City worker Neal Thornburg stood by with a shovel as Randy Quast of Schlosser Concrete poured blow fill into the hole in front of the Sherman Theatre at Twelfth and Main. City crews found four leaks in a water line once the hole was opened and drained Tuesday. With the blow fill, which is a mixture of sand water and a half sack of concrete, there should not be any settling. The city crew replaced the brick surface Wednesday.

student of the week

Name: Jason Showalter
Parents: Scott and Shelly Showalter
Grade: Senior
Age: 18
We've nominated this student because: Jason has done outstanding work assuming a leadership role as a drum major for the high school marching band. He has spent many extra hours last spring and throughout the summer learning and becoming knowledgeable about basic marching, music, and rehearsal techniques. His work with the band has been absolutely first-rate and excellent. He has done everything we have asked him to do and has come up with additional creative ways of his own to motivate, inspire, and focus the band.

Student Comment: My favorite aspect is the people. Between my friends and the teachers, they make GHS a great place to be. My favorite subject would have to be American Government.

Activities involved in at school: FCCLA, SADD, Track, G-Club, Band, Yearbook, NHS, and Basketball.

My choice of movies, books, and games : My favorite movie is Rudy. I like any songs that have a beat you can dance to. My favorite books are mystery.

After I leave Goodland High School I intend to ....: go to college at KSU and major in Law or Criminal Justice.

And 10 years from now, I think I'll be ....: happily married with a steady job in a large city.

Favorite Quote: "It's not what happens to you, it's how you react to it."

Useless facts: A Saudi Arabian woman can get a divorce if her husband doesn't give her coffee. (Don't get excited here ladies, he can also kill her or have her killed for very trivial matters and so I bet she doesn't divorce him over the coffee.)

Shantel Jensen of St. Francis stopped in to see me. It was nice to see her, as I haven't seen her in over a year. She had gone out to lunch and spent the afternoon with her grandparents, Pete and Betty Jensen.

They did a little shopping and then spent the rest of the afternoon looking through picture albums. Shantel told me her grandma had a picture of her dad, Luther, and mother, Karen. It was their wedding picture. As far as she knew it was the only one in existence in the family. She said she would love to have it. (Shantel's mom, Karen, died earlier this year.)

She told of how she loves pictures and never throws any away. It was cute, as she said she even keeps the blurry ones. This made me think of all the pictures that are passed on in families and how after awhile so many are not wanted anymore because people don't know who they are.

I have a picture of a cousin of mine who died many years ago. It was a favorite cousin. My mother gave this picture to me a couple of years ago. She said, "You know, there is no one left to give it to."

When Shantel brought up the fact of her parent's wedding picture, I started thinking of this picture I have. No one in my immediate family (my children) knew him. So, what will become of it? I guess it will be thrown away some day. So all these old picture albums we hang onto for whatever reason and hardly ever look at, I guess when we find a family member who really wants one of them, we should give it to them. Why not? Who knows where the pictures will go when we die?

Things my mother taught me: My mother taught me to appreciate a job well done: "If you're going to kill each other, do it outside. I just finished cleaning!" My mother taught me religion: "You better pray that will come out of the carpet." My mother taught me about time travel: "If you don't straighten up, I'm going to knock you into the middle of next week!"

Remember to keep saving those pop tabs for the Grant Homemakers Social Club. Give them to any member. The Kanorado members are Gert Swayne, Darlene Kirby, Nila Boese and Luella Richardson. Members from Goodland are Shirley Boll, Bonnie Daily and Vera Daise. Pop tabs can also be delivered to the Denver Ronald McDonald House at 1000 E. 16th Ave., Denver, Colo. 80218.

They are then taken to a recycling center. In-state or out-of-state groups can also recycle the tabs themselves and send the proceeds to the Ronald McDonald House. So keep "pull'n" folks!

Once more I purchased groceries through netgrocer.com. I am getting better at this shopping online thing. They sent me an e-mail of the specials they have. So for purchasing $75 worth, I received $20 off plus eight free rolls of paper towels. The postage on this was $6.99. FedEx brings it right to your door.

The guy delivering it was really interested, as he said he was delivering more and more of this dot com all the time. I told him the prices weren't any different and they had sales, also.

Plus, it seems the more you shop, the more special offers you get. Like I mentioned earlier. You know folks, I was thinking about this and all this Internet stuff is new. They want you to shop from them so therefore you will receive some free things, discounts, etc.

Maybe this is the time to order, as it is new. One of these days it will be all "old hat" and like everything else, you won't get these offers and freebies. I for one hate to grocery shop. Because none of it is done till they are all put away. Plus where I live it's always 15 or 20 miles away.

There definitely are more online grocers, but so far this is the only one I have tried. The last time I ordered they had those specialty breads like you find at stores made by the Earth Grain people. A loaf will run you from $2.37 to $2.67 each. Netgrocer had them on sale for $1.37 a loaf. Yes, they were fresh, and it took three days for the items I ordered to be delivered to my door.

This time they sent me a magnetic grocery pad to write out my lists. Hey, it was a nice pad, not skimpy at all. Plus, the one neat thing about getting on these online grocers is that if there is something you cannot get here, you might get it there or you can try something different.

It's fun, and it could be a welcome thing for some people who cannot get out to shop for one reason or another. So try it! I think you will get the hang of it in no time. And it's definitely more comfortable! Just wait till you start buying clothes and you can make up a model of yourself! Now that will be a scream.

Just curious: Why do they sterilize needles for lethal injections?
