The air just seemed to be especially clean, and the Alps were so beautiful," he said.

They also visited St. Mark's Cathedral in Venice, Italy, the home of the entombed body of Mark, one of Jesus' Apostles.

When the Voyager International tour ended, Keck and McNinch joined 50 to 60 other students who chose to remain in Europe for a four-day side trip to Greece.

"They were actually having a riot," McNinch said, "and they were protesting something about their debt, or bailouts, or something. We saw fires many blocks from our hotel." "Greece was the best part of the trip," Keck said, "and I would do it again in a heartbeat. I'm making plans to visit there again after I finish college."

He said he always felt safe in

'We really had great sponsors," he added.

Keck enjoyed swimming in the Aegean sea, and although he got a good impression of the teenagers there, he thought they dressed a little crazy, with wild Greece was a trip highlight for McNinch as well. He mentioned the Parthenon, the enduring symbol of ancient Greece which overlooks Athens. It was built as a gift to the people of Greece. performing in front of 10,000 people, although I'd like that," he said, "I can be just as happy leading 10 kids in a youth group around a camp fire. I'm a big fan of world music and I love audience participation."

McNinch said he wants to do something that other people can enjoy too. He added that he comes from a Christian background, and believes God has opened many doors for him. He credits his parents, Steve and Debbie McNinch of Colby, for his Christian upbringing, their support and encouragement.

"They're the best," he said. He will enter Greenville College this month in Greenville, Ill., a Christian college with a liberal arts curriculum. Greenville is on I-70 about 45 miles from St. Louis. He will be leaving Colby this week to continue the pursuit of his lifelong dream of music performance.

Keck, the son of Phil and Alana Keck of Colby isn't sure yet where he'll attend college when it's time, but for now will concentrate on being a junior this year at Colby High School.
