City and county to meet

The Goodland City and Sherman County commissions have agreed to begin holding joint coordination meetings, the first being scheduled for noon Tuesday, May 14, at the Wolak building. The meetings are open to the public.

After the two governments butted heads over Economic Development several weeks ago, County Commissioner Ken Klemm proposed holding regular joint meetings to talk over any issues that are affecting both the city and county. He put the idea forward at the regular meet-

The Sherman County Commissioners voted 2-1 last Tuesday to hire Rod Roeder as the Road and Bridge Department superintendent.

The commissioners interviewed Roeder and Butch Vandiver in closed door sessions earlier that day. Commissioners Larry Enfield and Ken Klemm voted in favor of Roeder, who has been acting as interim co-superintendent along with Kim Blackheart for the past several months. Commissioner Steve Evert voted in favor of Vandiver, who cur-

Goodland native talks space flight

By Pat Schiefen

The Goodland Star-News

On Saturday morning at the museum people got to hear about how much fun it is for Terry Leonhart to go to work. Leonhart is a quality assurance inspection technician for the Sierra Nevada Corporation in Louisville, Colo.

Leonhart said one of the latest things he worked on is the space plane, Dream Chaser, that his company is making to win the contract to be the privately owned transportation for U.S. personnel going to the international space station. The contract winner will take over the ferrying duties of the now-retired space shuttles. There are two other companies competing on the project including Boeing.

Leonhart said his main job is to check the dimensions of each component with expensive measuring machines to make sure they are correctly made.

Leonhart grew up in Goodland and graduated from Goodland High School in 1974. Leonhart said he still feels very connected to Goodland. After that he went to Barton County Community College in Great Bend and was planning to major in engineering. Unfortunately he hated the art involved and became a machinist and wanted to design parts. In 1979 he moved to Denver and went to work for Stanley Aviation. After three and a half years he went to work at Rocky Flats. In 1986 he went to work at Ball Aerospace where they worked on the star

KBI investigating former resident's death

The case of a 45-year-old former Goodland resident found dead in his St. Francis home last week has been turned over to the Kansas Bureau of Investigation.

Sheriff's officers were called to 541 E. Third Street in St. Francis on April 3, where Brad Figgins, a FedEx driver and former Goodland resident, was found dead at the base of a flight of stairs. The incident apparently was reported as a fall. The home was surrounded by yellow police tape and agents of KBI were in town processing the crime scene later.

A woman reportedly was in custody. A closed-door hearing was held in Cheyenne County District Court on Monday.

Cheyenne County Sheriff Cody Beeson said that because of the complexity of the case, it was turned over to the KBI the following day. As of Monday, no details were available.

"We are working on the case," the sheriff said. "Our concern is for the safety of the community. Our hearts go out to the family."

Figgins' obituary appeared in the Tuesday, April 8, edition of the Goodland Star-News. Survivors include a son, Garrett, and a daughter, Kaitlin, and his parents, Richard and Diane Figgins. Services were held Tuesday in St. Francis. He was buried in the Kanorado cemetery.

Visitors from North Carolina

Seven students from West Caldwell High School in Lenoir, N.C., were in Goodland the end of last week on a trip through AFS. They were taking a break at the Carnegie Arts Center in the picture before going out to visit some farms. The students didn't like the idea of being at least two hours from a mall but were impressed with the fact that everyone has an iPad in the high school. They said their high school of over 800 students did not have the technology that Goodland High School does. Lenoir is a town of around 18,000. The students included Lisset Aguilar, Theodore Boliek, Allen Price, Brianna Farr, Lewis Callihan, Cristian Solis and Ana Gonzalez.

Timing important on crabgrass

Crabgrass preventers are another name for preemergence herbicides that prevent crabgrass seeds from developing into mature plants. Many people have a somewhat foggy idea of how they work. They do not keep the seed from germinating but kill the young germinating plant. Crabgrass preventers are just that - preventers. With few exceptions they have no effect on existing crabgrass plants, so they must be applied before germination. Additionally, preventers do not last forever once applied to the soil. Microorganisms and natural processes begin to gradually break them down soon after they are applied. If some products are applied too early, they may have lost much of their strength by the time they are needed. Most crabgrass preventers are fairly ineffective after about 60 days, but there is considerable variation among products.

(Dimension and Barricade last longer. See below.) April 15 is a

• ag notebook

good target date for applying crabgrass preventer because it gives active ingredients time to evenly disperse in the soil before crabgrass germination starts. The April 15 target works well for most of the state, but for our area I like to have it in place by May 1, but last year that was too late. With weather variability from one spring to the next, and with it the timing of crabgrass germination. For example, this year has been cooler than normal. For this reason it is often better to base timing on the bloom of ornamental plants. The Eastern Redbud tree is a good choice for this purpose. When we see it bloom we should be applying a crabgrass preventer. A follow-up application will be needed about 8 weeks later unless you are using Dimension or Barricade.

Dimension and Barricade are the only two products that give season-long control of crabgrass from a single application. In fact, they can be applied much earlier than April 15 and still have sufficient residual strength to last the season. Barricade can even be applied in the fall for crabgrass control the next season. Dimension can be applied as early as March 1. Because of the added flexibility in timing, these products are favorites of lawn care companies who have many customers to service in the spring.

Though Dimension cannot be applied as early as Barricade, it is the herbicide of choice if it must be applied later than recommended. It is the exception to the rule that preemergence herbicides do not kill existing weeds. Dimension can kill crabgrass as long as it is young (two- to three-leaf stage). Dimension is also the best choice if treating a lawn that was planted late last fall. Normally a preemergence herbicide is not recommended unless the lawn has been mowed two to four times. But Dimension is kind to young tall fescue, perennial ryegrass and Kentucky bluegrass seedlings and can be applied as early as two weeks after the first sign of germination. Lawns established in the fall can be safely treated with Dimension the following spring even if they have not been mowed.

