Geologists seeking to vent gas bubble in Hutchinson

HUTCHINSON (AP) — A day after crews sealed a leaking natural gas storage cavern, geologists grappled Monday with how to vent a massive gas bubble still spewing through geysers that have erupted in the city.

Drilling was under way on two of the four deep vent wells planned around town, even as state environmental regulators debated whether to uncap some of the 150 to 300 abandoned wells here in an effort to speed the release of trapped gas.

Kansans checking out turbines for energy

Kanorado Correspondent Useless facts: While almost everyone knows that Neil Armstrong was the first man to walk on the moon, few know that Gene Cernan was the last man on the moon

Well, maybe all is not lost yet on these energy bills folks. The only problem is when will all this happen-probably after we are all broke-groan. But it has been said that Kansans are looking to turbines to capture the wind's energy. According to the National Renewable Energy Laboratory in Colorado, only North Dakota and Texas have the potential to generate more wind energy than Kansas. ACalifornia company is possibly going to put 70 wind turbines in Kiowa County. Also the Dodge City school district is hoping to put one in to help with the expenses. The Olathe school district plans to put in a 132-foot tower to monitor wind speed and direction at its sports activity center. Then they will decide from this tower if there is enough wind to make a turbine realis-

Edna Bishop came into the Little Butterfly Café the other day showing off one of her Christmas presents she received this year from a relative. If was a cute little stuffed bear which was full skirted and the skirt contained several little pockets that could hold all kinds of goodies. For instance, it would hold silverware (if you took your bear on a picnic or just to the dinner table) or it could be used for sewing notions. Whatever might catch your fancy. Our little café is still going strong and catering the good ole homemade meals and goodies everyone likes. It has a nice homey atmosphere all can enjoy. You feel comfortable bringing in things and showing them to all and chatting along the way.

Paradox of our age: These are days of two incomes, but more divorce, of fancier houses, but broken homes.

Someone said the other day that winter is now one third over. This is great news for all of us who can't wait to get in that yard and garden. But if you just have an itch, now is a good time to prune some of your trees. Get after those limbs that are weak, dead or rubbing on each other.

Throw kitty litter on that ice or use sand. You can use fertilizer too, but never more than a handful or so. This is safer for your grass and other plant roots than salt. If you think the snow may break down a favorite bush, use a broom and knock it off gently, starting at the bottom and going up, and try not to break any frozen branches. And just soon.
