Museum to display news, dolls

“FLASH! The Associated Press Covers the World,” an exhibit of over 130 photographs, and “Dolls: A Part of Me,” a display of sculptures, reproductions and a private doll collection, will be on display side by side from Dec. 13 through Feb. 23 at the Dane G. Hansen Museum in Logan.

The museum is open from 8-11 a.m. and noon-3 p.m. Monday through Friday, from 8-11 a.m. and noon-4 p.m. Saturday and from noon-4 Sunday and holidays but is closed on Thanksgiving, Christmas and New Years Day. The museum is handicapped accessible, and there is no admission fee.

The Associated Press exhibit commemorates the organization’s 150th anniversary in 1998.

When history happens, the news organization is there. Every hour, every minute, in every time zone, in every corner of the world, the Associated Press has chronicled events that changed the fabric of life for over 150 years.

The exhibit includes many of the organization’s best photos, both black and white and color, including many Pulitzer Prize winners. The Newseum in Arlington, Va., organized the exhibit for the Associated Press. With the assistance of Smith Kramer Inc., a fine art service company in Kansas City, Mo., the exhibition will travel to 15 museums across the United States in the next three years.

Carol Bales, a nationally acclaimed artist from Logan, will have her original sculptures, reproductions and private doll collection on display at the museum side by side with the Associated Press display.

She began reproducing dolls in 1981 and has since been awarded several of the highest honors: including “Best of Show” on her original sculptures competing in Anaheim, Calif., and Denver.

Bales has been featured in “Doll Crafters” magazine for several dolls, including an old Apache squaw, “Bufalo Woman.”

Through the years, Bales has won so many awards that her home and shop are now full of trophy winners. She has never sold an award-winning doll and keeps the ribbons, trophies, silver platters and other forms of recognition with the winner.

While she reproduced porcelain dolls for many years using another artist’s mold, her creativity, skill with a paintbrush and excellence in clothing design and construction gave the dolls her own winning look.

Bales later pursued sculpting and has several originals to her credit, including a postman, a Victorian lady, an organ grinder, an Indian Chief, a Pueblo woman named LaRanchetta, the old Apache squaw and a near life-sized Apache girl.

Bales’ 200 dolls include collections of nuns, Shirley Temples, the Jan Hagara “Carol” collection, John Wayne, Cinderella and 24 antique China head dolls, including the rare brown-eyed China head dating back to the mid-1800s.

John and Berneda Voss of rural Logan are Bales’ parents. She was raised in the Logan area, then in Colorado for many years before returning to Logan nine years ago.

Bales is the mother of three, the owner and operator of a quaint French coffee shop called “Carol Louise,” located in downtown Logan. She is on the Dane G. Hansen Foundation and the Dane G. Hansen Trust boards.

A Denver man who was towing a pickup with his pickup was headed west on I-70 last Friday when he lost control of the truck and slid into the median, hitting a sign and causing the towed vehicle to flip over.

Margarito Ramos, 30, was driving his Chevrolet pickup about 10 miles east of Goodland at 1 a.m. Friday morning, a report from the Sherman County Sheriff’s Department said.