Note that products containing Dimension and Barricade may use the common name rather than the trade name. The common chemical name for Dimension is dithiopyr and for Barricade is profluminate. Remember, when using any pesticide, read the label and follow instructions carefully.

License gets award
for security measures

The Coalition for a Secure Driver's License, a national non-profit crime prevention educational public charity based in Washington, D.C., presented its Document Security Excellence award to the Kansas Department of Revenue.

Kansas Governor Sam Brownback attended the ceremony, held Thursday, April 11, along with Revenue Secretary Nick Jordan and Director of Vehicles Donna Shelite who were present to receive the award.

Document Security Excellence award recognizes the Department of Revenue's enhancements to its driver's license process including: Ultra-violet image of the cardholder's portrait and date of birth on the back of the card; multi-colored, highly detailed holograms; a highly detailed ultra-violet image of the state flower; two ghost images of the cardholder's portrait in addition to the conventional photograph; and tactile printing. These security features make it one of the most secure and difficult to counterfeit driver's licenses in the country.

"A fraudulent driver's license or identification card can be the initial building block for more serious crimes," said Director Shelite. "Our focus is to ensure that a person pictured on a Kansas driver's license or identification card is who the card says they are. We are pleased to see our efforts recognized on a national level."

The coalition also honored eight Department of Revenue members with a special certificate of achievement to commend their hard work. Each personalized certificate is in recognition for tremendous contributions to the Department processes which provide Kansas citizens with an exemplary means of reliable identification.

Coalition president Brian Zimmer said, "Based on this year's annual assessment of anti-counterfeiting and anti-fraud protections, I'm pleased to make this award and to recognize the important security improvements achieved by the Kansas Department of Revenue."

"The Department of Revenue's multi-year team effort has produced a highly secure credential that will benefit Kansas residents for years to come," he continued.

Group to sing in Colby

Western Plains Arts Association will end its current season next week with a performance by the Diamond W Wranglers at 2 p.m. (Mountain Time) on Sunday at the Colby High School auditorium.

The group brings back childhood memories for older folks and makes new memories for the kids. Throughout the year they make their musical home at the Old Cowtown Museum in Wichita, an authentic Western town of the 1870s. They appear at the Empire House Theater. The group was known as the Prairie Rose Wranglers from 1999 to 2007.

The wranglers have appeared in concert from Carnegie Hall to the Great Wall of China, from Nashville and Branson to the Caribbean.

The program includes old ballads like "Streets of Laredo," western movie themes, turn modern country song into cowboy ballads, as well as original pieces.

The group includes Stu Stuart, Jim Farrell, Steve Crawford and Chip Worthington.

Admission is by season ticket or at the door; adults, $20 and students, $10.

Stu Stuart, Jim Farrell, Steve Crawford and Chip Worthington make up the Diamond W. Wrangles. They will sing at 2 p.m. on Sunday at Colby High School.

Trooper wins Kansas award

Kansas Highway Patrol Trooper and Public Relations Officer Tod Hileman has won the Kansas "People Saving People" award for 2013. Hileman serves in Troop D, which is based in Hays and covers northwest Kansas, including Sherman County.

The award was presented to Hileman last week during the annual Traffic Safety Conference, which was held in Wichita.

Sponsored by the Kansas Department of Transportation, the Federal Highway Administration, the National Highway Traffic Safety Administration, and the Federal Motor Carriers Safety Administration, the People Saving People award was presented to Trooper Hileman for his dedication to the cause of teen driving safety. Hileman personally established the peer-to-peer SAFE (Seatbelts Are For Everyone) program in 11 high schools across Northwest Kansas.

The program is an student-driven cooperative effort of students, educators, law enforcement and community leaders to increase teen seatbelt use through positive rewards and enforcement. It is designed to bring awareness to the importance of wearing a seatbelt and therefore reducing the number of motor vehicle related injuries and fatalities among Kansas high school students. Motor vehicle crashes are the leading cause of death for individuals between the ages of 15-17. In 2009, only 61 percent of Kansas teens aged 15 to 17 were wearing their seatbelt. Seventy-six percent of teens aged 14 to 19 that were killed in 2009 were not wearing their seatbelt.

The program began in Crawford County during the 2008-2009 school year. It has grown steadily with 40 participating Kansas counties and 100 high schools across the state.

Three years ago, Trooper Hileman assisted in implementing the program in six schools in three western Kansas counties. Last year, he aided and supported the six original schools and helped three more start their own SAFE programs. This year he has helped establish three additional programs. In total, he has been involved in helping start 11 of the 102 SAFE programs in Kansas. The six counties in northwest Kansas that participated in the program in 2012 experienced an average of 14 percent increase in teen seatbelt usage and their compliance rates were 5.7 percent higher than the state teen average.

Trooper Hileman uses his personal time to help secure funds that supports each SAFE program. After each program is established, he routinely visits the schools to provide education and support.

Tod has been a trooper with the Highway Patrol for 15 years. He and his family live in Hays.

Deadline approaches for programs

U.S. Department of Agriculture's Natural Resources Conservation Service State Conservationist Eric B. Banks has announced a second application cutoff date on Friday for the On-Farm Energy Initiative, Organic Initiative, and the Seasonal High Tunnel Initiative.

These initiatives are funded through the Environmental Quality Incentives Program and offer technical and financial assistance to eligible participants to install or implement structural and management practices on eligible agricultural land. Conservation practices must be implemented to NRCS standards and specifications.

Through the On-Farm Energy Initiative, NRCS helps producers work with an NRCS-approved technical service provider to develop agricultural energy management plans or farm energy audits that assess energy consumption on an operation. NRCS may also provide assistance to implement various recommended measures identified in the energy audit through the use of conservation practice standards offered through this initiative.

