City votes to put school tax on ballot

By Kevin Bottrell

kbottrell@nwkansas.com

The question of whether or not to put on both a quarter-cent sales tax and an 8.25-mill property tax levy for the school district will go before Goodland voters this April.

On a 4-1 vote, the city commission approved adding the two initiatives to the ballot at its meeting Monday. Commissioner Jenifer Sanderson moved to approve the ballot initiative with Commissioner Annette Fairbanks seconding.

Commissioner Bill Finley voted no. Finley, who voiced concerns about the tax at the last meeting in December, said he struggled with the issue and can't support it. The plan would put much of the burden on businesses, he said, which would have to pay the increased property tax and see their sales tax increase, possibly resulting in loss of business to neighboring communities with lower sales tax.

"It's not equal and places the burden on businesses," he said. "I cannot support it because of that."

Commissioner Gary Farris said he doesn't like to see sales taxes

Outgoing commissioners give thanks

By Kevin Bottrell

kbottrell@nwkansas.com

Tuesday was the final meeting for outgoing Sherman County Commissioners Cynthia Strnad and Max Linin. New commissioners Ken Klemm and Steve Evert will be sworn in at the next meeting on Tuesday.

Strnad thanked several county employees and told Ambulance Director Dwayne Wright and Billing Director Eric Albright, who were there on other business, that the ambulance takeover had been the major goal of the commission during her time, and it has gone very well so far.

"I can't think of two people who would have done a better job," she said.

Strnad went over some of the issues that the new commissioners – and current Commissioner

Larry Enfield – will be facing.

The commissioners embarked on a tax sale in late 2011. The abstracting was completed in November, 2012, Strnad said, and with the amount of work it takes to put on a sale and with the county attorney's work load, the soonest there could be a sale would be mid-late fall.

Enfield said he has wanted to go to a yearly sale, which would take a lot of effort, but there are about $600,000 in owed taxes.

"Not having that money makes us levy more and makes everyone's taxes higher," he said.

Strnad said ideally the county should follow the Cheyenne County model. Cheyenne County went to a yearly sale and got almost all of the outstand-

New Year's resolutions for the gardener

We are all guilty of making resolutions for the New Year and then we forget them or make half-hearted attempts at fulfilling them. Well this year let's make a few for the garden. Because we enjoy gardening, we might even be able to follow through.

Resolve to sit back and plan out your garden site. Seed catalogs are plentiful this time of year and the urge to buy, buy, buy will be working on you. Make a list of the things you want to plant this coming year and then shop a little. As you plan your garden you might even want to draw up a planting plan. Planning

ahead can save you from buying un-needed seeds or plants and save money in the process.

Resolve to take more time and enjoy your garden. I find that I can plant way more in the spring than I can take care of in mid to late summer. When that happens I spend more time working at it and not getting a chance to enjoy it as much. I think this might be echoing resolution one, but still needs to be put out there.

Resolve to expand your horizons and try one or two new vegetables in the garden. Try something you have never tried; plant and experiment. Maybe try dry beans for winter soups, garlic or some vegetable for the health of it.

Resolve to start the garden off right, soil test. We recommend that you soil test once every three years or so. If you never have had a soil test, we can help you. Things you will find out from a soil test include where you stand with the three main elements: nitrogen, phosphorus, and potassium. In addition to the main elements you get the ph and organic matter.

K-State has information on soil testing, from how to take a sample to understanding the test results. You can find this information online at www.ksre.ksu.edu under crops. I would also be glad to help you get started if you want to stop by the office or just give me a call.

Hansen museum to have painting classes

How many of you have been flipping through channels on the television and happened to come across the "Joy of Painting with Bob Ross" program. If you stopped for only a moment, you would have been captivated by the simple and easy method of his painting techniques.

We will again have two certified instructors that teach classes at the Hansen Museum on a regular basis. T.R. Mathews and Sandy Seamone, Arriba, Colorado, will be here to entertain and instruct, step by step, revealing how easy and fun it is to paint the Bob Ross way. No previous experience is necessary and anyone can do it.

On Saturday, Feb. 16, the class will be painting "Kayak Mountain" and on Sunday, Feb. 17, "Flower Power". The classes will run 8-11 a.m. and 12-2 p.m. (Mountain Time) both days.

