

Jayvee wrestles twice

Goodland's junior varsity wrestling team participated in a varsity dual tournament in Hoisington this weekend and faced the Colby Eagles in a dual meet on Tuesday.

Coach Randy Bahe said the Hoisington tournament on Saturday was difficult for the Cowboys because they were competing against varsity wrestlers. None of the wrestlers placed, he said, but it was a valuable experience.

"I know they realize now what they need to do to compete at the varsity level," the coach said.

Individual results include Chad Normandin, 103, 0-4; Brock Whitmore, 112, 1-3; Andy Farris, 119, 1-3; Dusty King, 125, 2-3; Malcom White, 130, 1-2; Blake Saint, 135, 2-3; Chance Schilling, couldn't compete because of illness; Michael Middleton, 145, 1-3; Brandon Cowen, 152, 1-2; Brian Imel, 160, 0-4; and Adrian Hernandez, 171, 0-4.

The Cowboys fared better against the Eagles, with seven wrestlers beating their opponents, six by fall. White, Hernandez; Landon West, 189; Schilling; Middleton; and Brett Jarmin, 160, all won with a fall. Cowen beat his opponent by a 14-6 decision.

Normandin lost by an 8-4 decision; Whitmore by 7-3; King by fall; Farris by fall; White by fall in his first match; Max Saint, 135, by a 9-4 decision; Imel by fall; and Ray Brigham, 103, by fall.

Kansas not counting out Buffaloes

LAWRENCE, Kan. (AP) - Twenty-five games against Colorado, 25 wins for Kansas. So why aren't the No. 2 Jayhawks looking past Saturday's rematch at Allen Fieldhouse?

"They have tremendous balance," said Kansas coach Roy Williams. "They have all the ingredients of a great basketball team. They have played very well against us."

But there's no mistaking the math: Kansas (18-2, 7-0 Big 12) has won 25 straight against Colorado and is fresh off a rout at home over rival No. 22 Missouri. Colorado is 12-6 overall, 3-4 in the conference, and lost to the Jayhawks 97-85 Jan. 5 in Boulder.

This matchup, however, has become a minor rivalry in the conference, with the teams trading hard play with some off-the-court sideshows. Colorado coach Ricardo Patton accused Williams of negative recruiting during a Big 12 coaches meeting last summer. Patton contended Williams wrote a letter to Colorado recruit David Harrison, now a Buffaloes standout, and urged him to sign a national letter of intent with Vanderbilt or North Carolina instead of Colorado.

Williams denied writing the letter. Jayhawks players say they aren't worrying about the emergence of bad blood between the teams.

"It is part of the game, people are going to look for things to say to try to get back at us," said sophomore forward Bryant Nash. "It is something we have to blow off."

Ex-Shocker named Legend head coach

By Doug Stephens
The Goodland Daily News

A former Wichita State and NBA player was named the head coach of the Dodge City Legend Saturday.

Cliff Levingston, a hall-of-famer at Wichita State University and a two-time NBA champion with the Chicago Bulls, was the assistant coach of the team last year. Kent Davidson, the former manager, now coaches the Roanoke Dazzle of the NBA's developmental league.

"It was important to keep the head coaching position in the Legend family," said Tom Nelson, Legend general manager. "Cliff was on our radar screen before last season when we thought Kent would not be able to come back."

"It seems like all roads lead back to Kansas," Levingston said. "I started on my quest to make it to the pro ranks as a player in Kansas, and now I start my pro coaching career in Kansas."

Levingston had his number retired by the Shockers, and spent 11 years in the NBA. He was a reserve player for the 1991-92 championship Bulls teams.

He was drafted by and played two seasons with the Detroit Pistons, six seasons with the Atlanta Hawks, two for the Bulls, and finished his NBA career with the Denver Nuggets.

Levingston says he would like to use this position as a springboard to coaching in the NBA.

He faces tough competition this year. NBA legend Kareem Abdul-Jabbar has reportedly agreed to coach a rival team, the Oklahoma Storm.

The Legend are part of the 15-year-old United States Basketball League, a minor league professional league.

They joined the league in 2000, and won the championship their first year, and second place the next.

They play in the traditional off-season, and Nelson says a lot of high-level CBA and NBA developmental league players play for them.

They use NBA rules and he says the quality of the play is probably better than the CBA.

The team makes Dodge City, with a population of just over 21,000, the smallest pro sports market in the country, Nelson said. It is also the only pro sports team in western Kansas.

There are 11 teams in the league, from as far away as Brooklyn and Florida. Kansas has two teams, the Legend and the Kansas Cagerz, based in Salina. The cross-state rivals will play in a televised match Saturday, May 4 on NBC.

The season opens for the Legend on April 20 in St. Joseph, Mo.

Basketball teams face two-game weekend

The junior varsity and varsity basketball teams have another busy weekend ahead of them.

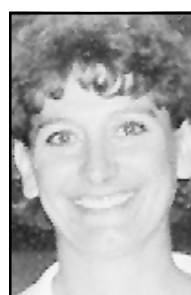

They travel today to St. Francis to play the Indians. The girls varsity and boys junior varsity play at 5:30 p.m. Mountain Time, and the boys varsity and girls junior varsity play afterwards, about 7 p.m.

On Saturday, they host the Hays Indians at Max Jones Fieldhouse. The girls varsity and boys junior varsity play at 5 p.m., and the boys varsity and girls junior varsity play after.

The boys varsity have a record of 5-8, including the past 1-1 weekend. They face the 5-10 St. Francis Indians, which also just came off a win-one, loose-one weekend. Hays is 8-5, and plays Garden City tonight.

The Cowgirls are 9-4. The St. Francis girls are 6-9, and have lost their last two games. The Hays girls are 9-4 and will warm up for the Cowgirls by playing Garden City tonight.

The St. Francis Lady Indians have played sort of like we have, up one game and down the next," girls' coach Connie Livengood said. "We expect a good game."

Livengood said she is looking forward to the Hays game.

"They are always a good team," she said. "This will be good competition."

The Cowgirls freshman team will travel to Atwood on Saturday to take on the Buffaloes at 9 a.m. Mountain Time. The boys' "C" team will take a break from playing this weekend.

The championship round of a "C" team basketball tournament in Goodland on Thursday was canceled because of snow. The boys and girls teams were both going to play for the top spot. The games are being rescheduled, but a date hasn't been set.

A junior varsity tournament in Colby on Thursday was also canceled and will not be rescheduled. The boys and girls junior varsity teams were set to play in the championship round.
