Columnist busy on Labor Day weekend

One week of September is about half over. The Labor Day weekend was a busy one, at least for me.

I had some things to do for the Beynons at their residence, had my church work to do on Friday and Saturday, had to help my neighbors on a couple of things, needed to mow my lawn after Mike got it started for me, got my September center reports ready for mailing, attended Virgiline Amos's birthday bash and just had some general house needs in spite of not feeling well with a sore back and ankle.

By Tuesday morning, things had calmed down, and I went back to the center as usual. A few from the center are out due to medical problems. Among them. Anne Mann is in swing bed, and Roselyn Clair is in Hays to determine what her main problem might be. I hope these ladies will be up and about before too long.

I didn't make it to the canyon. I had talked to Aaron, and he wasn't quite done with his work on the property, so I didn't venture back with my back as

Hopefully all will be done when I go back later in September for my niece Cathy and John's wedding. I will take Ruth Morton has been a very happy

The son, Darin Sloan, rented a car in Denver to get to Goodland. Ruth told him he needed to cruise Main and show off this cute little yellow car. She told me what it was, but my memory fails me. He's returned to his home, but she has some good memories of his short visit here with her.

This rain certainly has made a difference in the appearance of the lawns. The water restrictions have been lifted, but the only difference for me will be the time I start to water in the mornings, a lot earlier than 6 a.m. It appeared to me the water pressure was better at an earlier hour, but I changed to abide by The way my week went, I didn't
