses, trade groups and insurance funds in a lawsuit against the

O'Neal declined to comment TOPEKA - The Democratic before the committee's meeting on Thursday, but he has said he's broken no laws or ethics rules. show any instance of him influencing legislation on behalf of one of the 17 clients in the lawsuit.

But Democrats contend O'Neal has conflicts of interest because of the clients.

Davis acknowledged late Wednesday that he doesn't know Davis and five other House whether O'Neal has done anything specific as speaker to help his clients in the lawsuit. But as a

See "ETHICS," Page 3

House Republicans present budget cuts

TOPEKA (AP) - Kansas highway fund. House Republicans are proposing a 2011 state budget that would budgets by 1 percent, eliminates cut government spending and cre- all overtime unless authorized and ate more than $300 million in re- would close state offices at 3 p.m. serves, all without raising taxes. on Fridays.

The plan being outlined by GOP Senate Republicans have a leaders of the House Appropria- spending plan, too. It follows tions Committee would close the much of what Democrat Gov. state's projected budget shortfall Mark Parkinson has proposed, by not replacing federal stimulus leaving a $364 million hole to be dollars for education and borrow- filled by tax increases. ing $50 million from the state

It also cuts all other state agency

Thomas County couple named Master Farmers by K-State

By Vera Sloan

Colby Free Press vsloan@nwkansas.com

A family tradition that began in 1891 continues today with Richard and Kathy Calliham, who farm four miles west and a couple of miles south of Colby.

The Callihams will be honored Saturday when they receive the Kansas Master Farmer and Master Farm Homemaker awards for 2009 at the annual banquet in Junction City along with five other Kan-

The program is sponsored by Kansas State University Research and Extension Kathy and Richard Calliham and Kansas Farmer magazine.

The Calliham tradition started in 1891 land. when Richard's grandfather, Joseph Dawes, was born on a homestead southwest of Levant in Thomas County.

2,700 acres of mostly wheat and grain eral years to help project farm economic at his farm," Calliham joked, "but he's sorghum, with some dryland corn and sunflowers. Richard said. He and Kathy continue to make improvements to the reer in 1964 by renting 640 acres

The family has family planted two windbreaks with 1,100 trees. They have worked with the agricultural and food The Calliham farm now comprises center at Texas A&M University for sevviability by region and commodity.

The Callihams started out in their ca-

"I feel really fortunate to have been able to work with my grandparents," Richard said, "and that the land has stayed in the family.

"I remember when my grandmother, Gladys Dawes, received the Master Homemaker award in the early 1940s, which was called the Homemakers Guild, and it wasn't until 1962 that my grandfather received the Master Farmer Award."

Callihams grandmother went on to become a national winner and served as president of the national group. She went overseas to an international convention, which was a pretty big thing for those days, he said.

Calliham said he helped his son, Rich, who is the fifth generation to farm in Thomas County, to get a started. Although they do not farm together, they do share machinery and trade work sometimes.

"He gets to be the boss when we work beautiful landscaping around the farm Center west of Colby and the educational easy to get along with."

Kathy said she has been a Master Gardner for four years, and it shows in the at the Kansas State University Research See "FARMERS," Page 3 taking grant applications for the first quarter. Public and fun swim at 4 p.m. Sunday, April 11, in room

Six couples win state farm awards

Along with Richard and Kathy Calliham of rural Colby, this year's lineup to receive Master Farmer and Master Homemaker awards from Kansas State University and Kansas Farmer magazine includes:

Ball from Sterling, who also run around 300 head of livestock.

• Rooks County farmers Thomas and Ruth Ann Bigge of Stockton, who have added a few buffalo and longhorn stock to their cow-calf operation. • Mineola residents Don and Bonnie this year's awards. Irons from Ford County.

• Bourbon County farmers Kenneth and Beth Snyder from Fulton.

• Coldwater farmers Arlie and Patricia Lohrding in Comanche County, whose farm includes nearly 600 head of beef cows, 1,000 calves, breeding heif-• Rice County farmers Bill and Mona ers and yearling bulls. They also provide hunting opportunities and lodging for a lease.

> Together, K-State says, the six families farm nearly 30,000 acres. The Calliham farm dates back 119 years, the longest tradition to be represented at house. She said she enjoys helping the Master Gardeners in the county when they jointly help with the planting trial plots plot by the Extension office. She spent 30 years as a volunteer with

Briefly

County offices close for lunch

Because employees will be training for a yearlong conversion to new computer software, the County Treasurer, County Clerk and Road and Bridge offices will close for the noon hour. County Clerk Shelly Harms said these departments will continue to do business during normal hours. For information, call the clerk's office at 460-4500

Series highlights Lent season

The Thomas County Ministerial Association will sponsor another Lenten Brown Bags and Bibles program at noon each Wednesday throughout Lent with the theme, "The Prodigal Son." Speakers will be Larry Booth Wednesday and Jarrod Spencer, Church of Christ, March 31. Come to the Fellowship Hall of the First Presbyterian Church, 545 W. Fourth St. Bring your own lunch; beverage and dessert will be provided. Call 462-6342 for information.

Pizza sales to help Red Cross Hungry for pizza? Order any regularly priced menu item at Pizza Hut on Tuesday and 20 percent of the proceeds will be donated to the Northwest Kansas Red Cross. For information, call Sherry White at

Pets available for adoption

Looking for a pet? Colby Animal Clinic has one 4-month-old male chocolate-colored Chesapeake Bay retriever available for adoption. Lost or strayed animals are often brought to the clinic. Call or stop by 810 E. Fourth St. All animals have current shots,

Grant deadline March 31

The Thomas County Community Foundation is

and costs are minimal. For questions, call 460-8621.

Relations Coordinator Christina Schmid said proposals can be for any type of project, as long as it is not to benefit an individual, political activity or operating expenses. Nonprofit organizations, public agencies and religious institutions may apply. The deadline is next Wednesday. For information or applications, call (785) 460-9152.

Barbershop event March 27

The Colby Tumbleweed Barbershop Chorus will perform two shows at 3:30 and 7:30 p.m. Saturday, March 27, in the Frahm Theater at Colby Community College. The show will include the Acoustix quartet and the Prairie Rose Harmony ladies' chorus.

For information, call Tom McNutt at 462-2936.

Swim Club plans April event The Colby Swim Club will hold a parent meeting

809 of the Health Science Building at Colby Community College. The fun swim will follow at the college pool. For information, call Sondra Finley at 460-2955.

Head Start taking applications

Thomas County Head Start preschool is accepting applications for 3- and 4-year-old children. The program takes applications all year, but children must be 3 by Sept. 1 to start class in the fall. Tuition is free. To apply, call 460-6067.

