

School district may buy used computers from Hays

COMPUTERS, from Page 1

Junior high science teacher Sue Hagerman reported that the teacher insurance committee had approved the district's proposed changes in medical insurance. The deductible would go to $3,500, she said, but it will cost the district $71,000 more for health insurance than it did this year. The committee recommended that the district look for alternatives to Blue Cross/Blue Shield next year.

In other business, the board:

- Gave approval for Holly Kibel to graduate at the end of the first semester. Kibel said she plans to go to radiology training in Thornton, Colo., starting in April.
- Saw a demonstration from the teachers laptop initiative group of 13 and the advanced group of how they had used their new computer skills in the classroom. This is the third year for the initiative.
- Paid expenses for $129,254.
- Accepted the resignations of fifth-grade teacher Kim Herron, sixth-grade teacher Jeremy Sampson and teacher aides Wanda Schritter and Stephanie Sloan.

- Went into executive session to talk about the recommendations for employment of classified personnel, such as the board clerk and aides and supplementals such as coaches and club sponsors. At 10:20 the board came out of executive session to rehire classified and supplemental personnel.

Colorado won't drain Bonny

"The unfortunate issue is the natural drought that has caused the decline in reservoir levels. We are coming out of the drought, and can say we hope to refill Bonny after we have complied with the compact.

"We have a ways to go."
The Republican River Compact, signed by Colorado, Nebraska and Kansas in 1942, specifies how the three states will divide water in the basin. The annual compact meeting in August will review how each state has done in compliance with the compact rules.

The Prairie Dog, Sappa and Beaver creeks in Sherman County are part of the Republican River system. Bonny Reservoir is on the South Fork of the Republican above St. Francis and north of Burlington.

The 1998 Kansas lawsuit, which went to the U.S. Supreme Court, claimed the increasing number of wells in Colorado and Nebraska were sapping the river and its tributaries, resulting in overuse by the upstream states. The compact accounts come due at the end of the year, and Nebraska and Colorado expect the numbers to show they're using more water than they should.

A big reason is the drought that has plagued Colorado's eastern plains for more than seven years.

"We've been in deficit every year," said Mike King, deputy director of the Colorado Department of Natural Resources. "We need to come up with a long-term solution."

Colorado's share of the Republican River dropped to 25,000 acre feet of water a year after the drought hit. The state's annual use has ranged from about 35,000 to 37,000 acre feet, Knox said.

An acre foot of water is about 326,000 gallons, or enough for two households for one year.

Bonny Reservoir was completed on May 4, 1951, at a cost of $13 million. The dam was dedicated on June 1, 1952.