Deadline approaches on program

The deadline for eligible Kansas borrowers who lost their homes due to foreclosure between Jan. 1, 2008, and Dec. 31, 2011, to file a National Mortgage Settlement Claim form in order to receive a cash payment is Friday, Jan. 18, according to Kansas Attorney General Derek Schmidt.

Schmidt encouraged Kansans who have received notice that they may be eligible to file a claim to do so before the deadline in order to receive a cash payment from a settlement fund set aside for that purpose.

State attorneys general and the National mortgage Settlement administrator have taken extensive steps to ensure that eligible borrowers who were victims of improper foreclosure practices are aware of the claims process. In September and October notice letters and claim forms were mailed to eligible borrowers. A call center was opened for borrowers to speak with a trained customer service representative. The National Mortgage Settlement website allows borrowers to submit their claim forms online. Reminder mailings were sent in November and December.

As of Dec. 20, notices had been mailed to 12,134 eligible borrowers with a total of 10,338 loans in Kansas; 4,837 claims had been filed. The number of borrowers exceeds the number of loans because some loans had multiple borrowers.

"More than half of eligible Kansas borrowers who were foreclosed upon by one of the top five mortgage servicers between 2008 and 2011 have not yet filed their claim forms and after Jan. 18 they may not be able to qualify for a cash payment from this fund," Schmidt said. "One of the key provisions of the mortgage settlement is this direct payment, and I encourage eligible borrowers to take advantage of this remedy."

If you believe you are eligible and have not received a claim form, contact the National Mortgage Settlement Administrator at (866) 430-8358. To file a claim online, go to www.nationalmortgagesettlement.com.

The settlement negotiated by the state attorneys general and the federal government and announced in February affects certain borrowers whose mortgages were serviced by the following major lenders: Ally/GMAC, Bank of America, Citi, JP Morgan Chas and Wells Fargo.

Colby woman featured on YouTube

Lisa Sipes of Colby Sew and Vac will be featured on the television show "It's Sew Easy," which is available now on YouTube and will be on PBS stations beginning yesterday. Sipes said she did a 10-minute segment for the episode "Modern Patchwork," making a pillow sham that embodies a contemporary design, but also includes basic machine techniques.

In May, Sipes said she was approached by Kathie Stull of KS Inc. Productions at a quilting convention in Kansas City and Stull said she was interested in having Sipes on the show.

"It was the first time I met her that she asked me to be on the show," Sipes said.

After several e-mails and phone calls, Sipes said, she went to the show's production studios in Beachwood, Ohio, in August to film the segment.

One episode of "It's Sew Easy" features two-, five- and 10-minute segments with teachers breaking down sewing into manageable parts and sharing their styles.

Sipes said she found out from a friend on Twitter that her segment is already available on the show's YouTube channel.

Junior swine day scheduled in Manhattan

Kansas State University will host Kansas Junior Swine Producer Day on Feb. 16 at Weber Arena in Manhattan.

"We're planning a fun-filled day of activities where youth, parents, swine project leaders and others can increase their knowledge and experience of swine production and management practices," said Kristine Clowers, youth livestock coordinator in Kansas State's Department of Animal Sciences and Industry. More than $600 in prizes will be given away.

Kyle Baade, herdsman for Penner Genetics, Plymouth, Neb. will be the featured speaker. Penner Genetics specializes in purebred breeding stock and high quality club pigs. Presentations will also be given by K-State faculty and graduate students.

The day begins with registration at 8 a.m. (Mountain Time). Educational sessions include:

- Selecting your youth project;
- Skillathon (non-competitive);
- Nutrition of your show pig;

• Educational materials for your swine project and livestock nominations;

• Youth pork quality assurance plus Certification Session (optional);

• Pig care: from purchase to show day; and

• Hands-on showmanship.

The day will end with a final questions and wrap-up session.

The cost to attend is $10 per person if paid by Friday, Feb. 1, and $15 after that date. All participants receive a Kansas State Show Pig Guide, Skillathon practice, T-shirt, and a complimentary lunch.

More information is available online at www.ksi.ksu.edu/p.aspx?tabid=58 or by contacting Clowers at (785) 532-1264 or clowers@ksu.edu.

from our viewpoint...

Is everyone ready to improve schools

The 2012 legislative season is fast upon us. School budgets will be one of the big issues, what with the state’s finances perennially tight and the Legislature having messed up the income tax system something fierce last year.

