Jumper went on to say that he has heard the company in Salina is known for picking through the good metal and leaving the waste behind. The waste can become a hazard and can become infested with vermin that make a home in the metal piles, he said, and that could draw a violation for the county.

He said this is how they are able to offer such a good deal, because they don't bother with the metal they can't sell or that causes them more work.

"So, the last time it was bid out was 16 years ago," said commissioner Byron Sowers, "but the thing that concerns me is that we are a public agency."

Commissioner Paul Steele agreed, saying: "We'll be criticized if we reject a request to bid." After the vote, commissioners told Jumper to prepare documentation for bid requirements and specific guidelines that need to be met for potential metal crushing companies to follow. In other business:

•The county received two sealed bids for a T500 motor grader at the landfill. Sowers Farms offered $777.77, but the grader will be sold to DJM Transport LLC., which offered $3,500.

• Two offers were made on a pickup at the landfill with about 240,000 miles on it. Rose Trucking offered $300, but it will be sold to Wagoner and Sons for $500.

act on the item on Monday after looking at Oneok's information.

• Commissioners discussed employees with Blue Cross Blue Shield representative Charles Krull. Nothing was decided. The item will be discussed again at 11 a.m. next Monday.

• The county clerk's office provided a printout of the ambulance fund which showed the county budgeted $215,000 for revenue, but they now project about $50,000 more that could potentially pay for an additional paramedic. The budget will need to be republished in November, said Clerk Shelly Harms.

• Daniel Blake of Options, a domestic and sexual violence crisis intervention service serving northwest Kansas, talked about a 2013 county donation. Christiansen said the county donated $1,000 to the organization last year and an additional $1,000 was donated from the $40,000. $1,500 will be donated Diversion Fund at the request of to the 2012 Youth Outdoor Skills He said he could offer the County Attorney Kevin Berens.

Steele questioned some of

From a worksheet provided, the shelter cost per day for a victim is $571 and the cost to maintain a crisis line for women to call is $459.

Blake said that last year, the county's insurance plan for 27 domestic violence victims and six sexual assault victims received services in Thomas County. He said that in 2011, a total of 528 victims were served and to date in 2012, the agency has served 171.

"That's 171 too many," said Christiansen.

· Virginia Hopper gave an update on the Silver Haired Legislature, saying the program recently had a district meeting and members developed three ideas for bills this year. The most promising one, she said, will hopefully lead to creation of more adult day care centers to keep people out of nursing homes.

• County Attorney Berens received approval to make two donations from the Diversion Fund, which currently has about Day and $1,000 to Options.

court judge ordered that the prairie dogs, in lieu of being exterminated, be contained with a 90-foot vegetative barrier around the complex. Another district court judge, this time in Logan County, upheld the decision. A restraining order was issued against the use of aluminum phosphide to exterminate the prairie dogs.

Nearby landowners have claimed damages due to the prairie dogs, but the judges ruled that the county had not been able to show "reasonable probability of irreparable future harm."

According to the brief, one of the main issues of the case is whether or not the Kansas law requiring prairie dog eradication is trumped by the federal Endangered Species Act.

The Kansas law, K.S.A. 80-1201, says "The township board of any township in this state, at any regular or special meeting, is hereby authorized to purchase material and to employ one or more suitable persons to destroy prairie dogs, moles and gophers within the limits of such township, any material so purchased and compensation for such services to be paid out of the general 2010. On Nov. 24, Hildyard appealed the fund of such township." Many townships have abdicated authority to county commissions, however. Agreements between the Haverfields, Barnhardt and Fish and Wildlife make any entire proceedings, and his opinion simply his license. The board found for him, howelimination of prairie dogs the sole responsibility of the landowners. level. Logan County was not a party to these agreements.

The landowners say there is an irreconcilable conflict between the two laws, that the district court did not have jurisdiction over a federal program and that the defendant, the Logan County Commissioners, did not demonstrate that irreparable harm could be caused by the prairie dogs spilling over into nearby lands.

The defendants are arguing that the district court's injunction should be overturned and asks that they be allowed to continue extermination of the prairie dogs.

Hildyard v. Citizens Medical Center

The second area case involves a decadelong dispute between Dr. Hildyard and Citizens. The hospital had moved for dismissal, but the judge went ahead with the case. Citizens claimed to be immune from the antitrust claims because its actions came from a decision by peer review boards, which are protected from legal claims. The hospital also took the position that bylaws do not constitute a contract, something that is expressly stated in the bylaws themselves.

Senior District Court Judge Jack Burr found in favor of the hospital on Nov. 5, decision.

Hildyard's attorney, Michael O'Neal of Hutchinson, who now is speaker of the Kansas House of Representatives, said after the decision that the case had always been destined for the appeals court, because both parties intended to appeal if the case didn't go their way.

O'Neal speculated that the case could even end up in the state Supreme Court.

At the time of the district court decision, O'Neal said it could take up to a year to get a decision on appeals. The process to get it to a hearing has taken nearly 18 months.

The case stems from an incident in 2002, where the hospital summarily suspended Hildyard's privileges after the hospital got a written complaint about his behavior. The complaint alleged that Hildyard had acted in a disruptive manner and used "offensive, profane, inappropriate or derogatory language" in front of patients.

Hildyard filed a lawsuit in the district court, which ordered that Hildyard be allowed a peer review hearing. The peer group review found Hildyard did engage in the disruptive conduct. Hildyard disputed the group's findings and filed the current lawsuit.

The dispute also reached the Kansas Board of Healing Arts, which at one point
