

Finest on display

Colby High dances night away

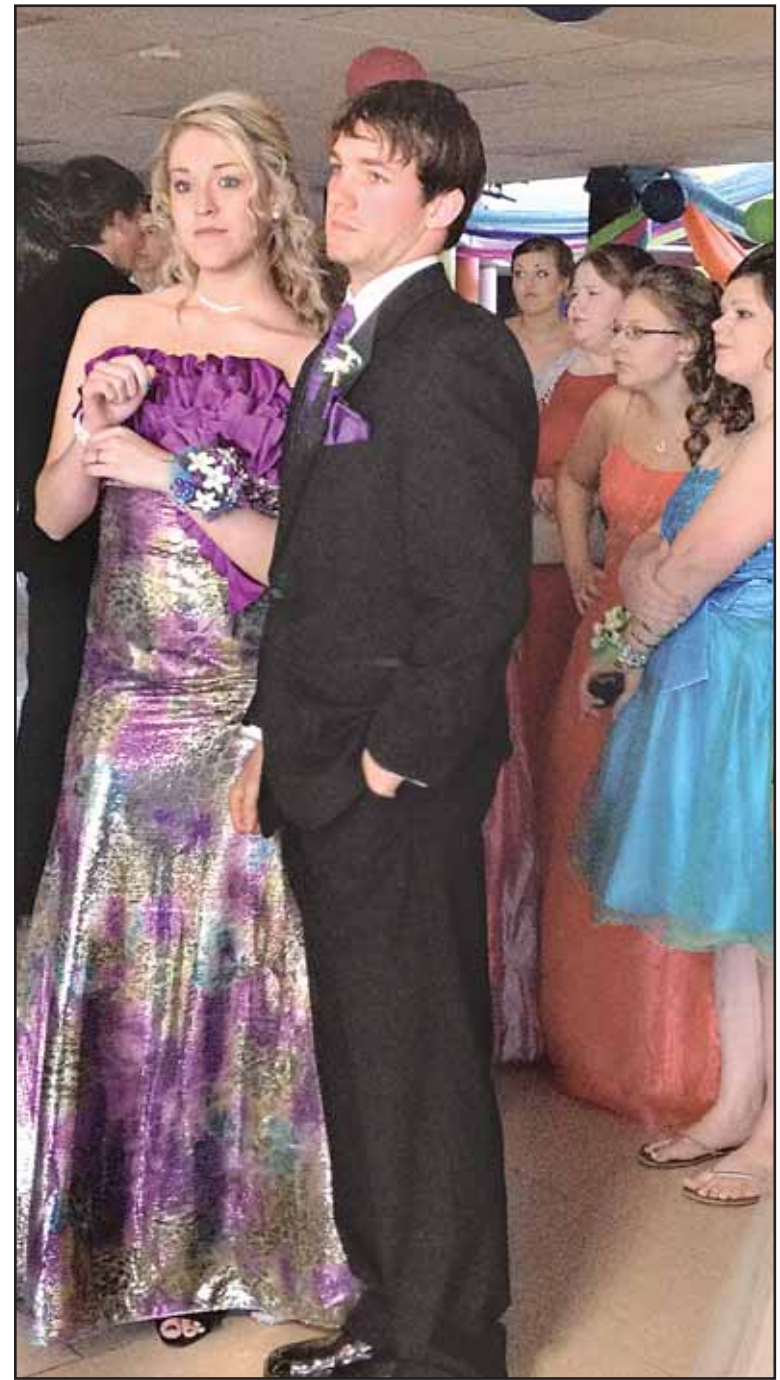

About 120 Colby High School seniors and their guests celebrated the end of their high school years at prom, held Saturday at the school. Karly Kriss (above) stepped out of her grandfather's car, assisted by Brad Wildeman, one of the coaches serving as parking valets.

Nichelle Armbruster and Drew Meissner (right) had just walked into prom and waited their turn to proceed into the gym, where promgoers gathered for dinner (below right). The theme of evening was "The Night of Neon."

Earlier, Aaron Luckert (below left) helped Kortney Bredemeier out of Steve Vaughn's big pickup. Cars lined up to drop off seniors and guests for the promenade, which began the evening.

One group (below) arrived in a horse-drawn wagon driven by Nolan Brott and owned by him and his wife Lacey: Marc Bremenkamp and Karly Shull, and Dustin Burleigh and Haileigh Shull.

Photos and story by Heather Alwin/Colby Free Press

