DEBBIE SCHWANKE/ Colby Community College

Dr. Richard Mosier met with a group of Colby residents in February 2010 while writing his book "Against All Odds." Those attending the luncheon were instrumental during the formation and early years of Colby Community College. First president to sign books on community college history

A piece of history will be added to the shelves of the H.F. Davis Memorial Library on Friday, April 13. Dr. Richard Mosier, the first president of Colby Community College, will be signing his recently published book "Against All Odds" beginning at 3 p.m. on Friday, April 13, in the library.
 The book is a history of the college including the triumphs and tragedies in its infancy. Tara Schroer, library director, is host of the book signing.
 "We are pleased and proud to have Dr. Mosier back on the CCC campus and the library for this event," said Schroer. "His book chronicles how CCC came to be and highlights the hard work and perseverance of many community members to make this college what it is today."
 Mosier served as the chief executive officer of the college from 1966 to 1972. Primary sources for the writing of the book were minutes of the Board of Trustees for the period, articles that appeared in the Prairie Drummer, Oberlin Times-Herald, the Colby Free Press Tribune, personal recollections and accounts, and Mosier's own memory of events and happenings during his presidency.

 Following his tenure at Colby, Mosier served as president of Claremore Junior College, Claremore Okla., and its successor institution, Rogers State College, for nearly 24 years. He was inducted into the Oklahoma Higher Education Hall of Fame in October 1996 in recognition of his outstanding achievement and meritorious service to higher education in Oklahoma. Upon his retirement, he was designated President Emeritus at both Rogers State University, the successor institution to Rogers State and Colby Community College.
 Mosier will be available to sign books, and copies of the book will be available for purchase at that time. For information, contact Schroer at 460-5487.

'Purple up' for military families on April 13

Kansas State University fans typically have purple in their wardrobe. In recent years, it's also become a fashion color, yet many who choose it may not realize its military significance.
 In the U.S., the color purple combines Army green, Coast Guard and Air Force blues, Marine red and Navy blue, said Ann Domsch, who is urging all Kansans to wear purple on Friday, April 13, to show their support for military families, and, particularly, for children with one or more parents deployed.
 Domsch, a retired K-State Research and Extension agent, currently serves as Kansas'

Project Coordinator for Operation Military Kids, which is part of a national effort to support military families.
 "Purple Up! For Military Kids," said Domsch, who urges individuals and communities to don purple, and:
 • Encourage area schools, youth and community groups to join you in wearing purple to show their support.
 • Encourage local businesses to encourage their employees and representatives to wear purple, and, where sales are made, to offer a discount to patrons or customers wearing purple to support military youth and families.

• Invite family, friends, co-workers, and others – parents and teachers, neighbors; 4-H, Scout, Boys' and Girls' Clubs, and families involved in other youth organizations are examples – to join you in supporting military families.
 While the current push for a show of support is April 13, Domsch noted that military families need support throughout the year. For information, and more about how you can help, contact Domsch at (785) 532-5833 or adomsch@ksu.edu.