But before joining the fight, we’d urge the state’s teachers, educators and school boards to take a deep breath and offer to work with the governor and Legislature to make some sense out of the tax situation.

Unless their purpose is simply politics – to make the governor and his Republican allies look bad – they have nothing to gain from picking a fight.

The governor has already said he wants the tax situation fixed. He’s promised not to cut schools. As long as the Legislature will do something about the income tax, there’s no reason to believe he isn’t telling the truth.

In effect, he’s offered an olive branch to the school interests, which consume about half the state’s budget.

The tax situation became a mess near the end of last year’s session when the Senate, under pressure to get something done on the income tax, a key plank in the governor’s platform, passed a bill that included nearly all his proposed cuts but none of the “flattening” changes he’d proposed to eliminate “loopholes” such as the deductions for home mortgage interest and other popular tax breaks.

Everyone, especially the Senate, just assumed the two houses would negotiate differences on the tax bill and come up with something they could live with. That didn’t happen, however. The House just slam-dunked the Senate bill and sent it on to the governor, who signed it.

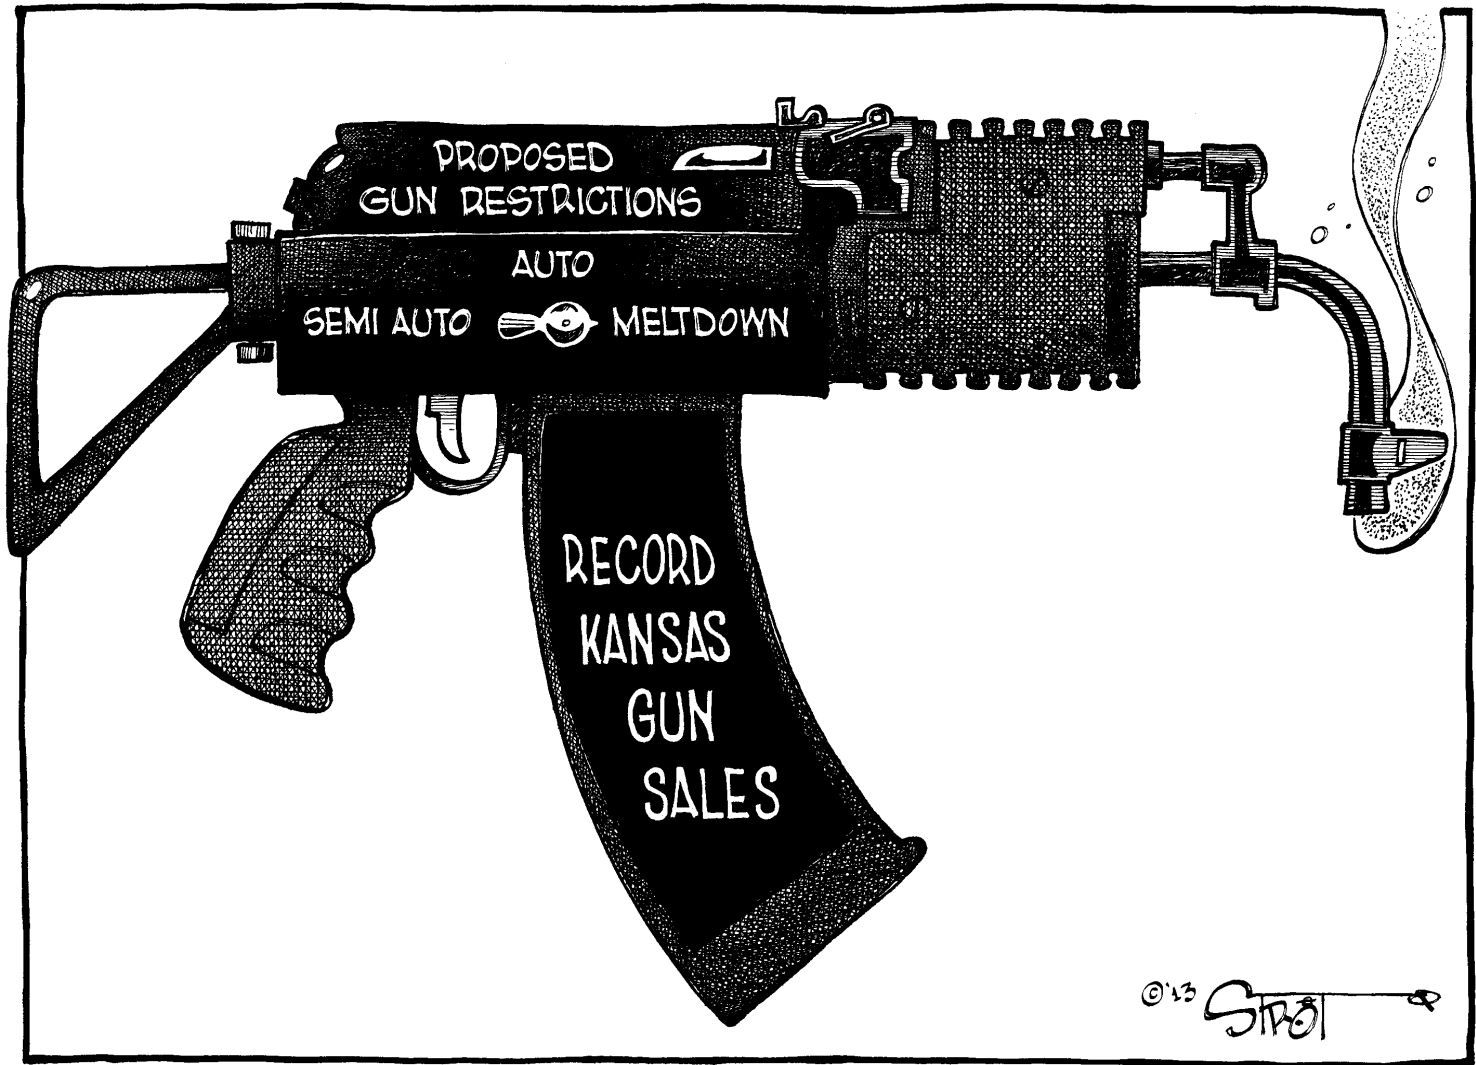

That left the state with a projected shortfall in coming years, as much as $700 million a year, assuming there is no fix for the income tax, although that figure keeps dropping as the economy improves.

This clearly was not what the governor wanted, but as one veteran statehouse reporter likes to say, “He signed it, so he’s got to share the blame.”

So true. And the governor has said the revenue system needs to be fixed. It’ll be the big issue this year.

How well it’s fixed and how education fares may depend on how well everyone who sees the need can work together. The governor has signaled his intent. The state’s school boards appear to be ready to work with him. The teachers? So far, they’ve not come around, but they should.

