

Woman moved to Wheat Ridge, wants visitors

If Christie Schiefen's friends want to visit her, they must go to Wheat Ridge Acres. She was moved there from the hospital on Monday afternoon. How long she'll be there depends on the healing of the bone in her leg and if she gets rid of her "boot." I know she'll enjoy your dropping in to visit.

Belated birthday wishes to Bud Owens, who celebrated his 86th birthday on Aug. 10 during the Owens family reunion on that day. The gathering was held at the senior center.

Florence Farris took in the national postmaster convention from Aug. 2-8. She visited her niece, Fern Martin, before coming home after her arrival at Denver International Airport.

Her son Gary took her to the airport and picked her up. She said it was a good meeting; she met many friends and just plain enjoyed the time away.

Esther Splattstoesser has had several of her kids and grandkids visit her. The twins, Amy and Lauren Aufdembrink of Norfolk, Neb., came for a week-long visit with Grandma Esther.

Their mom had come as far as Norton, where Esther picked them up. They stopped in Hoxie on their way home to celebrate her great-granddaughter Shaylynn Splattstoesser's fourth birthday.

Nadine and Benjamin came for a few days to take the girls back home on Saturday. They all enjoyed visiting the quilt display at the arts center before going home.

Lisa, Shaylynn and Vanessa Splattstoesser came to also view the quilts and have lunch with Grandma Esther. These were the quilts shipped in from various places. Esther said they were beautiful, and Goodland felt very lucky to be included in the list of showings.

Elaine Thompson called to tell me she had and was receiving cards for her 90th birthday on Tuesday. She wanted to thank everyone, even a few she couldn't remember who they were.

We helped to explain who they were, and she enjoyed them even more. Thanks, folks, for all the cards.

Dodie Roulier and Velma Holste are new residents at the Good Samaritan Center. Dodie left for the center a few days ago, and Velma will be there by the time you read this.

It's great that we have these two centers where folks can go for either temporary or more permanent stays and yet be close to their families as they continue therapy.

The Brannick girls and Jonah have been stopping in frequently to see the kittens on my porch. How they would like to pick them up, but I'm the only one who can do that.

Maybe one of these days, if I don't give them away, they may be able to do so. It's fun to watch them play, but I know they will all grow into big cats, much to my dislike.

I had a phone call from Dr. Beynon giving me the results of his medical testing. I'm very happy to report they all came back okay, at least for now. He seemed like his old self in our conversation.

I had sent his birthday cake and noodles home with his wife when she was here for Betty Saint's funeral. He said the cake wasn't going to last until his actual day, but he didn't have any regrets.

He ended the call in his usual good-bye, something he's done all the time I worked for him. It was good to hear him in such fine spirits, as it also made me feel much better too.

There's no other news that I'm aware of, but I do want to thank all who have been bringing fresh garden produce to both the center and here at home. It's most appreciated by all. I'll see you all next week, God willing.
