

Broken ribs don't stop time, life

Time keeps moving on even with broken ribs. Further looking has shown five broken ribs on the left side and two on the right side.

While I've never had the severe pain with the two, they are still there.

The doctor said I've got good reason to grunt, groan, squeal and even yell when I move. The pain is much less intense due to the healing process, but with the excellent care of medical people who have been wonderful in caring for me. It would be most difficult to pick out one or two.

I've met several who comment about the newspaper column. In fact, one lady came to my room looking for the newspaper lady. We had a nice visit discussing our ailments.

Listening to hers made my own seem very small. I hope our visit helped her get less depressed. Maybe we'll meet again while I'm here. She's been in town for a relatively short time and hasn't made many friends.

I'm glad I could bring a smile onto her face. Welcome, Lela, and get better. Maybe I'll be able to get to your house after I'll be allowed to do such things. In the meantime, I pray you'll improve.

The doctor is happy with my progress, and I may get out in a couple of days. I hope so.

A new member in the population made her entry via C-section Monday evening. Ronie and David welcomed their first newborn, a daughter, Shelby, at 9 pounds, 8 ounces, and 21 inches.

I was privileged to see her pictures, and believe me, she didn't look newborn. Congratulations to other relatives on this new arrival.

I had my therapy this morning. I have been using stairs, and they are pleased with my ability. All is doing okay, but a few movements are still very painful but getting better.

I know there are many negative remarks by people in the community, but I can't be one. In fact, the attention to my needs and care have been great. The bathing is great in the new tub; it is A-one.

They put you in with a special wheelchair; the water pulsates from jets and feels great on my ouches. They shampoo your hair, put in rollers and comb it when dry. They did my nails and just pamper you and your needs.

I wish I had a tub like this in my bathroom. I'm afraid the cost puts a halt on getting one.

I have been doing a lot of walking with an aide at my side, hospital rule. I could do it alone but still have an aide with me.

I had a meeting with various hospital personnel about how I'm improving. It seems I'm getting very close to going home.

As I said before, my care has been wonderful. It would be impossible to pick out who would be the best, so I'll say, "Thank you to one and all."

I will rest a few minutes; lunch is over and then my afternoon therapy session. I will finish this later this afternoon.

As usual, the calendar with birthdays and anniversaries is at home, so I will have to wait until I get home.

Sincere sympathy to those mourning the passing of someone special. These things are very difficult at any time, but the coming of Memorial Day makes it especially hard, at least for me, as I think about those I've lost. One must keep in mind that one day we'll all be once again united.

May God guide and keep you during these difficult days and those in the future.

There's not much more news that I can tell about. Remember the departed whether service people or family and friends. Have a safe holiday, as I think there will be much travel. Take care until next week.

Sunflower 4-H Club meets for Parents' Night

The May meeting of the Sunflower 4-H Club was held at 7 p. m. Monday, May 17, at the United Methodist Church Fellowship Hall. It was Parents' Night, so parents took over their children's positions for the meeting.

Steve Raymer called the meeting to order and led the club in the Pledge of Allegiance and the 4-H pledge. Roll call, "What is your favorite 4-H project?" was answered by 16 members, two leaders and 12 parents.

Kelly Studer led the group in singing "She'll Be Coming Around the Mountain."

Jeanne Irvin gave the secretary's and treasurer's reports. The club voted to buy a tape recorder to record radio spots and to give $50 for scholarships for camp.

Leader Cris reminded members of important upcoming dates for the fair and other 4-H events. The fair theme this year is "Hot Fun in the Summertime."

Diane Krayca introduced the program with Gordon Pettibone doing a demonstration on the correct way to whip egg whites. Austin Rains gave bus safety tips, and Caleb Rains reminded members of tips for safe four-wheeler riding.

Helen Dobbs led the group in playing "Break the Balloon." Refreshments were served by the Rains and Hendrich families.

The next meeting will be at 7 p.m. Monday, June 21.
