Bride is guilty of bad manners, poor planning

DEARABBY: I received a wedding invitation from "Lindy," the sister of my co-worker, "Lara." I don't know Lindy personally, but I assumed that Lara had asked her to invite my husband and me because we often socialize together.

When the invitation arrived, I immediately RSVP'd that we would attend. When I told Lara, she seemed pleased.

About three weeks before the wedding, Lindy called to say she had "inadvertently" sent me the invitation thinking I was someone else she knew. She said she had too many guests, and therefore I was your paths will cross again. being uninvited! I responded graciously, even though I felt humiliated. Lara never mentioned the subject to me.

were invited. Now I feel stupid. ery day for months on our home Was this rude, or is this kind of computer. I have tracked it using thing no big deal? — LEFT OUT IN LOUISVILLE

DEAR LEFT OUT: The bride overbooked her wedding, and the way she cut the guest list was brutal. Please don't blame Lara for her sister's bad manners, and don't waste time and energy holding a grudge. Since you don't know Lindy personally, it's unlikely

DEAR ABBY: My husband, "George," and I have been married a year and are expecting a baby. I recently discovered that he has By the way, other co-workers been viewing gay pornography ev-the history file, and finally confronted him.

George says it is just curiosity and that he is not gay or bisexual. He says he has never been with a man, nor would he want to. George did admit he has been viewing those sites for about three years.

This has left me feeling betrayed and questioning my husband's sexuality. How can a churchgoing, married man who's expecting a baby, who appears normal and heterosexual, be viewing gay pornography Web sites daily?—TRUST-ING IN TEXAS finds them interesting and exciting and is getting something out of it. Bear in mind that being gay does not prevent a person from being religious, married, virile (or fertile), or "normal" in appearance. Your husband may be so deeply closeted that he hasn't even admitted to himself that he's gay. Your next move should be to insist that you and your husband consult a marriage counselor.

DEAR ABBY: I am a 11-yearold girl who wears glasses. I was wondering: When is a good age to sponsible enough to handle conget contact lenses? I realize that it tact lenses.

DEARTRUSTING: Because he is a responsibility, but how can I tell if I'm responsible enough? -WISHING FOR CONTACTS IN NAPA, CALIF.

> DEAR WISHING: That's something you and your parents should ask your eye doctor. I recently read that although doctors used to discourage children under the age of 12 from wearing contacts, the age barrier has recently been revised downward. If you are responsible about chores, school assignments and your grooming, I see no reason you wouldn't be re-
