Walter Taylor

Goodland native turns 100

Walter Taylor, a Goodland native, celebrated his 100th birthday the weekend of June 20-22 in Independence, Mo.

He was born Dec. 13, 1903, on his parent's farm in Sherman County and spent his entire life as a farmer in Kansas before retiring to Missouri. A lifelong member of the Community of Christ, formerly the Reorganized Church of Latter Day Saints, he has been an active resident of the Rosewood Health Care Center in Independence since 1992.

He was married to Florence Light for 67 years until her death in 1995. They had three daughters, Patricia (who preceded him in death in 1997), Beverly and Carol.

His surviving daughters and their families joined him to celebrate this benchmark birthday. Six of his seven grandchildren as well as nine of his 11 great-grandchildren were able to attend.

Daughter Beverly Dimmitt and husband from St. Louis; daughter Carol Reilly from Stafford, Va.; grandson, Reed Dimmitt and wife from Birmingham, Ala.; grandson, Steve Dimmitt and family from South Barrington, Ill.; grandson, David Dimmitt and family from St. Louis, Mo.; grandson, James Reilly and fiancee from Atlanta; granddaughter, Stacy Colebaugh and daughters from Fredricksburg, Va.; granddaughter Tracey Brown and family from Apopka, Fla.; were able to join the celebration.

Granddaughter Erin Smith and her family are stationed at Camp Smith, Hawaii, with the military and were unable to attend. Other friends and relatives were invited to join the celebration on Sunday afternoon.

The case will be heard in chambers before Judge Smith at once and the controversy decided. The trouble has grown out of a misunderstanding as to the disposal of a wheat crop which had been sown on the land by Taylor and sold by him to Hurd for $125.

Subsequently to perfect the title, Hurd secured a quit claim deed from the original owner.

Previous to the sale Taylor had sown 45 acres of wheat on the land and claims that there was a verbal agreement at the time of sale, that in addition to the $125, he was to have one half of the crop.

Hurd denies this and brought suit to prevent Taylor from cutting the

Alberta Browning

Alberta Ruth Browning, 85, a Cheyenne County homemaker, died Saturday, July 12, 2003, at Hospital.

She was born March 13, 1918, near St. Francis, the daughter of Homer and Ethal Wolbach. She was the youngest of six children, but later another daughter was adopted and the family raised a foster child.

The family lived on a farm on Cherry Creek until they moved to St. Francis when Alberta was 8. She attended school there through the eighth grade, and math was her favorite subject.

As a young woman, she worked 12, 1938, she married Charles Lester "Mike" Browning in St. Francis.

The couple worked for numerous farm families, and when their children were young, she sometimes took them with her while driving the truck with him.

She was a cook at the Cheyenne County Hospital until 1965, when Mr. Browning became ill.

She and other family members raised and milked Holstein cattle, hogs, ducks, chickens, geese and other animals on a farm outside of St. Francis.

Browning taught by example, and she knew how to make her children behave without lifting a finger or raising her voice.

Her cooking was unmatched, especially her pies and breads. She was an accomplished seamstress, Wray, Colo., Community District creating her own patterns for her girls' clothes.

She loved to crochet, and even at age 85 and plagued with arthritis, she made perfect, tiny embroidery stitches.

In her later years, although she could no longer walk because of problems with her back and legs, she strong and independent until the
