Ramp closing on hold

Construction has been delayed again on the west Goodland exit as the contractor and the Kansas Department of Transportation wait for the forecast to improve. According to Eric Oelschlager of the department, the forecast for nearly a week of showers prompted the contractor to delay the closing of the westbound ramps at K-27. While waiting for the weather, however, Koss Construction crews were out today setting up two concrete paving machines (above) to have them ready. A new closing date should be announced later this week, Oelschlager said. With work nearly completed on the outside walls (right) of the weight room addition to Max Jones Fieldhouse, the workers are now setting the doors and corners for the inside walls. Work progresses (below) on Market Street, which runs behind Wal-Mart, and when completed, will provide a second access to the Centennial Park area. The City of Goodland is buying asphalt milling from the I-70 project to surface the roadbed.

Said another classmate, Jason Greer, "They are jerks. They are really strange, but I've never seen them do anything violent." At the adjacent Clement Park, students were shaking and crying as parents wandered about, looking for their children.

Lutters chosen as mayor

City commission names member to serve this term By Tom Betz

Goodland Daily News Newly elected city commissioners Curtis Hurd and Tom Rohr and reelected commissioner Jim Mull were sworn in Monday night, then the commission proceeded to choose a new mayor. When nominations were opened.

Mull nominated Commissioner Chuck Lutters, and it was seconded by Hurd. With no other nominations, the vote was taken and Lutters was elected. Outgoing Mayor Rick Billinger and Lutters changed seats and Lutters called for nominations for mayor pro tem. Commissioner Billinger nominated Mull, and it was seconded by Rohr. The vote was unanimous. Once the reorganization was completed and the new mayor and mayor pro tem were sworn in by City Clerk Mary Volk, the commission turned to a lengthy agenda.

Amy Griffey, economic development coordinator for the Northwest Kansas Planning and Development Commission, told the commission that housing rehabilitation program regulations require that anytime a city employee wants to apply for money, a public hearing must be held to give an opportunity for comments on any possible conflict of interest.

A hearing was held because Dustin Bedore, a city employee, is requesting money to assist in the demolition of a structure at 524 E Ninth. There were no objections, and Commissioner Mull said, "I think it is good he wants to clean up another spot in the to install two anhydrous ammonia tanks near the elevator. The matter had been tabled, and when Cowan was reached by phone last night, he asked that the city cancel the request.

Pickman said the city staff had gathered some information on the request and were told by the Kansas Department of Health and Environment there were no regulations dealing with the temporary fertilizer mixing process Collingwood has been using, but permanent installation does require the city commission's approval.

'When we asked why there were no regulations on the temporary process, no one at the state level had a good answer," Pickman said.

Commissioner Hurd said he thought the city should consider passing an ordinance that would impose more stringent guidelines on operation of chemical facilities within the city.

"I think the whole chemical business should not be inside the city in the first place, and we need to look at this before the next leak," Hurd said.

"I have considered myself the 'resident tree hugger' and feel a thoughtful examination of this should be done," Mull said. "I think it will have to be a careful investigation because we don't want to shut down any of our businesses, but we need to have a means of protecting our wells and our citizens."

Billinger said he had talked to a state inspector in Hoxie who said when the fertilizer mixing is being done, there should not be any ammonia odor, and the said he should be called if an odor is detected

National Volunteer Appreciation Week will be celebrated with a reception to honor Sherman County volunteers at 7:30 p.m. Thursday at the Our Lady of Perpetual Help Catholic Church family

Anyone who has done any kind of volunteer work is invited to come and be thanked.

"It's the community's way of bringing a little brightness into the lives of its volunteers," said Natalie McCarty, head of the Community Volunteer Appreciation Committee.

The theme for the second annual celebration is

'You Do Brighten Lives." The committee's intention, since there are so many organizations with volunteer help, is to come focus on certain ones. So the reception is an effort to do just that.

"It is amazing the contributions that volunteers make to Sherman County," said McCarty and Roberta Bretz of the Community Volunteer Appreciation Committee. "More than 2,000 volunteer positions were filled by Sherman County residents last year.'

Last year, some 107 volunteers from organizations throughout the county attended. The committee has sent out 1,000 invitations and is planning for 200-250 people for this year's celebration.

The evening's agenda includes a short program, with entertainment by Jane Boys of Goodland and a presentation highlighting organizations that have volunteers. Refreshments will be served and door

Many volunteers have donated their time and help to organize this appreciation reception. Other Community Volunteer Appreciation Committee members include Jo Simmons, Carolyn Mc-Mahon, Willie Mannebach, Bill Hartzler, Cris Lovington, Stephanie Nemechek, Charlotte Linsner, T-Shane Roberts and Dick Straubinger.

The City of Goodland granted a request for $500 to help pay for the event, but with donations by individuals and businesses, the committee didn't think they would need to use much of the city

Next year, they thought they would request equal amounts from the city and the county.
