Sunflower growers shift focus

BISMARCK, N.D. (AP) — Sunflower farmers are turning to Taiwan and other areas in the Far East to bolster exports after efforts to recapture the Iranian market fizzled, officials

The National Sunflower Association began pursuing the Iranian market after the Clinton administration lifted sanctions on exports of food and medicine to the nation in 1999.

planned to visit the United States last fall couldn't get clearance from the U.S. State Department, said John Sandbakken, international marketing director for the association.

Now the focus has shifted to the Far East, he said.

Taiwan "has been one of our fastest-growing markets for sunflower oil.' Sandbakken said. "Our image in Taiwan is excellent ... What we're trying to do is expand the market." Argentina took a stranglehold on the Iranian sunflower oil market after Islamic militants stormed the U.S. Embassy in Iran in 1979 and the United States began a trade embargo against the country. Iran imports about 160,000 metric But an Iranian trade delegation that tons of sunflower oil each year —

Kansans wilting under triple-digit heat

How hot has it been in Kansas? So hot that sometimes, even a swimming pool is no refuge from the wilting heat. Consistent days of 100-degree temperatures — and even higher heat indexes — have trimmed attendance at Wichita's 12 public swimming pools by 25 to 50 percent, prompting the pools to close early some days.

"After a point, it gets so hot that people don't even want to go swimming," said Craig Nelson, the city's aquatics supervisor. "They don't even want to go outside."

The National Weather Service issued a heat advisory for most of cenenter the queen contest. Out-of-town Franklin, Goodland and Connie traland eastern Kansas through today,

At least two people have died this year from heat-related illness in Kansas, though state health officials have refused to identify the victims or say when and where they died.

Mike Akulow, a meteorologist with the National Weather Service in Topeka, said there's nothing unusual about the heat wave.

"It's Kansas and pretty much the summertime here," he said. "It's not record heat. It's above normal, but it's not record?