Through the Organic Initiative,

NRCS assists producers with installation of conservation practices on agricultural operations related to organic production. Producers currently certified as organic, transitioning to organic, or National Organic Program exempt will have access to a broad set of conservation practices to assist in treating their resource concerns while fulfilling many of the requirements in an Organic System Plan.

Through the Seasonal High Tunnel Initiative, NRCS helps producers implement high tunnels that extend growing seasons for high value crops in an environmentally safe manner. High tunnel benefits include better plant and soil quality and fewer nutrients and pesticides in the environment.

Socially disadvantaged, limited resource and beginning farmers and ranchers will receive a higher payment rate for eligible conservation practices applied.

Interested producers should contact their local office to see if they are eligible for these programs.

For information, go to www.ks.nrcs.usda.gov/programs or contact your local Service Center.

THE MIRACLE OF AMERICA

APRIL 23 @ 7:00 PM
MURRAY CENTER STUDIO A
NORTHWEST TECH CAMPUS
1209 HARRISON, GOODLAND, KS - 785.890.3641

Dr. Glenn J. Kimber is a Vietnam war veteran and well known private educator who worked to found the Freeman Institute. Dr. Kimber has also established several private schools across the United States (such as Benjamin Franklin Academies and Kimber Academies) and currently travels the country for the Thomas Jefferson Center for Constitutional Studies, teaching attendees about "the healing of America" based upon the Constitution of the United States.

from our viewpoint...

Private space flight is the horse to bet on

Having a Goodland native come back home and speak about private efforts in spaceflight brings the issue front and center, and the bottom line is: since government no longer has the money or the guts to pursue spaceflight with the same energy and enthusiasm of decades past, it is up to private companies to do it.

It's not as though private companies never contributed to spaceflight before. Whom do you think built all those famous spacecraft?

Take Apollo 11, for example. The number of private contractors that helped get Neil Armstrong and Buzz Aldrin to the moon is huge. To name a few, the command and service modules were built by North American Aviation; the lunar module was built by Grumman Aircraft Company; and the launch escape vehicle – which was there to allow the astronauts to abort a launch – was built by Lockheed Propulsion Company.

The immense Saturn V rocket that took them there was built jointly by Boeing, North American Aviation, Douglas Aircraft Company and IBM.

