

Supreme Court told insurance company to pay up

By Evelyn Ward

April 15, 1905: Supreme Court Confirms Decision of the Lower Court in Hotel Case — The Kansas supreme court, in the case of Reta Farley versus the National Mutual Insurance association, which case was appealed by defendant after trial in the district court of Sherman County, has just handed down a decision for the plaintiff, Reta Farley. Now the insurance company must pay the judgment, as the last appeal has been exhausted.

This case will be remembered as the Commercial Hotel fire in Goodland, when, besides the hotel, Leonard's fine brick and half a dozen small frame buildings were completely destroyed.

There was considerable excitement at the time, and the insurance company refused to pay the loss on the alleged grounds that Landlady Reta Farley had burned the hotel for the insurance. She owned the furnishings and equipment, but not the building.

Both plaintiff and defendant were ably represented, and in spite of the reasonable suspicion that the hotel was intentionally set on fire, the evidence of such alleged act was not conclusive to the jury that tried the case. The judgment rendered by the district court for plaintiff was $879. The policy of insurance was written for $1,000.

April 16, 1905: "No sir, we are today in history

not dead, and we have $20 in our treasure" was the happy answer of a pretty maiden to a young bachelor who thought that the Inter Sese club of Goodland was dead and buried long ago.

"Well, didn't it serve the purpose it was organized for — to break up the Goodland Bachelor club?" was his reply of explanation.

"Y-e-s; but we didn't expect to do it by causing a quarrel in the bachelor club; we thought to domesticate you, one by one," smiling and playing with her apron string as she said so.

However, the club is of the quick and not among the dead, which is evidenced by the fact that Monday night the club spirit, after a few gasps and spasmodic jerking of its members, sprung upon its feet and feels real well — $20 in its handbag. We hope it will now go forward and in the name of Venus and Juno conquer, one by one.

April 17, 1905: Muldrow News — Chester Albright has bought a telephone and will be connected with the line the first of the week. — Merl Smith had a runaway with a four horse team but no serious damage was done except tearing down about eighty rods of telephone fence. — David Robinson had a three-horse team break loose from a plow and run away, seriously injuring a valuable young horse. — The little baby of Mr. and Mrs. T.J. Wilson was poisoned by eating lye soap and is in serious condition. It is not known if the accident will prove fatal or not. — R.A. Smith has been busy setting out 1,000 honey locust trees around a place where he will plant fruit trees.

April 18, 1905: Silver Wedding — Mr. and Mrs. L.A. Chatfield Celebrate Twenty Fifth Anniversary — At the country home of Mr. and Mrs. L.A. Chatfield, a goodly number of their friends met in remembrance of their 25th wedding anniversary.

About fifty invitations were sent out, but on account of the cold, disagreeable weather, only about half the number invited were present. Among the guests present were Mr. Thomas Simmons of Norton, Mrs. Henry Fletcher of Spokane, Wash., Mrs. Troyer of Havelock, Neb., and a Mr. Harper of Winfield, Kan., and Mrs. Joseph Cullins, Sr. of Goodland.

Mr. and Mrs. Chatfield were presented with a number of pieces of very handsome silverware. Silver cracker jar, Mr. and Mrs. E.J. Scott; silver napkin ring, Mr. and Mrs. H.T. Dimmitt; silver teaspoons, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Sylvester; silver teaspoons, Mr. and Mrs. William Brinkmier; butter knife, Mrs. Anna Clark; cracker jar, Mr. and Mrs. A.J. Atherton; fruit knife, Mr. and Mrs. Nye; meat fork, Dan Modeen; pickle tongs, Walter Modeen; syrup pitcher, Mr. and Mrs. John McCall; gravy ladle, Mr. and Mrs. W.M. Errington; meat fork, Mr. and Mrs. Pingree, Nunda, Ill.; cream ladle, Mr. and Mrs. H. Rung; toothpick stand, Mr. and Mrs. Harper; butter dish, Cecil Modeen; pickle castor, Mr. and Mrs. Sperry.

At half past twelve, an elegant dinner was served. The room was beautifully decorated with red and green paper, festooned from ceiling to corners of room, and beautiful flowers. All had a good social time, and at a late hour, the guests departed for home, expressing the wish that Mr. and Mrs. Chatfield might live to enjoy their golden wedding. A Guest
