transportation hub and a retail that may require action by Conpost office.

In an effort to stem billions of dollars in losses, the Postal Service is closing more than 100 processing facilities by July. The service had been looking at consolidating North Platte to Cheyenne, Wyo., but that study was halted last February when officials found there was no room at the Wyoming plant. The service instead decided to send Colby to North Platte.

The processing changes will gress. The service announced earlier in February that it plans to stop delivering and collecting letters, including first-class mail, on Saturdays beginning Aug. 5. Packages will be delivered, however. Post offices that are currently open Saturdays will remain open, and mail to post office boxes will be delivered. mail from Alliance, Neb., and save the service $2 billion a year.

The service has been asking save about $1.2 billion a year, for several years to get rid of Sperry said, and the service has Saturday delivery. Since 2006, its eye on several other changes it has been required by law to prepay retiree health benefits, which cost about $5.5 billion a year.

"We are asking Congress to resolve that," Sperry said. "We will still pay retiree benefits, but we're asking Congress to make it more manageable."

Though the service plans to go ahead and cut Saturday delivery. Congress has yet to act on either issue, he noted. A postal reform That change is expected to bill died in the last Congress and no action has been taken this year to get the effort going.