This administration says it’s a friends of education, and they might just get farther by joining in than by howling. – Steve Haynes

Busy year of ‘semi-retirement’

Look back at first year of semi-retirement

It has been one year since I stepped down as Editor of The Goodland Star-News, and looking back it has been quite a busy year including more travel than I had originally anticipated.

The trips took me to Arizona, Thailand, Georgia, Virginia, Maryland and back to Arizona and Georgia to round out the year.

As many may know my wife Ava’s mother is about to turn 93, and lives in Georgia. My mother lives in Arizona and is 83. Both Ava and I have been traveling early in the year over the past few years to visit our mothers. For Ava it has been for longer times as she is helping her younger sister take care of their mother. Ava went down to Georgia when I left for Arizona in February.

I had anticipated spending a few weeks with my mom, and took my cat, Sammie, so she would not have to be alone. That was a good decision for the cat as I was actually in Arizona for about three months. My sister Lynn from Lakewood, Colo., went down with Sammie and I to Arizona, but flew back after a couple of weeks.

When I arrived my mother discovered a lump in her breast and we had to make several trips to doctors and she had surgery in a nearby hospital to remove the lump. I headed back to Goodland after Easter, and my sister, Becky of Beaver, Utah, flew down to take mom through the chemo therapy.

My next trip developed while I was in Arizona as my sister-in-law was thinking about attending the Rotary International Convention to being held in Bangkok, Thailand, in May. With Ava in place to take care of her mom I was able to make the two-week trip to enjoy the Rotary convention and had several days before and after the convention to enjoy being a tourist. Family friends in Thailand made the trip possible kindly loaning us use of an apartment that was close to the skytrain. A local cab driver helped us get around to many of the attractions and to and from the convention center.

