Recruiting new students

DEBBIE SCHWANKE/Colby Community College
Colby Community College Admissions Counselor Brandon McLemore talked with Sharon Springs students Lea Rupp and Cassidy Gentry at the College Planning Conference Thursday in the Student Union. Representatives from two- and four-year colleges and universities as well as technical schools and military recruiters set up tables to provide information for potential students. Over 37 area schools and approximately 400 high school students attended the annual event.

Fort Hays State University offers campus visit to students

Fort Hays State University invites high school junior and seniors and college transfer students to attend Tiger Day on Saturday, Nov. 9.

"Tiger Day provides you with an excellent opportunity to attain important information regarding academic majors, scholarships, financial aid, student life, athletics, co-curricular activities and more," says the admission office website at www.fhsu.edu/admissions/tiger-day.

Registration begins at 8:15 a.m.

The welcome will start at 9:30 a.m. in the Beach/Schmidt Performing Arts Center in Sheridan Hall. Admissions staff will have a presentation concerning scholarships, tuition, deadlines and a checklist of what students need to do.

Students will then have an opportunity to visit the academic departments they are interested in as a major from 11 to 11:45 a.m.

Current students will be available to answer any questions prospective students may have at 11:45 a.m.

The day will end with a tour around campus and the residential halls at 12:30 p.m.

Information and registration is available at www.fhsu.edu/admissions/tiger-day. The deadline to register is Saturday, Nov. 2.

Center plans two tours to see cranes

The Kansas Wetlands Education Center, in association with Fort Hays State University, will hold free crane driving tours in the Cheyenne Bottoms wetland starting at 5:30 p.m. Sunday and Tuesday, Oct. 27 and 29.

Visitors have the opportunity to see the annual migration of the sandhill crane, but also the endangered whooping crane, one of the most striking birds in North America. "The sight and sound of tens of thousands of cranes coming into the marsh to roost overnight is an unforgettable experience," says Curtis Wolf, site manager of the Wetlands Education Center.

The tours are in conjunction with the Shafer Memorial Art Gallery's Choreography of Cranes Art Show, running through Oct. 31. To reserve a seat or for information, call the center at (877) 243-9268. Seats are limited.

Participants will be notified of any cancellation.

Man enter plea agreement after hunting deer at Walmart

INDIANA, Pa. (AP) — A western Pennsylvania hunter who shot a deer in a crowded Walmart parking lot on the first day of hunting season last year will have his record expunged after six months' probation without incident.

The Pittsburgh Tribune-Review (bit.ly/19WBf8Y) reports 40-year-old Arcangelo Bianco Jr. was accepted into a first offenders' program last Friday. The program doesn't require a guilty plea, but Bianco must also pay $1,080 in court costs and probation fees.

An employee of the Walmart told police that Bianco sped in his pickup and fired a handgun near the store's cargo loading area. He fired another shot as the deer ran across a U.S. Route 22, and two more as it fell in a woman's yard.
