How far this mud bogger went was anyone's guess during another recent Northwest Kansas Mud Bog competitions. The dirty fun comes to Colby Saturday night beginning at 6 p.m.

Colby's biggest mud hole has become more of an attraction than even the best Northwest Kansas Mud Bog fans expected.

"We were thinking about 20 coming in (to compete) but it looks like we're going to be closer to 30," Mud Bog enthusiast and organizer Nathan Armbruster revealed Wednesday afternoon. "If we're lucky, we might even get 40."

Anyone can jump into this mud bog competition Saturday night at the Thomas County Fairgrounds.

All drivers need is a $50 entry fee, legally signed waiver and good strong truck or similar vehicle to power through the bog.

Whoever can drive the farthest and fastest earns prize money. There will be two pits going simultaneously, and each driver will get a chance to go through both pits.

Average time and distance for the two runs will determine winners. Prizes along with trophies will be awarded to the top four placers in each of four divisions:

Stock Class, Super Stock, Modifieds and Open.

"And of course, there's bragging rights. For a lot of these drivers, bragging rights seems to almost as big as the prize money," Mud Bog spokesperson and organizer Tina Harris said.

Armbruster mentioned two or three rivals and several other top drivers who will be competing on Saturday. He recently earned a big mud bog victory in Cheyenne Wells, Colo.

Colby will be hosting its first mud bog in five years, Armbruster said.

"We only had about two-and-a-half weeks of preparation, but people have really worked together to get it ready," he added. "The hole was dug on Monday. We'll start adding the water on Saturday and get it all mixed up. Hopefully, a lot of people will come out and support it."

General admission prices are $10 for adults and $5 for children under age 12.

Besides powerful vehicles and intense effort, crazy moments can occur during a mud bog. Armbruster has witnessed trucks flip over in the mud on more than one occasion.

He recently broke the gear box in his steering column, which caused his truck to jump a concrete barrier and push it about two feet backwards.

"I was laughing up a storm," Armbruster said.

However, those moments also mean there are some safety guidelines for each mud bog class.

Open division requires all drivers and passers have Department of Transportation-approved helmets. Fire suits are also recommended, though non D.O.T.-approved tires are permitted.

Stock Class, Super Stocks and Modifieds all must have D.O.T.-approved tires with no cutting or grooving. Stock Class features tires up to 34" high, Super Stocks 35 to 38" and Modifieds have tires 39" or higher.

Another fun feature of Mud Bogs is that every driver can bring a passenger, brave or otherwise. Armbruster's wife usually rides along during his competition, though his daughter also "enjoyed" this opportunity recently.

All entries must be made by 4 p.m. on Saturday. A driver's meeting follows at 5 p.m.

Sluggers split with Outlaws

Matt Barnum pitched three scoreless innings and added one huge late hit to help the Colby Sluggers salvage a doubleheader split at Goodland Wednesday night.

Goodland dealt the Sluggers a rare zone defeat, 9-3, in game one before nearly pulling off the sweep.

"We trailed until the seventh inning of the second game," coach Jared Hamilton said. "I guess it was kind of a hangover effect from a rough tournament (at Hays) last weekend."

Colby finished 0-3 in Hays and needed to rest some pitching against Goodland. So Barnum stepped up to keep the Outlaws close until Luke Cox's walk started a three-run Colby seventh inning.

Caleb Mazanec's single scored Cox for the 5-5 tie, and Jake

The Colby Sluggers and Goodland Outlaws both earned a win during their doubleheader at Goodland Wednesday evening. Game two was about as close as this Colby baserunner and Goodland infielder pictured at the Levi Hayden Tournament.

Thompson's grounder moved an RBI-single for the 7-5 margin. Colby ahead. Barnum then ripped Colby's now 11-9 this season.

Season leaders rule Saturday

Season leaders showed they're ruling Thomas County Speedway this season with two more victories Saturday evening.

Clay Money brought a six-point lead into the holiday weekend, and he won another Sport Mods main event.

His closest challengers were Josh Appel and Gage Coen with Coen ranking ninth among Sports Mods season leaders.

Alex West owned a narrow one-point lead over Rocky Baalmann entering Saturday. West won again while Baalmann was not able to finish in their latest Econos class showdown.

However, the other classes featured some shake-up. Jeff Tubbs was running in a fourth-place tie, but he took first Saturday evening ahead of season leader Jason Rogers.

Matt Morris, running fifth in the tough Modifieds division, won Saturday's skirmish over Todd Schwarz and Darren DeLoach. Points leader Michael Wadel finished fifth.

Tyrel Smith took home the Hobby Stocks title while trying to break into this season's top 10.

Yankee returns to play Royals

NEW YORK (AP) — The Captain is back.

New York Yankees shortstop Derek Jeter, who had missed the first 91 games of the season with a fractured left ankle, returned to the lineup Thursday afternoon against the Kansas City Royals.

Batting second as the club's designated hitter, Jeter reached on an infield single in his first at-bat deflected off a Royal.
