Basketball, supper to support music

By Sharon Corcoran

The Goodland Star-News

Goodland business people, school staff and former music students will take to the court to raise money for music scholarships this week.

The business people will take on Goodland school staff plus former music students in the Music Boosters’ Basketball Madness game at 7 p.m. Thursday in the Max Jones Fieldhouse. Proceeds will go to the boosters.

A soup supper will begin at 5 p.m. and run until the food is gone. Steve Evert, a farmer and emergency medical technician who has a reputation for cooking a mean pork, will barbecue pork for sandwiches, said Connie Grieve, president of the boosters, and there will be homemade vegetable soup, chicken noodle soup, chips, drinks and pie.

The X-Pressos will sing the National Anthem and will perform at half time, and LeChantes (ladies chorale) and the pep band will perform throughout the evening.

Those planning to play for the school staff plus team are Randy Berls, Brent Flanders, Connie Livengood, Jason Hickson, Travis

Witman, Brian Bartels, Tremon Kizer, Brian Linin, John Dautel, Curt Minner, Jon McLean and Andy Scheopner.

Those planning to play for the business team are Sid Unruh, Jay Herl, Cliff Leach, Dr. Travis Daise, Jay Jolly, Steve Jimenez, Danny Archer, Shad Sheldon, Trevor Linton, Duane Timm and Josh Dechant.

The Music Boosters are raising money for a scholarship program, Grieve said, for students who want to pursue a degree in music. How much the scholarships will be and how many will be given depends on how much money is raised, she said.

This is the second year for the game; last year, money was raised for the boosters’ programs and equipment for the music department at the high school.

The boosters helped pay for kids to go on trips, Grieve said. The group holds a reception on Sunday after the high school musical in the fall, Grieve said, and after the X-Pressos guest night in May.

Besides the players, she said, referees, a scorekeeper and an announcer are volunteering for the game.

Goodland man represents New York Life Insurance

Scott J. Weber of Goodland has been named as an agent for the Colorado General Office of New York Life Insurance Co.

Weber has a degree in small business management from Garden City Community College. He was born and raised in Goodland, graduating from Goodland High School in 1995, and has lived here all of his life, except while in college. He lives here with his wife Kayla; daughter Kaitlyn, 7; son Tristan, 5; and newborn son Tayke.

He has been active in the community, owning several businesses, coaching K-18 baseball and serving on boards at his church and at the Chamber of Commerce. He was an assistant manager at Gibson’s Discount Center.

Weber

Weber said he feels privileged and honored to have the position at New York Life, so he can continue to work with the people of Goodland.

Mark Biren, managing partner of the Colorado General Office, said he is delighted to have Weber in the company. His eagerness to help families as they work to protect their financial futures will be beneficial, Biren said.

New York Life is a Fortune 100 company, the largest mutual life insurance company in the United States and one of the largest in the world. It was founded in 1845 with headquarters in New York City.

matters of record

Accidents

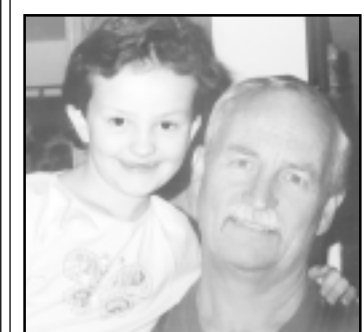

The following accidents have been reported by the Goodland Police Department:

March 24 — Inez A. Bennett was pulling into a parking spot at Wal-Mart in a 1986 Ford and struck a parked 2001 Pontiac, owned by Angela Benavides, cracking the paint.

March 28 — David Livengood was backing a 1999 GMC pickup from a parking stall at 13th and Walnut and hit Brandon Cowan, a pedestrian bent over to pick up a coin from the street.

March 30 — Tharon L. Barber was pulling a 1987 Ford Bronco II into the east parking lot at 316 E. Eighth. The throttle on the vehicle stuck, and the Ford could not stop and hit the wall.