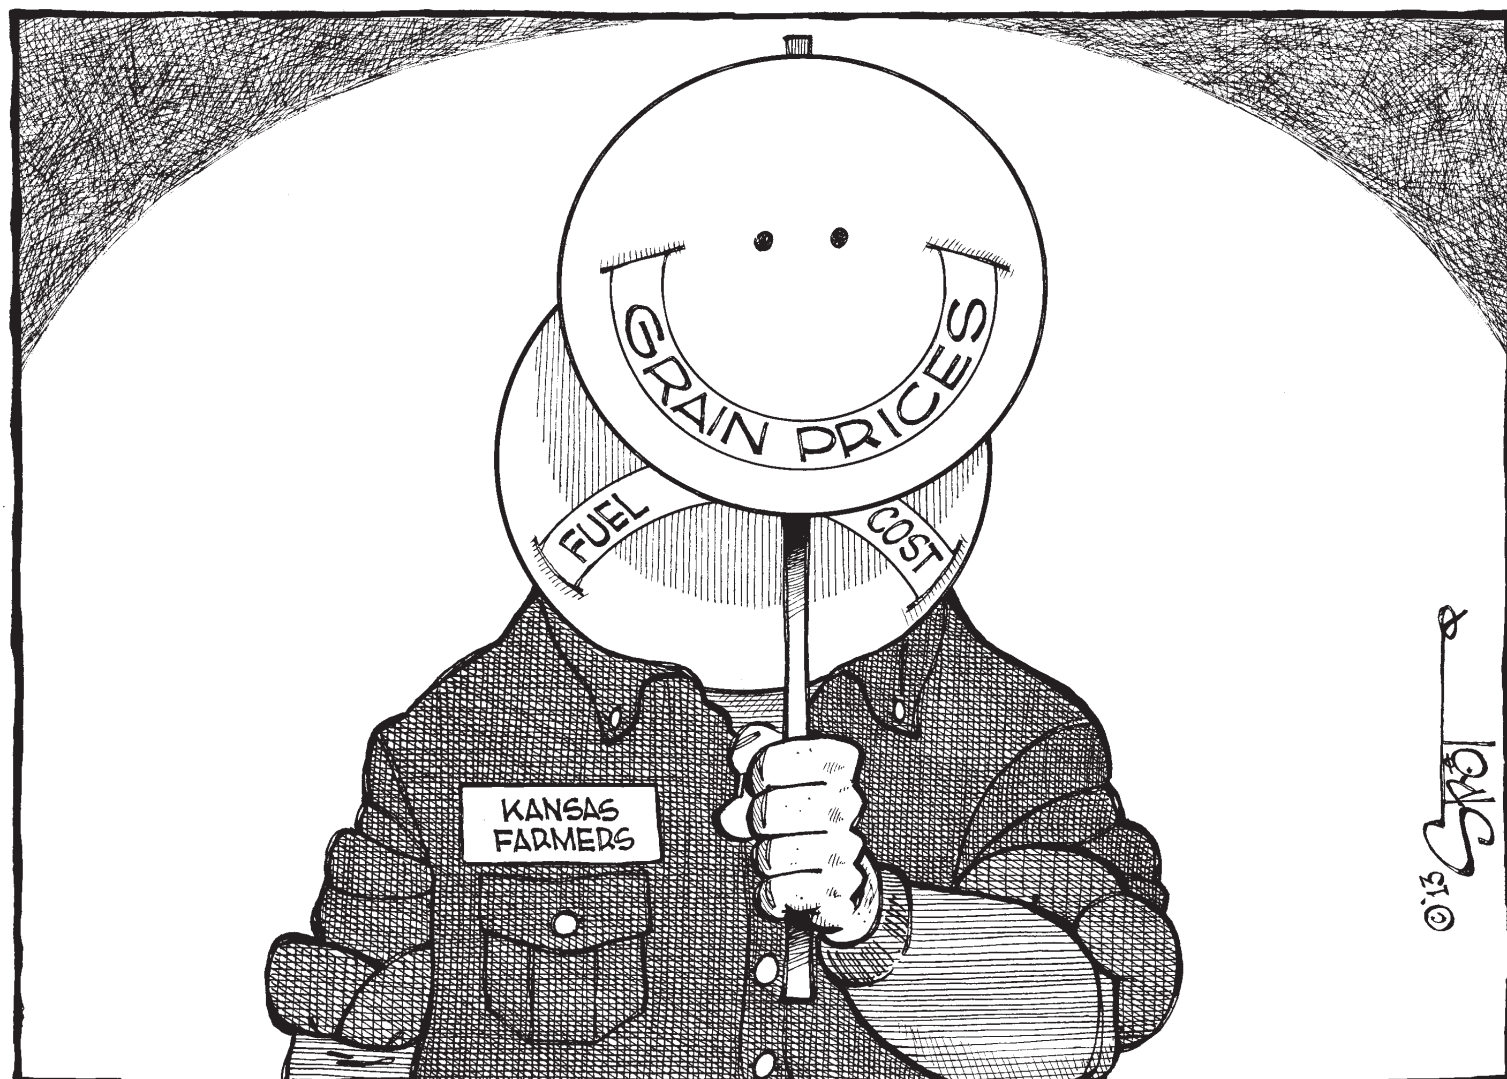

People often forget the contribution and innovation of these companies to that great achievement. When President John F. Kennedy made his fateful pronouncement that America would land a man on the moon before 1970, the United States had only a few manned missions under its belt. We didn't know how we were going to get someone to the moon, how to land on it, or how to get them back. It was only through the determination and ingenuity of designers, engineers and hundreds of other experts in both the public and private sectors that we achieved anything.

Today we're in a different situation. The shuttle fleet has been retired. The only operating spacecraft we have is a semi-secret Air Force shuttle. We rely on foreign spacecraft to get to the International Space Station and back. America has fallen behind.

But that's the public sector. In the private sector, American companies are making huge strides. Companies like SpaceX have launched successful spacecraft that are even now helping supply and maintain the space station.

It seems clear that moving forward is going to require more reliance on private companies. This may mean that for us to see a real Starship Enterprise, it might have to have a Starbucks or a Microsoft logo on it, but if that's what it takes, then so be it.

Big issues still before Legislature

It is great to be back in northwest Kansas after a long winter in Topeka. I will be in all my counties during the next three weeks attending different events.

The two biggest issues – the budget and tax plan for next year – have yet to be decided. The state has adopted a two-year budget plan. The conference committees on budget and tax have to reconcile their different plans into one uniform bill. The one constitutional duty of the Legislature is to pass a budget before the session ends, and a key component to the budget is tax legislation.

In the 120th District, I have not yet met, talked to or had an e-mail from anyone who feels the state should do away with its income tax. Most people are concerned about a reduction in services and an increase in the property

ward cassidy

• state rep.

Taking state dollars away from the Northwest Kansas Technical College and Colby Community College hurts our northwest Kansas economy, reduces programs available for our students and raises the cost of going to school.

The significant difference between the House and Senate tax plans is over how they treat the state sales tax. The House plan contains a 2 percent growth-in-revenue trigger, so that as the revenues grow above 2 percent from the previous year, the excess money would be used to continue to buy down income tax rates. The House plan would allow the state sales tax to drop from 6.3 percent to 5.7 percent on July 13, as it was promised under current law.

The Senate plan, however, would leave the sales tax at the current 6.3 percent instead of allowing it to drop by the scheduled 0.6 percent. The Senate plan would use the additional revenue from the sales tax to continue to buy down income-tax rates. The governor favors the Senate plan.

My own belief is that we should slow down the process until we see evidence of economic growth in the state.

Congress falls short on national security

Our system is based on the premise that better policy emerges if the president and Congress work together. It depends on Congress holding executive policies up to the light and weighing in with its own concerns.

Wherever you stood on Sen. Rand Paul's 13-hour filibuster to delay John Brennan's confirmation as CIA director, or on the Senate's confirmation hearings for Brennan and Defense Secretary Chuck Hagel, they all serve as a reminder of just how feeble Congress has proven to be when it comes to foreign policy.

This wasn't immediately obvious, of course. Paul's speech questioned whether there are limits on the president's power to use drones to kill Americans who've been declared "enemy combatants." But the CIA and military have been using drones overseas for years and this was the first time Congress really pondered the issue. That's a measure of its dereliction, not of stepping up to the plate. Why has it taken so long to see significant congressional review of the president's power to use drones?

Meanwhile, if you followed the confirmation hearings, you'd have to conclude that Congress thinks U.S. foreign policy centers on Israel, Cuba and the destroyed consulate in Benghazi, Libya. On the long list of significant foreign policy issues confronting the White House – the rise of China, a war looming with Iran, increased tensions on the Korean peninsula, the fragmentation of Syria, Libya, the spread of Al Qaeda to northern Africa – there's mostly been silence from the Congress. Our strategic framework agreement with Iraq? The agreement we're negotiating with Afghanistan? The key issue of when, where and how we commit American forces abroad? Congress has been missing in action.