I saw a lot of wonderful sights, and the one that left the biggest impression was our weekend trip to the River Kwai in northwest Thailand where we saw the Bridge over the River Kwai, the Kanchanaburi War Cemetery and rode on the train known as The Death Railway. We spent the night on the river at the Kwai River Floatel upriver from Kanchanaburi. Many remember the English movie “The Bridge Over the River Kwai” that came out in 1957, but may not realize it was a bigger story about how the Japanese used more than 200,000 conscripted workers and prisoners of war (including Americans, British, Dutch and Australians) to build a railway to connect Thailand and Burma in 1942-45.

When I returned to Goodland I was able to pick up my wife in June, but she had agreed to return to Georgia in July. A day or two after she returned to Georgia her mother fell and broke her hip. That sort of seemed to cement Ava in Georgia to help with her care. Her mother has done extremely well recovering from the broken hip.

I have been working on historical research about J.E.B. Stuart of Virginia, who was in the Union Army in Kansas and Colorado back in 1858-60 before returning to Virginia to join the Confederate Army of Virginia and become a well known calvary general. I got the opportunity in September to travel to Virginia to personally see the area where Gen. Stuart was living and learn more about this man who fought Indians and built Fort Wise/Lyon on the Arkansas River in southeast Colorado.

I spent some time with my wife and her family in Georgia before and after the trip to Virginia. Ava and I flew out to Arizona after the election in November to spend a month and Thanksgiving with my mother. We had a great time and I was able to meet up with some of my Lamar High School classmates who live in the area. We had seen each other in August in Lamar for our 45th reunion.

We returned to Georgia in early December to be with Ava’s family for the Christmas and New Year holidays. The holiday season was quite busy here with the arrival of a former exchange student from Austria, a newly settled exchange student from Spain who is living with another sister-in-law who lives a few miles away. We had three Thai’s who came from Savannah, including another former exchange student, her mother and a college friend. To add to the international flavor we had a visit over New Years of a couple from Tampa, Fla., with their young baby. The father is from Haiti and the mother is another family friend from Thailand.

The rush of people is over, but the question about how things are going here remain. I plan to return to Goodland sometime soon to be able to take all my Stuart research and get a book written to be published later this year.

Whew, what a year. I can only think this retirement thing is almost as busy as being an editor. There is one big difference - I don’t have to get up every day at 5 a.m.

Happy New Year to everyone, and good luck to the Denver Broncos - I do keep up on the sports scene.

Whack on the side of the head

There’s an old saying that sometimes you need a good whack on the side of the head. Nothing could be truer today in this speeding world of instantaneous communication.

While there are countless ways of doing so, many of us remain tied to the comfort of doing something in the same way. As a result, it becomes more difficult to think about doing it any other way.

It’s time for all of us to break out of this rut of familiarity. Let’s begin by looking somewhere else.

Finding new ideas or a new way of doing something is akin to prospecting for gold. If you look in the same old places, you’ll find tapped-out veins. On the other hand, if you venture off the beaten path, you’ll improve your chances of discovering new ideas.

Crawl out of your comfort zone.

Every culture, industry, business or organization has its own way of looking at the world. Often the best ideas come from exploring the way others in different walks of life do things.

“Anyone can look for fashion in a boutique or history in a museum,” journalist Robert Wieder said. “The creative explorer looks for history in a hardware store and fashion in an airport.”

Where will you look?

Borrow ideas.

Throughout history people have used novel and interesting ideas that others have used successfully. Our ideas must be original only to their adaptation to the problem we’re working on at the time.

Dig deeper.

Nothing is more dangerous than an idea when it’s the only one we have. Never stop with the first right answer you find. Look for others.

How do you keep a fish from smelling?

Grill it as soon as you catch it. Keep a cat around. Burn incense. Cut its nose off.

Remember, the best way to find a solution to something is to come up with lots of them.

See the big picture.

In 1866 an Iowa farmer watched the construction of the transcontinental railroad near his fields. After seeing the track laid and a locomotive steam by he thought, “So that’s what railroading is all about: tracks and trains.”

What didn’t he see?

That he could transport his products to more markets more quickly, and that once there they would compete against products from many more places. That people could travel coast to coast in less than a week. That more ideas would be shared, and different people would meet and marry.

The Iowa farmer saw the steel and wheels, but he didn’t see the consequences. Look for the larger implications of an idea. Look at the big picture.

Expect the unexpected.

