

Center to spread message: ‘It’s OK to say No Way’

The Regional Prevention Center and community leaders intend to spread the news “It’s Okay To Say No Way!” to alcohol, drugs and tobacco to youths and families.

The new ongoing media campaign was funded by a grant from the Office of Juvenile Justice and Delinquency Prevention. Kids today face many challenges. Being able to say “No Way!” to alcohol, drugs and tobacco is definitely one of them.

We are ready to give kids the facts and the words to help them fight unhealthy choices in their community. The project will continue in Sherman County for the next four years to help reach our youth and encourage healthy choices.

The National Commission Against Drunk Driving suggests the following tips (for a complete list please call the Regional Prevention Center at 899-3848 or e-mail crisl@st-tel.net):

Tips for youths:

- It is illegal in all 50 states to drink

someone to talk to, such as a friend, a sibling or a teacher.

- Involve yourself in positive activities.
- Not everyone drinks.
- Encourage your school/community organizations to host alcohol-and-drug-free activities.
- Be a leader, not a follower.
- Work with groups in your area to spread the message that it is cool to be sober.
- Remember, alcohol lessens inhibitions. You could do something you do not want to do which could ruin a bright and promising future.

Tips for Parents:

- Parents often underestimate their role in preventing underage drinking. In reality, parents can do a great deal to shape their children’s beliefs and behavior.

- Don’t wait until your children are teenagers to start talking with them about alcohol. Begin shaping their attitudes early, especially because alcohol use often starts in middle school.

- Establish and enforce rules against underage drinking. Be clear and consistent in the rules and the consequences for violating the rules.

- Be a positive role model. Make sure that your behavior is appropriate and that you are a responsible host. Remember, what you do counts far more than what you say.
- Encourage and praise your children for the good things they do. Participate in their lives and know what they are doing and with whom.

- If you suspect that your child is drinking, don’t stick your head in the sand. Talk to your child and secure qualified professional help if necessary.

- If you are going out of town, have a responsible adult stay at your house.

- Call the police if you witness underage drinking.

Tips for Communities:

- Use community centers/halls to host non-alcohol parties for under-21 youths.

- Work with parents and community groups to share information and coordinate activities.

- Volunteer to work with youths to help them develop peer leadership and peer pressure resistance skills.
- Write letters to the editor on the need for more attention to the issue of underage drinking.
- Send letters congratulating the local police department on their underage drinking enforcement efforts.

Tips for Schools:

- Establish a firm “no use” policy for participation in all team activities.

ties. Enforce the policy with no exceptions.

- Use school cafeteria/gymnasium to host non-alcohol parties for high school students.

- Host “open gym” or “lock-ins” for area youths at your high school.

- Work with your local law enforcement officials to educate youths on the legal consequences of underage drinking.

- Offer media literacy training in your school to educate young people about the effects of alcohol advertising.

- Coordinate education programs aimed at parents and/or guardians regarding underage drinking issues.

- Produce a calendar which lists positive alternatives for students.

- Recognize students who have done an outstanding job in underage drinking prevention and education.

- Develop and promote programs which increase self-esteem, leadership skills and individual responsibility.
