

Gardener doesn't remember as hot a summer

Those of us who have been gardening for any length of time are hard pressed to remember a summer like the one we have experienced so far. Those of you who may be playing in the dirt for the first time are probably rethinking the idea of planting and nurturing a few of those wonderful fresh garden vegetables.

Not to worry! I hereby predict that the worst of this searing summer is over!! Yeah, right...what do I know. But surely we've seen the most severe heat that Mother Nature can provide in late June. My garden, (and most of yours)

• the gardener

has experienced 100 degrees or more on 12 of the last 13 days, and counting. That little statistic alone makes you want to head for the mountains, except a lot of the mountains are on fire, which makes our garden problems pale by comparison. I mentioned last week in this space that for the most part, my garden still looked pretty good. After almost two weeks of triple digits, it is still hanging in there. With almost constant care, several of the goodies are producing well. But not the tomatoes

Tomatoes....the one garden crop we all have great expectations for through the winter months and into spring and early summer, are just kinda sitting out there in the garden thumbing their noses at us. They simply refuse to set fruit! And while tomatoes are heat loving plants, their reproductive procedures just don't work when the daytime temperatures rise above 90 to 95 degrees for a couple of days. They shut it down. Sure, there are tons of blooms, but no little fruit showing up. Tomatoes are pollinated by the wind, not by bees and the hot wind just can't seem to get the job done.

That is a very simple explanation from a layman. Surely, a horticulturist can offer a much more educated summary of the pollination of tomatoes in the heat. Cucumbers don't seem to be affected by the heat, and there are pickles galore. The onions have never looked better, the potatoes are large, the green beans are flourishing and the zucchini...is doing it's thing.

I was surprised this morning, while looking down inside the tomato cages that there were dozens of medium sized tomatoes that had set on before the heat hit. I must remember to keep my eye on those little jewels. If we don't get a lot of cooler weather soon, those may be about the only bright red morsels of goodness that some of us will see this summer.

Newcomers to the gardening mystic should not be dismayed. If you've worked hard out there, you are almost sure to harvest a lot of nice things. For all of us who are still waiting on the tomato crop, it would appear that we are going to have to wait a little longer than usual for the crop we all crave most. Last year, I picked my first tomato on July 30th. It may be a little later this year. What's really scary is that I overheard a conversation at the supermarket check-out counter the other day that we are likely to have snow in late August this year. Sure. And it's probably going to rain tonight.

Festival to be held in August

The town of Victoria invites you to a weekend of free fun at the 30th Annual Herzogfest on Friday and Saturday, Aug. 10 and 11. Those of all ages will be entertained, find something good to eat and experience hometown fellowship. All in celebration of our German heritage, those who come will literally have, "too much fun!"

The celebration begins on Friday at 4 p.m. (Mountain Time) with homemade food vendors lining Main Street, polka bands playing, free swimming and fun cycles and banana bikes cruising the streets for kids' entertainment. Shades of Gray, a local band, will take the stage at 6:30 p.m. (Mountain Time) followed by national recording artist, Wade Bowen, at 8:30 p.m. (Mountain Time). Bring your lawn chairs and blankets to line the creek for a summer evening of fun, and don't forget to bring a dancing partner and koozie.

On Saturday the festivities continue with a sunrise 5K Run/Walk at 6:45 a.m. (Mountain Time), parade at 8:30 a.m., and a welcoming ceremony with German chants, a blessing, and a time of thanksgiving at 9 a.m. Games and activities will be going on all day around the park. At 10 a.m. (Mountain Time) 3 on 3 basketball, horseshoes, and fun cycles and banana bikes will begin. If you need to cool down in the air conditioning, head over and play bingo at 11 a.m. and test out your luck. The Eagle Radio Kids Pedal Pull will start at noon while some prefer to go cool off in the pool for some free swimming. At 3 p.m. all will become quiet and attention will be given to the polka mass, as we give thanks and worship our Good and Gracious God. Following mass, polka music will continue to fill the park until the talent show starts at 5:30 p.m. As the evening draws near, cards will be dealt for a fun time of pinochle at 7. However, put your dancing shoes on bring back your dancing partner from Friday night, as the park will be ready to rock out to Jimmy Dee and the Fabulous Destinations at 8:30 p.m. (Mountain Time) as they will kick up the beat with some old time favorites.

Once again the Third Annual Herzogfest Rod, Custom, and Cycle show will be going on from 7 a.m. to 1 p.m. (Mountain Time) on Saturday. See some of the coolest and most stylish cars in the Midwest fill the park to show off their sleek paint job, fancy rims and power filled motors to all car enthusiasts.

All entertainment is free thanks to the continued support of our sponsors. Tournaments and some special events have entry fees. For additional information and entry forms, please visit www.herzogfest.com or contact the Herzogfest committee at info@herzogfest.com.