Columbus was looking for India. Bell was trying to invent a hearing aid. Often what you’re looking for leads to something entirely different.

Listen to that hunch.

Your subconscious mind continually records and stores unrelated data from the outside world. Later, it combines these data into good answers, or what might be considered hunches.

If you simply ask, trust and listen these hunches can sometimes lead to the right solutions.

Look for the obvious.

“Only the most foolish of mice would hide in a cat’s ear,” designer Scott Love said, “but only the wisest of cats would look there.”

See what’s in front of your face or ear. Think about what you may be overlooking. The resources or solutions might be right in front of you.

Ask a fool.

That’s what the kings of old did to break out of the group-think environment their “yes-men” culture created. It was the fool’s job to see any proposal or discussion underway in a fresh light.

Peter Sellers, the brilliant British actor, played this to perfection in his last movie, “Being There.” He did so by extolling the trivial, trifling the exalted or reversing the common perception of a situation.

Here’s an example. If a man is sitting on a horse backward, why do we assume that it’s the man who is backward and not the horse?

Never assume things are a certain way. Shake up people’s assumptions and this will allow them to see things differently, sometimes more clearly.

Greek philosopher Heraclitus said, “To those who are awake, there is one ordered universe, whereas in sleep each man turns away from the world to one of his own.”

Your dreams can help resolve conflicts, refresh thinking, inspire solutions and suggest different approaches.

Follow your dreams.

City votes to put school taxes on April ballot

increase, but it is the people's right to vote.

"Schools are the backbone of our community and we need to support them," Fairbanks said, "We should let the people decide."

The taxes will be used by the Goodland School District on remodeling projects at West and North Elementaries and Goodland High School. The sales tax and property tax will appear separately on the ballot. If the sales tax passes but the property tax does not, the sales tax will not be implemented. If the property tax passes but the sales tax does not, the district may still go ahead with the project.

In other business, the commission:

- Approved a conditional use permit for the United Methodist Church. The church wants to put up an LED sign. Economic Development Director Michael Solomon said LEDs didn't exist when the city code was written, so staff felt a conditional use permit was the way to go. Solomon said the church had talked to its neighbors about the sign and gotten a recommendation from the planning commission. He said the sign would be off the road by the sanctuary. Finley said he hoped the church would observe all the necessary setbacks. Solomon said they were conscious of that when putting together the plan for the planning commission.

- Approved a zoning change to 725 W. U.S. 24 to commercial. The new Yost Farm Supply building sits on what had been a trailer park. City Manager Doug Gerber said the city wants to rezone it to commercial, and the company owner said he didn't have a problem with it as long as his property taxes didn't change, which it wouldn't.

- Accepted a bid for a Chevy Silverado for the police department for $25,905. The truck will be purchased through a federal program, one the city has used before for a police truck.

Chief Cliff Couch said the department has been going to trucks over cars for several reasons. They cost about the same as the old Ford Crown Victorias—which are no longer being made—but the trucks last longer and hold value better when it comes time to resell.

Both Finley Motors and Dan Brenner Ford had submitted bids, Gerber said, but the prices were higher and had not met some of the bid specs. The federal contract is a complete package, Couch said, with a special police package already installed on the truck.

Commissioner Finley voted no on the contract, saying the city needs to continue to work with local dealers.

"I would like to see to see us deal locally," he said, "but it's hard to dispute the numbers in this case."

- Received an update on the contract for maintenance at the cemetery. Gerber said Kevin Zimmerman, who had been doing the maintenance, had given the city a price of $19,800 on some of the equipment he'd be willing to sell.

"That's in the ballpark of what we were talking about," he said.

The commissioners had indicated at a previous meeting that they wanted the contract put out for bids to see what came in while retaining the option to hire a city employee to do the work directly if they didn't like any of the bids. Gerber said the city would put the contract out for bids, with proposals due Jan. 28.

- Heard a year-in-review presentation from Solomon on the Chamber of Commerce and Economic Development.

"We have a really good chamber board," he said. "We've accomplished a lot."

The chamber has started collective advertising on the local cable network, helped out at the Flatlander Festival picnic and held a year-end banquet in conjunction with the Elks Club. The goal for this year is to get 100 members, he said.

