

Youth soccer taught the British way in Goodland

Dawn Venturas (left), one of about 400 soccer coaches from Challenger British Soccer in the U.S. for the summer, smiled as she watched her students practice their skills Tuesday morning at North Elementary School. The week-long camp, sponsored by the Goodland Activities Center, was taught to two different age groups 4-5 and 6-14 years. About 20 students from Goodland and Dodge City attended. Venturas led her students (right) in an exercise called "Crabs and Fishes" in which they try to maneuver the ball past the "crabs" by using ball-handling techniques. Venturas, a native of Zimbabwe, is a student at Cardiff University in South Wales who has been playing soccer "since I could walk."

About 60,000 students will attend the camps throughout the U.S., involving between one and 10 coaches depending on anticipated enrollment. The coaches are hosted by American families during their stay at each location, in exchange the families' children get to attend the camps for free.