This is not how it's supposed to be. Our Constitution gives Congress strong levers for dealing with foreign policy. It has oversight of the executive branch, and can hold hearings and demand information. It has the power of the purse and with it the ability to explore key issues of behavior and policy before approving the budget. It has the power to declare war and to raise and maintain an army and navy. In the Senate, it has the confirmation process, which allows senators to probe and evaluate policies.

Yet for the most part, Congress prefers deference to executive power. Most of its members, who know that their re-election rests on domestic issues, don't bother to gain the expertise or develop the political will to become potent and valuable foreign policy contributors, as the Constitution intended. Institutionally, Congress likes leaving decisions to the president and then blaming him if they turn out to be wrong – or it tries to have it both ways, as with Benghazi, cutting funds for State Department security and then criticizing the department for not having enough security.

The executive branch is hardly blameless. The White House, whether under Republican or Democratic control, typically sees Congress as a nuisance and an obstacle to be overcome, not a partner.

Yet that's a reason for Congress to try harder, not to fold. Our system is based on the premise that better policy emerges if the president and Congress work together. It depends on Congress to hold executive policies up to the light and to weigh in with its own concerns.

To do this, members need to be fully informed both about the complexities of foreign issues and about what the administration is doing. They need to make robust oversight commonplace, asking executive-branch policymakers to spell out and justify policies and their implementation. They need to use the power of the purse to grant or deny funds if their views are not taken into account. They need to develop the expertise – both among themselves and on staff – that would allow them to be both critic and partner in the development of foreign policy.

And above all, those members who do understand the ins and outs of foreign matters need to press Congress to set aside its reluctance to affect foreign policy. That is where the real failings lie – not with individual members, but with how Congress acts as an institution in the formulation of American foreign policy.

Developing American foreign policy is complicated, confusing and sometimes frustrating. But our country is at its strongest when it is unified and speaks with the voice not just of the president, but of the American people's representatives in Congress. It's time for Congress to shoulder its responsibilities on foreign policy.

April is Child Abuse Prevention Month

We all say that children are our priority, that they deserve to be happy and healthy and live in stable, loving homes. We also say that they are our future. Even more, when asked we say that we know child abuse and neglect is a serious problem; in fact research shows that 90 percent of the public continually asserts this.

Still, child abuse and neglect persists. It's true that child abuse has been shown to be on the decline nationally, but this trend is confused by ever-changing reporting laws and inconsistent data collection from state to state and community to community.

Equally as important, there is no national vision or plan for children, all children and their families. Nor are there any benchmarks which would allow us to know whether we are even successful in enhancing child and family well-being.

Yet we say that children are our future. In truth, we know more than ever what to do to prevent child abuse and neglect, sexual abuse

from our readers

• to the editor

and abusing head trauma.

But we need to take action. All adults, and all communities, must and can play a role in prevention. Neighbors can offer to babysit one another's children to help reduce the stress, frustration and isolation so many parents experience. People can contact the local media and ask why they don't talk about the prevention programming, such as home visiting, that already exists in Kansas. Or, they can ask policymakers and corporate leaders what their plan is for Kansas children and families.

We believe that we all need to take action, year-round, but we also know that we need somewhere to start, so why not April as we mark

Child Abuse Prevention Month.

During April you are going to see pinwheels spinning across Kansas, standing for the action someone took on behalf of children and families. Pinwheels are the new symbol of child abuse and neglect prevention in the U.S., with more than 650,000 distributed across the nation in 2012 as part of the Pinwheels for Prevention campaign, and more than three million since April, 2008.

We all need to be on the same page when it comes to children and families. And we need a plan. Because if we believe that children truly are our future, then we need to act now. Not next month or next year, but now.

currently works in construction for the county. Evert said he supported both candidates and felt both would do a good job, but he favored Vandiver. The commissioners made Blackheart assistant superintendent in addition to her duties as office manager at the county Road and Bridge Department. They also voted to make Roeder the noxious weed supervisor.

In other business, the commissioners:
 • Heard from Emergency Management Coordinator Ryan Murray, who said the Kansas Department of Emergency Management has approved the county's updated emergency management plan. The plan contains procedures for when an emergency is declared.

Murray said the next step will be for the commissioners to approve the plan, which signs it into law. Counties are required to have emergency management plans on file. The commissioners requested that Murray put together a presentation on what's in the plan for a future meeting.

Murray also updated the commissioners on the fire department's procedures for a tornado. With all the fire department vehicles and ambulances in one place, he said, some members of the public have expressed concern that they could all be destroyed by a tornado.

Murray said the Sherman County Rural Fire Department plans to split up its vehicles and send them out of the way if the city is in the path of a tornado warning, similar to what the ambulance service plans. The Goodland City Fire Department plans to keep its vehicles in town unless the fire station is directly in the path of a tornado.

• Approved continuing the agreement with Rawlins and Cheyenne counties to share emergency management.

• Approved contributing about $2,300 to Kansans for Balanced Resource Choices, a group opposing the listing of the Lesser Prairie Chicken as an endangered species. The southern quarter of Sherman county is considered to be habitat for the Lesser Prairie Chicken. Sheila Ellis and Linda Franklin made a presentation for the commissioners.

Ellis said to prevent a listing, there has to be significant technical or scientific evidence to support a finding of "not warranted" from the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service. She said the public comment period will be opened again in May, with a decision expected by Sept. 30.

Ellis said the group is trying to get the support of the affected counties to have more weight behind its protest of the listing. Commissioner Ken Klemm said the issue is about property rights. A listing allows the Fish and Wildlife Service to regulate business and agriculture practices on protected land.

• Approved selling a house in Kanorado that was seized in a drug raid last year by Sheriff's auction.

ing of the county commission last Tuesday. The meeting included the commissioners, City Manager Doug Gerber, County Attorney Brock Abbey and Goodland Star-News Editor Kevin Bottrell.

Gerber said the city and county used to meet regularly, but it had not been done in several years. In order to discuss city and county business, the meetings will be officially called into session for both bodies.

