today in history

Aug. 7, 1901 TOLD IN A LINE: “None shall wear a feather but he who has killed a Turk” was an old Hungarian saying and the number of feathers in his cap indicated how many Turks the man had killed. Hence the origin of the saying with reference to a feather in one’s cap.

Deadhead, as denoting one who has free entrance to places of amusement comes from Pompeii, where the checks for free admission were small ivory death’s heads. From The Goodland Republic/Information provided by The Sherman County Historical Society.

Park fund raising continues

bike trail around the lagoon. Later, the city asked people what they wanted in the park and came up with a list that was nearly twice what was in the project fund, $200,000 from the state and $100,000 in city money. City officials said it could take years to get enough money to finish all the plans.

Tromble, chairman of the Pioneer Park Advisory Board, agreed to lead a fund-raising effort. He and his volunteers would raise the extra money it would take to build the park. They were given a deadline to raise the money by late fall, when the plans are to be turned in for approval by the transportation department in Topeka.

In April, a thermometer was erected at the city office downtown to measure how much money has been raised for the project, and fund raising efforts have been going on since. Production and finance committees have been making phone calls to ask for gifts of money, donated items or labor and they have a booth at the county fair for donations.

Mr. Tromble said all of their work is paying off, so to speak, as interest grows in the project.

“Interest in the project is growing,” he said. “We have had good response, but we still need some major gifts. Any gifts would be appreciated.”

If anyone wants to donate items to the project, he has a list of things they need, ranging in price from $2,000 on up. He said anyone interested in helping can contact him or stop by the booth at the fair.

Meeting had its tense moments

Later, Scott Schrolller, manager of Wal-Mart, represented the Chamber of Commerce in asking permission to put up banners to promote the city and make it look better. While he had the floor, Norman Zogg got up to accuse Pickman of giving himself a $300,000 a year raise when he became the city manager.

The city manager can’t authorize his own raise, Pickman said; only the commission can do that. (Pickman’s salary is $59,112, including his retirement plan, city records show.)

Schrolller asked Zogg to let him finish his presentation while he had the floor.

“I waited for you earlier,” Schrolller said, “and now I’d like the same respect from you.”

During the commissioners’ reports, Blume said he appreciated the comments people made and encouraged people to be more aware of what is going on. It is more helpful, he said, to speak up before a project is done than to complain afterward.
