Library offers 'eggcellent' choices

This week, I am going to ask you to imagine I am filling an Easter basket with lots of titles that have a different subject matter or theme. Much like the varied colored eggs and candies that go to fill a basket, so is this week's information about materials we have in the library.

A new item is "Fit To Be Tied," by Robin Lee Hatcher. Hatcher has written another good western study to become capable to lead for her audience. As I began the book. I had to do a double take on just why I was drawn into an English aristocratic home and environment. The author is setting the stage to help us understand what cultural chaos that Sherwood Statham is about to be thrust into. American spirited and country gal, Cleo Arlington finds herself trying to mentor an English playboy into becoming a real live American cowboy. Their relationship builds in spite of their differences and struggles. You will enjoy this heart-warming book.

A second book, that I am almost finished with is "The Fourth Star: Four Generals and the Epic Struggle for the Future of the United States Army," by David Cloud and Greg Jaffe. This book discusses how George W. Casey, John Abizaid, David Patraeus, and Peter Chiarelli Jr. all moved up the ranks to become four-star gen- Israel. This book discusses how erals. What was really fascinating and why Twitter came into being.

was learning how each chose different patterns of expertise and men in war and armed conflicts. Cloud and Jaffe do an excellent job helping the reader understand how schooled and educated they are in many area beyond war and guiding the military. The authors also show how the military has been led from the Vietnam War until now. You will come to appreciate accomplishments and yet within pages be frustrated by decisions made by others. The authors explain how leadership in the military has been trying to guide the process. This book will also help you understand where and what we are doing now in Iraq and Afghanistan. The book has end notes for verification of information in the book, as well as a wonderful index.

A third book is for the techies out there. "Twitterville: How Business Can Thrive in the New Global Neighborhoods," by Shel

Burning poses health problems

April is the time of the year when large areas of Kansas' Flint Hills rangeland are burned to provide better forage for cattle and help control invasive species such as eastern red cedar and sumac.

For burns to be safe and effective, weather and rangeland conditions must be right. When these conditions are rare, many landowners conduct burns at the same

The caption for the "Flight of the Eagles" photo on Page 1 of the Friday, Mar. 19, Colby Free Press, incorrectly identified the event. It was Food For Thought. This was a reporting error.

Mid-March through the end of time. Air pollutants from the burns can affect persons in the Flint Hills and can be carried long distances.

If you are healthy, you're usually not at a major risk from shortterm exposures to smoke. It can aggravate chronic heart and lung diseases.

Older adults and children are at highest risk. It is important to limit exposure to smoke.

Mary Lee was one of five leaders starting the Thomas County Day Care Center and its first Chairman. For many years she was Chairman of the State Wild Flower Committee, selecting and recommending to the Governor the Wild Flower of the year.
