the group has more than a half a million members nationwide.

“The National FFA Organization is dedicated to making a positive difference in the lives of students by developing their potential for premier leadership, personal growth and career success through agricultural education,” Harter said. “Being a member of the Colby High FFA allows our members to learn more about agriculture around us by being involved in the community and the agriculture industry.”

Harter said that the club is involved throughout the year. This spring, members plan a restoration project at a park and in the summer, they plan to tend a garden and donate the produce to Genesis-Thomas County.

The members, she said, are looking forward to the breakfast and to activities planned for Friday, too. Students will be encouraged to dress as farmers for the day and some will drive a tractor to school. Then from 1 to 3 p.m. members will have a petting zoo at the grade school.

This year’s chapter comprises 21 members, she said, seven seniors, three juniors, eight sophomores and three freshman. Other officers are Dustin Burleigh, vice president; Chelsie Calliham, secretary; Haileigh Shull, treasurer and reporter; Jennifer Schwanke, historian; and Tom Rundel, chapter sponsor.

Advice from a dummy

KATHRYN BALLARD/Colby Free Press

A crash-test dummy demonstrated how to buckle a seat-belt to students at Sacred Heart School Wednesday morning. The theme of the presentation was ‘Don’t be a chicken, be a rooster and sit in your booster.’

Session aim to help grandparents

fect how an infant’s brain develops, and many of those are a direct result of personal relationships and the kind of care kids get.

“The best way to help young children grow into curious, confident, able learners is to give them warm consistent care, so they can form secure attachments to those who care for them,” she said. “...knowing when they need comfort rather than stimulation, or vice versa, is important...”

She said the support of grandparents and others to encourage young parents can be vital.

“No experience is more important than the early care and nurturing that a young infant receives,” she said. “When infants are held, cuddled and touched in soothing ways, they tend to thrive.

Warm, responsive care promotes healthy brain development.”

Ostmeyer said she will be discussing a new way of understanding a healthy baby’s cry, something they do a lot in their first five months.

“The period of PURPLE ... crying explains what is normal and what you can expect when your baby cries,” she said, adding that she’ll cover the peak of crying, unexpected crying, resistance to soothing, pained-like faces when crying, long-lasting cries and evening crying.

Campbell said she’ll talk about how the foundation for a strong family is built on a protective framework of parental resilience, social connections, support in times of need, and knowledge of parenting and child development and social and emotional competence of children.
