

Learning about hunting

SAM DIETER/Colby Free Press

Brock O'Brien (center) learned how a hunter is expected to pass a gun under a landowner's fence during the Youth Outdoor Skills Day Saturday morning, while his sister Cosette (floral cap) watched. Kansas hunter education coordinator Kent Barrett (far right) taught the map-reading and orienteering stage of the event, which started 8 a.m. Saturday on the Pat Jones property northeast of town.

Ex-president's lawyers to dispute report

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Attorneys for ousted Penn State President Graham Spanier planned today to dispute allegations he covered up reported child sex abuse involving convicted former assistant football coach Jerry Sandusky.

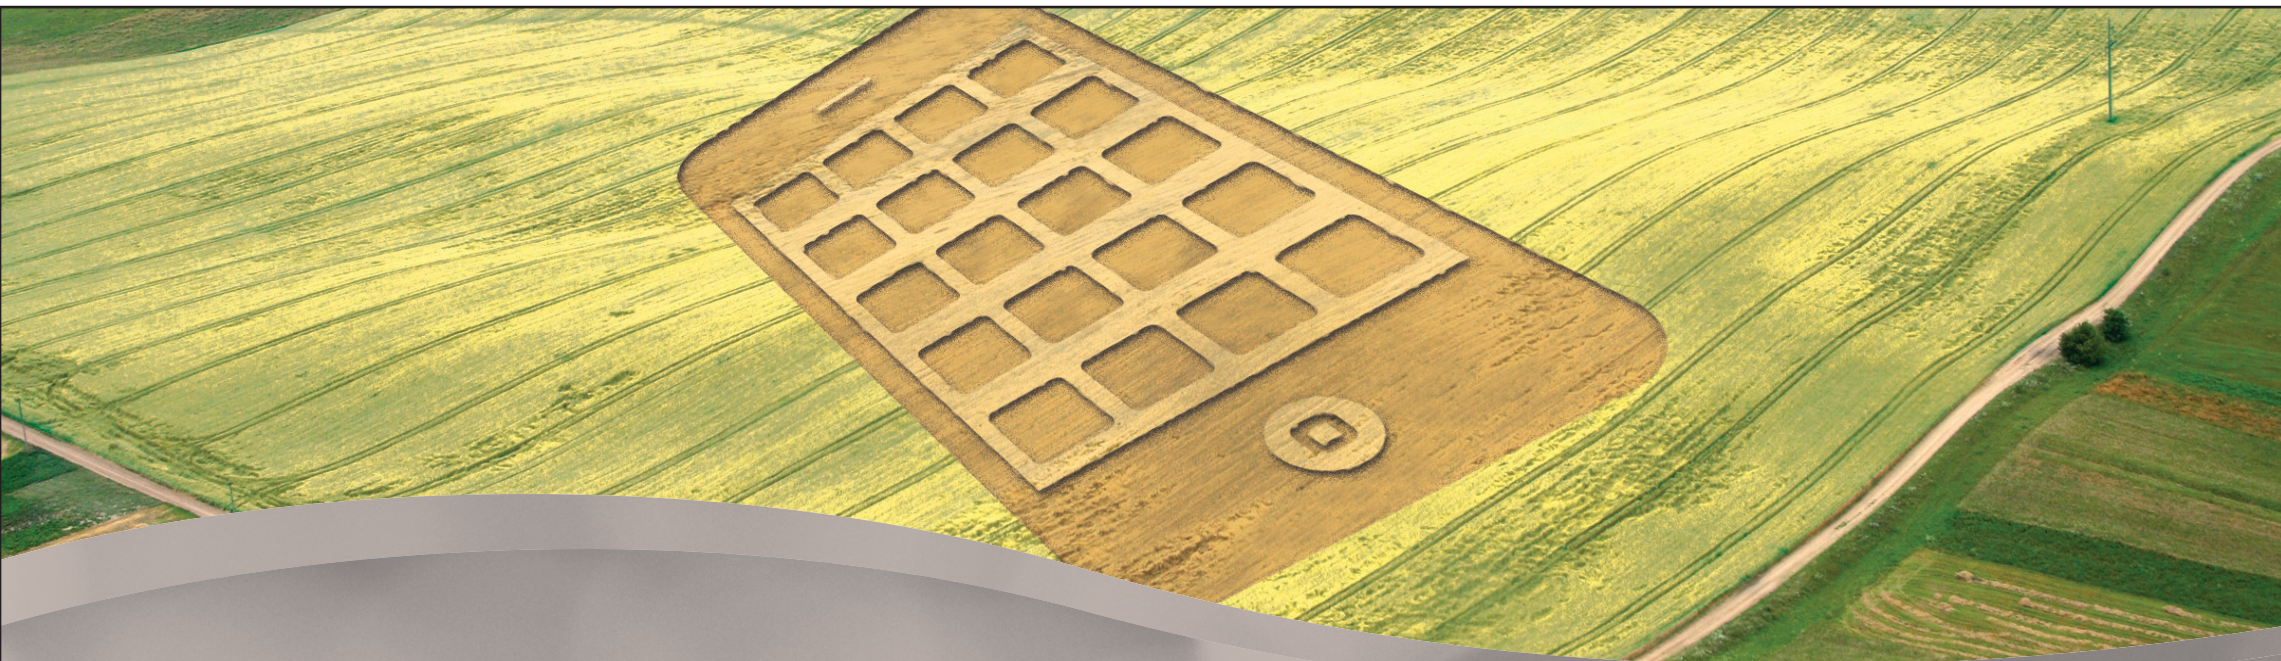

Spanier's lawyers scheduled a news conference in Philadelphia to discuss the university-funded investigation by former FBI director Louis Freeh. Spanier will not be in attendance.

Freeh's report alleges Spanier and late coach Joe Paterno participated in a cover-up to spare the school bad publicity. Spanier and Paterno were fired in November, a few days after Sandusky was charged.

Two other university officials accused of covering up Sandusky's abuse are charged with perjury and failing to report suspected child abuse. Spanier has not been charged.

Sandusky is awaiting sentencing on 45 criminal counts involving 10 victims, some of whom were abused in locker room showers on campus.