Klemm suggested the Wolak building, since it is a joint city and county building and will be finished enough to hold meetings by May 14.

In 1992 he start his own consulting firm GD&T Consultants. His second consulting job was for Starsys Research who worked on the rovers Spirit and Opportunity that are on Mars.

Leonhart said Opportunity still works after 10 years and it was only supposed to work for six months. They also worked on the Cassini Spacecraft that orbits Saturn.

Then Starsys was bought by SpaceDev Corporation. They primarily built hybrid rockets. They started to build a space plane for NASA. In 2008 they were bought by Sierra Nevada Corporation.

The biggest products of Sierra Nevada is surveillance equipment for the military. They have launched 4,000 projects and have had no failures. For the rover Curiosity it built the rockets that allow the small car sized rover to land on Mars.

Sierra Nevada's largest product is the space plane Dream Chaser. The space plane is launched into space on the top of a rocket. When returning it can land on a runway. It has wheels and a skid plate. It will be tested at Edward and Dreyfus Air Force Bases. It has cost $350 million to develop.

Leonhart said he is following his passion and looks forward to going to work.

New resources led support to brain injury survivor, family

A traumatic brain injury isn't visible, like a broken leg or the loss of a limb. Yet the effects of such an injury can impact physical, cognitive, emotional and behavioral functions and bring life and lifestyle changes for the survivor and his or her family.

A survivor of traumatic brain injury may have difficulty communicating effectively, performing basic life skills, maintaining independence — driving can be an issue — or returning to work, said Deb Sellers, Kansas State Research and Extension specialist on adult development and aging.

With falls the leading cause of such brain injuries, Sellers said that she sees traumatic brain injury as an emerging issue in the U.S. because of its aging population. One out of three older adults ages 65 and older, is expected to fall within the course of a year, she said.

Children also can be vulnerable, and so can teens, who tend to engage in more risky behaviors, said Sellers, who cited examples such as playground, sports, bicycle, auto and farm accidents.

Injuries from improvised explosive devices also have become the 'signature' injury resulting from conflicts in Iraq and Afghanistan, she said.

Sellers said the Brain Injury Association of America defines a traumatic brain injury as an alteration in brain function or other evidence of brain pathology caused by an external force.

It is different than a stroke or other types of internal injury to the brain,

Support offered

No one plans to have an accident or suffer a life-changing injury, but it can happen and catch us unaware — and unprepared.

In developing support materials for survivors of traumatic brain injuries and their families and communities, Deb Sellers, K-State Research and Extension specialist on adult development and aging, provides tips to also support recovery and rehabilitation in a variety of circumstances:

- Use person-first language, by speaking about the person rather than an injury or disability. Example: "I'd like to introduce you to my friend David, who is recovering from a traumatic brain injury," rather than "Meet David, a brain-injured person."
- Be respectful. Speak in a natural tone, and be patient when awaiting a response.

- Limit distractions that hamper communications by choosing a quiet spot, turning off the television, and setting aside other electronic devices.
- Provide extra cues, such as making a note of appointments or to-do lists.
- Ask questions as needed, and provide gentle reminders, if needed.
- Be specific when offering to help: Can I take you to physical therapy next Tuesday?
- Model acceptance.
- Volunteer.

Information about supporting rehabilitation and recovery from a traumatic brain injury or other accident or illness is available at www.TBIOptions.ksu.edu and www.ksu.edu/aging.

she added, because it has an external cause, such as a bump, jolt or blow to the head or penetrating injury.

Rehabilitation and recovery vary because no two injuries are alike, she said.

Most who experience the injury are unfamiliar with it and often at a loss to know how to locate resources for rehabilitation and recovery.

Sellers teamed with Jane Mertz Garcia, professor and speech language pathologist, communication sciences and disorders in the School of Family Studies and Human Services at Kansas State University, to apply for grant funding. The result is a resource guide named "TBIOptions."

With funding from Kansas' Social and Rehabilitation Services and the help of K-State Research and Extension agents across the state, the two worked with 28 communities which helped identify medical and community-based support services in four categories: community support; financial; health and related concerns, and treatment and rehabilitation.

Sellers and Garcia pooled the information to compile a list of community-based resources and create a website, including an interactive map for survivors, families and caregivers to match their needs to resources within their area.

They also sought grant funding to develop an educational program and materials called "TBIOptions" Promoting Knowledge.

The educators interviewed 14 traumatic brain injury survivors, families and caregivers and developed fact and tip sheets, available at K-State Research and Extension offices and online at www.TBIOptions.ksu.edu and www.aging.ksu.edu. The site includes videos.

The resources are intended to promote understanding among the general public and community members, and encompass three key topics:

- Create change through knowledge about traumatic brain injury.
- Create positive differences for people who experience traumatic brain injury.
- Create a supportive community for people who experience traumatic brain injury.

For survivors, the ultimate goal can be returning to work, said Sellers, who noted that rehabilitation can be a slow process, but one worth working on — and supporting.

More information about the project is available at: www.joe.org/joe/2012April/iw4.php.

Tree planting tips to help homeowners

Spring seems to have finally arrived, and with it, an interest in improving our landscapes. To help homeowners who are eager to plant trees, Kansas State University horticulturist Ward Upham provided 10 tree-planting tips.

1. Select the right tree for the site. To avoid problems, choose trees adapted to your location. Consider whether the tree produces nuisance fruit or if there are disease-resistant varieties available. For example, there are a number of crabapple varieties that are resistant to apple scab and rust diseases. Also consider the mature size of a tree to be sure you have enough room. Go to www.hfrr.ksu.edu/p.aspx?tabid=731 or ask a local nurseryman for suggestions.

2. Keep the tree well watered and in a shady location until planting. When moving the tree, lift it by the root ball or pot and not by the trunk.