On the Economic Development side, Solomon said the city has given out $79,000 in incentives in 2012, which he said helped contribute to 70 new jobs and $3.4 million in business investments back into the community. Unemployment is about 3 percent, he said, which is almost too low. There were also 32 more students enrolled at Goodland schools, which is a good sign, he said.

Outgoing commissioners give thanks to employees

Other issues include where to house household hazardous waste now that the 17th Street building has been sold, improvements at Smoky Gardens, the courthouse lawn and the county fuel contract. Strnad said the county could go out for new bids on that or go to another system.

In other business, the commissioners:

- Approved a Neighborhood Revitalization application.
- Waived fees at the landfill for the company demolishing buildings at Motel 7. There was an extra building that the city asked to be torn down that was not in the original bid, and the company was asking that the dumping fee be waived.

- Heard from Albright about a camera system for the courthouse. He had gotten a quote from

S&T Communication and said he would check to see if grant money is available.

• Heard an update on the ambulance department. Wright said that as of Tuesday the department had made 10 runs, including four transfers and some runs that were called off in transit. Wright said the department will need to put cell phones in the ambulances, since regulations say there has to be two methods of communication available at all times. Evert suggested pre-paid phones.

• Spoke to Michael Dorn about life insurance for emergency medical technicians. The county offers life insurance for its full time employees already, but part time employees and volunteers would not be covered. Dorn said he has been talking to the company that provides life insurance for the fire department and will have updated quotes for the commission at a future meeting.

Leadership center is making a difference

By Ron Wilson
*Director
Huck Boyd National Institute for Rural Development at Kansas State University*
Yemi is looking for leadership – especially the kind of leadership which seeks the common good in society. This is not a casual quest. In fact, in his search to learn about such leadership, he traveled all the way from Nigeria to Kansas. Why would someone travel 27 hours to learn about civic leadership in Kansas? That’s the subject of this Kansas Profile.

Ed O’Malley is president and chief executive officer of the Kansas Leadership Center in Wichita. Ed recently hosted a global gathering where Yemi and more than 50 other people learned about the Kansas Leadership Center and its work in civic leadership.

The Kansas Leadership Center was launched in 2007 with an initial $30 million grant from the Kansas Health Foundation. After extensive listening sessions around Kansas, the health foundation staff knew that leadership was vital to healthy communities and healthy people.

So the Kansas Leadership Center was created to foster civic leadership for healthier Kansas communities. Ed, a native Kansan and former state legislator, came on as the first president. For training, he participated in a leadership development program at Harvard.

Ed came back to Kansas and built a staff and program to foster civic leadership development. Today, the center offers many leadership development opportunities, organized into five areas: leadership and faith; community or place-based programs; role-based programs (for city managers or state legislators, for example); open enrollment; and faculty development. Four regional consultants work with Kansas towns large and small.

The center has been part of programs in larger cities as well as in rural communities such as Greensburg, Marion, Eureka and Tipton, population 240 people. Now, that’s rural. More than 2,000 Kansans have participated in these programs to date.

In early 2012, Ed was invited back to Harvard to help with their leadership program as an alumnus. Participants in the program seemed intrigued by what the Kansas Leadership Center was doing, so Ed sent out an email inviting anyone who was interested to come to Wichita and learn about the center.

“I was thinking a couple of people might travel in for a visit,” Ed said.

Instead, the interest level was much higher.

In November 2012, the Kansas Leadership Center hosted a gathering for people interested in the center’s civic leadership development work. Participants came from 13 countries and 16 U.S. states plus Washington, D.C.

They came from Norway, Japan, Australia, Nigeria, India, Mexico, France, Ireland, Canada, Romania, the Netherlands, Singapore, plus the U.S. states of California, Colorado, Connecticut, District of Columbia, Florida, Illinois, Louisiana, Massachusetts, Michigan, North Carolina, New York, Ohio, Pennsylvania, Utah, Virginia, Wyoming and Kansas.

“Our mission is Kansas, but we’re starting to get more attention outside the state,” Ed said. Interest in this commitment to civic leadership is what motivated people to travel to Kansas from around the globe.

“I am moved and inspired,” Ed wrote about the global gathering. “These individuals coming here affirm much of the leadership center’s work. They came to Kansas to learn with and from the Kansas Leadership Center. There is a hunger in Kansas and beyond for authentic leadership for the common good.”

For more information, go to www.kansasleadershipcenter.org.

