mising intelligence sources or methods. The task is complicated by the fact that a photograph that is meaningful to intelligence officers may appear to an untrained observer as simply a bunch of rooftops, a senior official said.

Rumsfeld and Powell discussed with lawmakers the possibility of Saddam going into exile, said House Majority Leader Tom DeLay, R-Texas.

DeLay said that "if it's done under the right conditions, I would say they see that as an option. There are still possibilities out there to avoid going to war."

On a new U.N. resolution, the administration takes the position that one is not necessary to use force against Iraq in light of the warning of serious consequences for failure to disarm in an earlier resolution.

But if a fresh resolution would help other governments make the case to their public for using force the Bush administration would consider it, this official said.

although he did say Powell would "connect the dots."

He argued that the case essentially has been made, saying Bush already sees "a Mount Everest of information. Making Mount Everest is not necessary.

U.N. inspectors reported this week that Iraq hasn't provided evidence it dismantled chemical and biological weapons programs and has failed to fully cooperate in the inspection process. The administration says that bolsters its case that said Bush hadn't made a persuasive Iraq is not living up to its obligations under U.N. resolutions. But some U.S. allies say that isn't enough to justify war and the United States should provide evidence that Iraq Bush to present "convincing evistill possesses banned weapons.

The administration has been reluctant to do so, saying that could force the disclosure of intelligence Senate Armed Services Committee sources and methods. But it is hear- Chairman John Warner, R-Va., who ing from all sides that it has not said Congress should instead "stay clinched the case.

Fleischer declined to elaborate on 600 people into the Gulf region. what evidence will be furnished, And the Pentagon announced that another 15,718 National Guard and Reserve forces have been called to active duty over the past week.

In his State of the Union speech Tuesday night, Bush indirectly acknowledged that he faces a variety of doubters.

"Some have said we must not act until the threat is imminent," Bush said. "Trusting in the sanity and restraint of Saddam Hussein is not a strategy, and it is not an option."

Sen. Edward Kennedy, D-Mass., case that the threat is imminent and that war is the only alternative. As a result, Kennedy said, he would introduce a resolution requiring dence of an imminent threat" before sending troops to fight Iraq.

By the Associated Press INTERNATIONAL

JERUSALEM — Bolstered by a resounding election victory, Prime Minister Ariel Sharon today called for national unity against "the murderous hatred" of Palestinian militants, but his efforts to form a broad coalition government are likely to be thwarted by the defeated Labor party.

Sharon might be forced into an alliance with ultranationalist parties that want to block U.S.-backed peace moves and spur him to even tougher moves against the Palestinians. Israel TV quoted Sharon as saying off-camera that he'd rather call new elections than preside over such a coalition.

Sharon's Likud doubled its strength, from 19 to 37 seats in the 120-member parliament. Likud's political rival, the center-left Labor, posted its worst-ever showing, dropping from 26 to 19 seats.

Sharon profited from the Israeli electorate's shift to the right in re-
