Garden honoring Sen. Clark to be dedicated in May

By Jan Katz Ackerman

The Colby Free Press Sen. Stan Clark and Logan County residents who have served in the military will be dedicated in Oakley next month.

"It will be called the 'Garden of Honor,' and we'll have stones for the branches of service and whoever served from the area," said Larry Rowlison, one of the men who came up with the idea for the garden.

A dedication ceremony will begin at 1 p.m. Mountain Time on Sunday, May 15.

The garden will be inside the city park A memorial garden honoring the late north of the Oakley Public Library and Fick Fossil and History Museum at 700 W. Third. Rowlison, with Bill Parke, Mike McCafferty and Frank Munk, Oakley vetcauses, came up with the plan.

"We'll have stones with names on them," Rowlison said," for those who served in the work for us," Rowlison said. "They are Army, Navy, Coast Guard, Air Force and Marines, and one extra stone.

"We'll also have a silhouette of a soldier Glenn Good." kneeling by the grave of a fallen solider with an M16 in the ground, and in the future, we'll have a tank and anti-aircraft gun on display."

Most of the work is being done by Parke, with the help of the Oakley High School erans who are avid supporters of veteran Chapter of the Future Farmers of America (FFA).

"The Oakley FFA is doing a lot of the cutting the aluminum and staking the side-

In the center will be the Stan Clark Memorial Garden, and on the perimeter of the garden honoring Clark will be the Veteran's Gardens. walks with the help of their instructor, Landscaping, spearheaded by Jane Weiland and Sally Runnalls, will be done by the Oakley Garden Club.

"The Oakley Garden Club is doing the landscaping," Rowlison said, "and anyone who wants to donate money for flowers can contact Jane or Sally.

"This is a planned landscaping, and we'll need money for the flowers. As soon as the cement work is done, we'll start to plant."

To donate to the flower fund, call Weiland at 672-4041 or Runnalls at 672-4910.

Henbit is popping up in lawns

The plants with the little purple flowers that are starting to make themselves known in home lawns are called henbit.

If you are not sure this is what you have, check the stems. If they are square rather than round, you have henbit.

Though it actually comes up in the fall, most people do not pay much attention to this weed until it starts to flower. Trying to kill it at this late stage with a herbicide is usually a waste of time and money.

Though the plant may be burned back, it will rarely be killed. So what do we do? Remember, this is a winter annual; it comes up in the fall, matures in the spring and dies as soon as it starts to get hot.

All that we can do now is keep it mowed until nature takes its course. However, we can do something next fall that will help next spring. Henbit usually mid-October.

Spraying with 2,4-D, Weed-B-Gon, Weed Free Zone, Weed Out or Trimec in early November can go a long way toward eliminating henbit next spring.

The plants are small during the fall and relatively easy to control. Choose a day that is at least 50 degrees Fahrenheit so the henbit is actively growing and will take up the chemical.

Spot treating will probably be needed in the spring to catch the few plants that germinate late. Use Weed Free Zone, Weed Out, Weed-B-Gon, Trimec or one of the special henbit herbicides early before the henbit has put on much growth.

Groups celebrate Week of Young Child

The week of April 3-9 was the Week of the Young Child, a time when people and organizations across the nation join together to celebrate the learning opportunities of young children and recognize our shared responsibilities for helping children make those opportunities count.

The week's celebration culminated with the second annual early childhood recognition event sponsored by Smart Start Northwest Kansas and Colby Community College.

Area early childhood educators were recognized for their work toward excellence through education and training. The West Elementary Early Childhood Class was recognized as being the first preschool in northwest Kansas to receive the National Association For the Education of Young Children accreditation.

Judi's Rainbow Preschool, owned by Judi Vignery, received recognition for their efforts toward the National Association For the Education of Young Children accreditation process. Roberta Colson, a child care facilities displayed their private daycare owner, was recognized for her participation in the Excellent Care for Early Learning (EXCEL) program and work toward the Child Development Associate credential.

Cris Riebel, teacher at Creation Kids Preschool, received recognition for completion of the Child Development Associate and for receiving her associates degree in early childhood education through the Smart Start Scholarship.

Kim Amack and Ginger Chadwick, private daycare owners, were recognized for their work toward their Child Development Associate. Carlene Fenner received recognition as a Teacher Educator and Compensation Help (T.E.A.C.H.) scholarship recipient.

Leaf rust survived winter; fungicide needed to kill it

Last year, area farmers saw something that happens rarely in Kansas a fall infestation of leaf rust.

The leaf rust lived throughout the summer on the volunteer wheat. When the new wheat emerged last fall, rust spores were blown onto the younger, healthier plants.

These spores, coupled with warm, foggy days, allowed the rust to infect the wheat and begin reproducing. All indications were that the leaf rust would not survive winter in Kansas. The below-freezing temperatures in northwest Kansas usually prevent survival of wheat spores.

Just recently, to the surprise of agronomists and plant pathologists larger and had more prolific growth ments may be necessary this year.

In research from Bob Boden, a plant pathologist at K-State, as little as 25 percent leaf rust severity on the flag leaf at flowering can result in a 15 percent yield loss. Some of the fungicides available are Tilt, Quadris, Headline and Propimax.

Another concern is the availability of these products in light of the concern with soybean rust in the United States. It may be a good idea to check with your source and have everything lined up now instead of waiting until the week that you need to spray.