“Because of this gathering there are dreams being hatched to create leadership centers for the common good in Mexico, Ireland, India, Nigeria, Canada, Norway, Romania and elsewhere,” Ed wrote. “Edgar and four colleagues came from one of the most violent states in Mexico and hope to return to begin the process of creating a leadership center for the common good. Govind, a retired general in the Indian Armed Forces, feels his country needs a massive infusion of leadership development.

“Someday people will reflect on the origins of those great civic ventures,” Ed wrote. “They’ll discuss the visionary local founders who didn’t give up. They’ll discuss the difference those centers have made in their communities and countries. And, they’ll reflect on this gathering in Kansas, where their founders came together with citizens of the world to dream of a better way forward and to learn from Kansans working for the common good.”

We salute the Kansas Leadership Center for making a difference with its work. That’s worth traveling around the world.

The truth about starting a business

Want to know the truth about starting a business? It’s hard. You are going to struggle. You are going to have panic attacks. You are going to have to work very hard and very long. You might fail.

But what if you don’t start that business? What if you don’t chase your dream? Then you already failed.

Going for it? Don’t expect it to be easy. Plan on sleepless nights. Plan on long hours. The rewards are there, but they won’t be handed to you on a silver platter.

Cowboys fall 58-40 to Oakley Plainsmen

By Kevin Bottrell

kbottrell@nwkansan.com

The Cowboys were at a definite size disadvantage against Oakley on Tuesday at the Max Jones Fieldhouse. The taller Plainsmen outrebounded and outscored the Cowboys, who lost the game 58-40.

The Cowboys were only down by six at the end of the first half, but the Plainsmen took a commanding lead early in the third quarter and held it to win by 18 points. Oakley committed more turnovers than the cowboys, but outrebounded Goodland by 22.

Next action will be tonight at home against Holcomb after the girls game.

The Cowboys stayed competitive with the Plainsmen in the first quarter with help from Gage Ihrig. Oakley won the jump and scored on their first possession, then Ihrig put up two points. Oakley pulled ahead with a two-point shot. With 5:48 remaining in the quarter, Ihrig sank a three pointer, giving the Cowboys a 5-4 lead.

The Plainsmen put in two consecutive baskets to retake an 8-5 lead, but Ihrig put in a three pointer, then stole the ball and laid it in for two to give the Cowboys a 10-8 lead. Gage stole the ball again but missed his shot. The Plainsmen took it down to their end of the court where Gunner Helton got it back, saving it from an errant pass that would have gone out of bounds. He got the ball to Kolt Trachsel, who took it down to the Cowboys' side. The Cowboys then got it to Gannon Ihrig, who put in a three pointer.

Oakley scored with 1:11 left in the quarter, then Helton drove inside for two. Oakley got a last-second putback to end the quarter with the Cowboys still in the lead 15-12.

Gage Ihrig was fouled to open up the second quarter. He made one of two free throws. The Plainsmen went on a seven-point run, taking a 19-16 lead. Gage was fouled again and made two free throws to make it 19-18. Then Gannon Ihrig stole the ball and laid it in to go up 20-19.

With 5:20 left in the half, Oakley put in three baskets and a free throw to take a 26-20 lead. Trachsel was fouled and made both his free throws. Oakley scored another four points, then Taylen Smith put in a two-point shot at the buzzer to end the half with the Plainsmen on top 30-24.

The third quarter was a rough one for the Cowboys. Oakley scored eight uncontested points in the first four minutes. The Cowboys finally got on the board on a three pointer from Gage Ihrig. Ruben Lazaro scored the only other two pointer of the quarter to make the score 38-29 Oakley.

The Plainsmen put in a three pointer to open the fourth quarter. Trachsel was fouled and made one free throw, then Oakley got five more points to make it 46-30.

With 5:39 to play, Gage Ihrig was fouled and made both free throws. Oakley went on an eight-point run until with three minutes remaining Lazaro got his own putback to make it 54-34.

Oakley put in another two, then Adam Simmerman hit a two-point shot. Oakley scored again with 1:36 remaining. Jarod Lake was fouled but missed two free throws, then Simmerman was fouled made one. Simmerman then hit a three pointer with six seconds remaining, but the Cowboys would take the 58-40 loss.

After the Cougars made a three-point shot in the last 1.9 seconds of the second half to tie the score at 68-68 the game went into overtime.
