Ten pulled uninjured from lake

JUNCTION CITY (AP) — Six adults and four children were rescued uninjured after their boat capsized on Milford Lake in northeast Kansas, authorities said.

Geary County Sheriff Jim Jensen said the odds were slim that all 10 people would escape uninjured in Tuesday night's accident, apparently caused by overcrowding on the boat. Everyone aboard had a life jacket.

The boat overturned about one-half mile from shore, near Junction City. More than two hours later, one person reached the shore and summoned help.

Neighbors should check on elderly

Dear Plain Sense: In recent months my elderly neighbors have become very reclusive. Their children live several states away, thus rarely visit. I'm concerned but don't want to be intrusive. Any suggestions?

Dropping in to share a fresh batch of cookies or passing on the daily newspaper or recent magazines can give you an opportunity to check on them without being obvious.

Other family members may be unaware of the elderly couple's situation. There are several signs and behaviors that might indicate abuse, neglect or exploitation in the elderly, some of which will be more obvious than others:

- Unsanitary living conditions or lack of electricity, heat, water or refrigeration.
- Bruises, burns, fractures, swelling and untreated injuries. Prolonged intervals between injury and treatment, frequent changes in doctors, or inconsistent explanations of injuries should also be considered as possible signs of abuse or neglect.
- Sudden weight loss or gain, dehydration or malnutrition or inappropriate or inadequate clothing.
- Over-medication, medicines not clearly marked, outdated medication, or similar medicines prescribed by several doctors.

• plain sense

- Sudden changes in behavior such as an unwillingness to talk or unjustified fear or suspicion.
- Failure to pay bills or uncertainty about income and expenses.

If you do notice valid reasons to be concerned, offer them your assistance in contacting someone to help. The local Area Agency on Aging can also assist you in determining the level of need and can become directly involved when necessary.