3. Before planting, remove all wires, labels, cords or anything else tied to the plant. If left on, they may eventually girdle the branch to which they are attached.

4. Dig a proper hole. Make it deep enough so that the tree sits slightly above nursery level. Plant the tree on solid ground, not fill dirt. In other words, don't dig the hole too deep and then add soil back to the hole before placing the tree. The root flare (point where trunk and roots meet) should be visible. If it isn't, remove enough soil or media so that it is. The width of the planting hole is important. It should be three times the width of the root ball. Loosening the soil outside the hole so it is five times the diameter of the root ball will allow the tree to spread its roots faster.

5. Remove all containers from the root ball. Cut away plastic and peat pots; roll burlap and wire baskets back into the hole, cutting as much of the excess away as possible. If you can remove the wire basket without disturbing the root ball, do it. If roots have been circling around in the container, cut them and spread them out so they do not continue growing this way inside the hole and become girdling roots later in the life of the tree. Remove any excess soil from the top of the ball so that the root flare is visible.

6. Backfill the hole with the same soil that was removed. Amendments such as peat moss are likely to do more harm than good. Make sure the soil that goes back is loosed - no - no clods or clumps. Add water as you fill to ensure good root-to-soil contact and prevent air pockets. There is no need to fertilize at planting. Note: Adding organic matter to the larger area than just the planting hole can be beneficial, but it must be mixed in thoroughly with the existing soil. However, adding amendments to just the planting hole in heavy soil creates a "pot" effect that can fill with water and drown your new tree.

7. Don't cut back the branches of a tree after planting except those that are rubbing or damaged. The leaf buds release a hormone that encourages root growth. If the tree is cut back, the reduced number of leaf buds results in less hormone released and therefore fewer roots being formed.

8. Water the tree thoroughly once a week for the first season if there is insufficient rainfall.

9. Mulch around the tree. Mulch should be two to four inches deep and cover an area two or three times the diameter of the root ball. Mulching reduces competition from other plants, conserves moisture and keeps soil temperature closer to what the plants' roots prefer.

10. Stake only when necessary. Trees will establish more quickly and grow faster if they are not staked. However, larger trees or those in windy locations may need to be staked the first year.

The Goodland Rotary Club met for their regular weekly meeting at noon on Friday, April 5, in the meeting room at Northwest Kansas Technical College.

Club President Jenifer Sanderson welcomed the Rotarians back after the Easter break. Sanderson reminded the club of some upcoming events, including the annual Rotary District Conference in early May, and the Run For The Wall breakfast that the club produces each year.

Sanderson then turned the meeting over to the Rotarian of the day, Brian Linin.

Linin gave a slide presentation of his trip to China last fall with a delegation of Kansas Agriculture business and production leaders.

Linin noted that the delegation first stopped in Seoul, South Korea, with tours of agriculture production and meetings with officials there.

He noted that he was surprised at what a clean, modern city Seoul was, with all the amenities of any American city.

In contrast, the delegation's next stop, Beijing, China, with some twenty million people, wasn't as clean and contemporary as the Korean cities were.

Linin noted though, that China has a very busy economy with a constant amount of building construction going on all over the country, and many more people needing to work.

As in Korea, the Kansas delegation toured a variety of agricultural interests including a beef packing plant and corn fields.

Linin said that he was impressed by the cleanliness of the Chinese packing plants.

He noted that Chinese producers and industry have less regulations to abide by compared to American agriculture.

Linin and the Kansas agriculture group spent a total of a week on the Korean and China tour.

After the weekly drawing, won by Royal Reid, President Sanderson declared the Rotary meeting adjourned.

The next regular weekly meeting of the Goodland Rotary Club was at noon on Friday April 12, at Shiraz.

Visitors, and those interested in joining Rotary are always welcome to attend.

PARENTS AND GRANDPARENTS OF 2013 GRADUATES

Goodland High School; Brewster High School; Goodland Learning Center

As we plan our annual Graduation section, we would like to include parents or grandparents in the process by offering you a special ad in this section.

Put it in their scrapbook, send it off to family, but let that graduate know how proud you are of them! Place a baby picture or favorite childhood picture or a current picture if you like. Include a short note to your graduate. They are only a High School graduate once!

If you have a 2013 Graduate in the family and would like to honor them, call Kayla or Angela today for more information. Our office number is (785) 899-2338.

Spaces available:

1/16th display ad (2.5317 in. wide x 2.812 in. tall)=$25.00 (TEXT ONLY)

FUN BY THE NUMBERS

Like puzzles? Then you'll love sudoku. This mind-bending puzzle will have you hooked from the moment you square off, so sharpen your pencil and put your sudoku savvy to the test!

Here's How It Works:
Sudoku puzzles are formatted as a 9x9 grid, broken down into nine 3x3 boxes. To solve a sudoku, the numbers 1 through 9 must fill each row, column and box. Each number can appear only once in each row, column and box. You can figure out the order in which the numbers will appear by using the numeric clues already provided in the boxes. The more numbers you name, the easier it gets to solve the puzzle!

Cowboys get rained out at home Friday

By Pat Schiefen
The Goodland Star-News
Despite the game being called on account of rain, the Goodland High School baseball team beat Ulysses 5-3 at home Friday. The game went five innings.

The Cowboys came into the scheduled doubleheader against Ulysses with a 3-3 record, having won their last two games with Wray. They improved to 4-3. Next action for the Cowboys is at 3 p.m. today at Colby.

Taylen Smith pitched for the Cowboys. In the top half of the first inning, the lead-off batter for Ulysses hit a single to left field. After Smith threw two strikeouts, the runner tried to advance to third but was tagged out.

