Mother Nature chills us for the holidays

Brrrr! It has gotten really cold. The last time I was outside the wind had a real bite to it. I looked at my outdoor thermometer on the north side of the house and it was showing 30 degrees. I even closed the north storm window and the window itself.

As I work on this, there is the noise of wind outside my window and I’ll bet it’s even colder yet. We were wondering when the cold would come. It’s here, folks.

The holiday week is going to be a week of colder temperatures than what we’ve been having. I surely hope the weather doesn’t put a damper on holiday travel, but you never know when or how fast it will change. In spite of the fact we desperately need moisture, it would have been nice if the warm weather would have stayed like it has been, at least for a few more days. One can’t play with Mother Nature, as the commercial states. Oh well, what will be will be.

Neighbor Lillian Thornburg got home late Saturday evening from a week vacation in California with son Larry and family. She was one tuckered-out lady Sunday morning. She and I shared a lunch that I had made for myself. Seems I can’t cook for just one but always have enough for a second person. Happy to share with her and glad she got home before the weather got yukky.

Oct. 23 saw Freda House, Gary and Laramie Farris, visiting Florence Farris. She spent some time visiting Alvis, carol, and Fay Galden on the 24th. Sherrie and J.J. Farris treated her to a bouquet of flowers.

After lunch at the Wheatridge center with Inez Bennet and Freda House, her evening visitors were Scott, Aziz, and Bart Martin. On Saturday, she took in the Christian Church soup (chili) and pie noon luncheon. She spent some time visiting with friend who were also there for the meal.

Weekend visitors were her family, Sherri, J.J., Ricky, Danny and Laramie Farris.

Tuesday Oct. 30, her niece, Betty Kear of Salina, visited both her mother Helen Jones and Florence before going on to Tribune to visit a daughter Kimberlie and family. She had 30 little trick-or-treaters on Halloween night, a thing she really enjoyed.

Friday and Saturday visitors were Betty Parker, Patrick Farris, and Ricky and J.J. Farris.

Friday Nov. 3 was a busy day for her and her fellow apartment residents, Berniece Peters, Cynthia Strnad, and Inez Bennet, as these four ladies attended a cake and coffee at the Center. Other visitors that day were her family members. Lunch was shared with her son Gary at noon, ending the day with a visit to Barbara and Richard Caldwell.

She finished that week by visiting with Barbara Lovelace, Jo Mann, and Connie Collins while shopping. Grandson Patrick Farris visited her during the day and ended the day with supper on the town with Gary, Nancy and Laramie Farris.

The week of Nov. 5 started with her going to Edson to help do some painting on the post office building. When J.J. returned from his Cub Scout meeting after school, he, his mom Sherrie, and Florence had a meal and a visit to a fast food restaurant. On Nov. 6, she and Inez Bennet attended a musical activity at the Center. The music got the two ladies in a mood to try a few dance steps. She reminded me of the front that moved through on Wednesday evening following a nice day and bringing a small amount of snow for the first time this season.

The monthly meeting of the Edson Social Club has a Thanksgiving dinner at the Fellowship Hall across the street east of the hospital. All but one of their members attended. The hostess, Roselda McKendrick, and co-hostess, Marsha Sieck, had prepared and served the delicious dinner.

She and Esther Splattstoesser were Friday dinner guests of Inez Bennet.

Saturday Nov. 10 was a busy one again. At noon, she and Inez Bennet had lunch at the Episcopal Church’s annual chicken noodle dinner. Following their tour they took in the 50th wedding anniversary celebration of Eldon and Dorothy Palmer. She ended the day enjoying Danny’s birthday cake with his family, Gary, Nancy and Laramie Farris.

Gary Peters of Denver arrived to spend the weekend with his mother, Berniece Peters.

Her visitors the 11th were her niece Joy Haynes and family of Omaha, who were visiting several relatives, among them her Aunt Florence, grandmother Helen Jones, and sister Kim and family in Tribune. She, Brad, and family had come to visit Brad’s folks and were on their way to Joes, Colorado. Her visitors, both afternoon and evening were the Gray Farris family. The day was ended with a meal of dine-in pizza.
