Seven students travel to Nashville

Seven Goodland students participated in the International DECA Career Development Conference at the Opryland Hotel in Nashville, Tenn., last month.

Goodland High School DECA was one of the two Kansas chapters recognized for community service and membership; a Goodland student graduated from the Leadership Development Academy; and two of the group's projects were top 21 finalists.

Nicole Titus and Deanna Thompson received gold level certification for their free enterprise project. They were third out of 20 in their category, 140 projects having been randomly divided into seven categories. First and second place finishers went on to the second round.

Erinn Abernathy, Ana McClung and Emily Burkett also received gold level certification and finished third out of 20 but in the learn and earn project. Again, 140 projects from across the country
