Colby artist to show butterfly paintings at arts center

Butterflies of all colors — brown with orange and yellow "eyes" on the wings, yellow with black stripes, black with orange spots, you name it — will bring spring to the Carnegie Arts Center gallery during May.

The Common Buckeye, Western Tiger Swallowtail, Virginia Lady — these and many more varieties of butterflies will fill the gallery when Marlene Carpenter exhibits her collection of butterfly paintings.

The gallery show will open with an artist's reception from 1 to 3 p.m. Sunday, May 6.

Carpenter, from Colby, may be best know for her sunflower paintings and craft items, but she is always ready for a new challenge and found one in taking on her most recent subject.

Her butterfly paintings are realistic and detailed. She says she loves using bright colors and found inspiration in the natural beauty and colors of butterflies.

Carpenter is a member of the High Plains Art Club in Colby, which has shown art at the center, and her sunflower art also included in the center's gift gallery.

She was among several artists who helped create a mural in the Bedker Memorial Complex at Colby Community College and paint murals at the Prairie Senior Living Center in Colby. Her art has been included in Smokey Hills Public Broadcasting Service Art Auctions and has been featured in several newspapers and television news segments.

Carpenter, a retired bank teller, has two daughters, a son and two grandchildren. She has been painting for nearly 30 years, saying she had a natural interest in art from her early years. Her exhibit will continue through May 31.

Royal and Joan Reid of Goodland are sponsoring the show.

Center hours are 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. Tuesday through Friday and 1 to 5 p.m. Saturday, Sunday and Monday. Admission is free.