The lead-off batter for Goodland was first baseman John Hendrich, who hit a pop fly right over second base and was safe at first. He then stole second and third. Center fielder Tyler Amothor struck out, then Gunner Helton hit a double to center field, earning an RBI when Hendrich scored. Taylen Smith was next and he hit a pop up in center field that went near the fence for a double, scoring Helton to make it 2-0. Smith got over to third on a pitching error, but missed a chance to run for home. He got out on a fielder's choice when Kelby Smith hit right to the pitcher. Left fielder Tyler Gastineau struck out to end the inning.

In the top of the second, Ulysses' first two batters struck out. The Tigers got runners on first and third, but Smith got a strikeout to get out of the inning with no damage done. John Peden walked to open the bottom half of the second. Cy Paxton got out when his fly ball was caught by the pitcher, Luke Avila struck out and Hendrich got out when he was tagged at first.

In the top of the third the first three batters were out. In the bottom of the third it was beginning to sprinkle. Amthor led off the batting and walked. He stole second and third and scored when Kelby Smith batted him in later. Helton was out on a fly ball caught by the Ulysses center fielder. Taylen Smith hit a single. Kelby Smith was out at first but picked up an RBI. Gastineau was thrown out at first to end the inning. The Cowboys led 3-0.

The first batter for Ulysses at the top of the fourth hit a line drive to first for the out. Helton caught the pop fly and the last batter struck out.

In the bottom of the fourth Peden struck out. Paxton walked to first, stole second, went to third on a wild pitch and scored.

Avila was next and walked, was caught in run down but made it safely to second on an error by Ulysses. He then advanced to third and when Hendrich hit to center. Hendrich was thrown out on a fielder's choice, but drove Avila in to make it 5-0. Amthor hit a ball to short stop but was safe at first. Helton's fly was caught in center field to end the inning.

In the top of the fifth the first two Ulysses batters scored to make it 5-2. Smith picked up two strikeouts, but another runner scored on a wild pitch to make it 5-3. Smith struck out one more to get out of the inning. In the bottom of the fifth, Goodland left a runner on second when the game was called during Kelby Smith's turn at bat. Enough innings had been played for a full game, giving Goodland a 5-3 win.

Softball team goes 2-2 on road trip to Garden City and Ulysses

The Goodland High School softball team lost a pair of road games to the Garden City Lady Buffs on a windy Thursday.

The Cowgirls hung on in game one, taking the lead several times, including the seventh inning, but the Lady Buffs pulled ahead to win 10-9. In game two, the Cowgirls were shut out 10-0.

With the losses, the Cowgirls fell to 5-3 so far this season. They swept Ulysses on the road Friday, improving to 7-3. They were scheduled to play Colby at home Monday. Next action will be 3 p.m. (Mountain Time) on Friday at Lakin.

In game one Cowgirls scored four runs in the top of the first, the last coming off a Megan Siruta base hit. In the bottom of the first, Garden City scored two runs on a double. Another run scored on a base hit to left field to make it 4-3.

In the top of second Paige Phillips walked, then Lindsay Bauman hit a line drive that was missed by the Garden City outfielder. Bauman got to second and Phillips to third. Gabby Rangel got a base hit to drive in Phillips. Briana White got a base hit to drive in Bauman to make it 6-3. Hope Cochran struck out, then Miranda Hernandez hit into a double play.

In the bottom half of the inning, the Lady Buffs got runners on first and third. One runner came home on a passed ball to make it 6-4. Another scored on a second passed ball to make it 6-5.

the top of the third. In the bottom of the inning, the Lady Buffs got the tying run to third on a sacrifice bunt, but she was left stranded.

In the top of the fourth, Phillips walked and got over to second. Bauman and Rangel got out, then White hit a single, advancing Phillips to third. Phillips then scored on an error by the Lady Buff's shortstop to make it 7-5. Cochran got to first on the play. Hernandez grounded out to end the inning.

Stephani DeLaRosa picked up her third and fourth strikeouts of the ballgame in the bottom of the fourth. One run scored to make it 7-6.

The Cowgirls were unable to score in the top of the fifth, but the Lady Buffs tied the game up at 7-7 in the bottom half of the inning. Garden City held the Cowgirls scoreless again in the top of the sixth. In the bottom of the sixth, Garden City took an 8-7 lead on a base hit. DeLaRosa threw a strikeout to get the Cowgirls out of the inning.

In the top of the seventh, Hernandez got aboard on an error. Amber Smith struck out, then Siruta hit a fly ball that fell in between the Garden City outfielders. DeLaRosa grounded out, but both runners advanced. Phillips hit a double, driving in Hernandez and Siruta to give the Cowgirls back the lead 9-8. Bauman flied out to end the inning.

Garden City had one more shot to tie or go ahead in the bottom of the seventh, and they got things started with a leadoff triple to center field. The Lady Buffs tied the game 9-9 and got the winning run to third with one out. A base hit won the game for Garden City 10-9.

The Cowgirls couldn't find their rhythm in game two, which began with eight straight strikeouts for Garden City. The Lady Buffs took a 2-0 lead in the bottom of the first on a pair of unearned runs. In the top of the second, White, Cochran and Hernandez struck out. The Cowgirls were able to hold Garden City scoreless in the bottom half of the inning.

In the top of the third, Smith became the seventh straight Cowgirl retired by a strikeout. Siruta was also struck out, but DeLaRosa got a base hit to end the streak, but Phillips struck out to end the inning.

In the bottom of the third, Garden City scored another three runs, one earned, two on errors. They would score two more runs in the bottom of the fourth to make it 7-0.

The Cowgirls were retired in order again in the top of the fifth, while Garden City increased their lead to 9-0 in the bottom half of the inning. The Cowgirls fell in order, making 15 total strikeouts for the Lady Buffs, who scored their final run in the bottom of the sixth, ending the game at 10-0 due to the 10-after-five run rule.
