Ex-Cowboy named wrestler of the year

Former Cowboy Bryce Abbey was honored by the Kansas Wrestling Coaches Association last month as one of three College Senior Wrestlers of the Year.

Abbey, a graduate student at the University of Nebraska at Kearney, went 34-11 this season, placing fifth at the NCAA Division II Championships.

He holds the school record for most career wins with 134 and was only the second Loper to be a four-time All-American wrestler in NCAA Division II.

Abbey, a 2001 graduate of Goodland High, joins Matt Murray of the University of Nebraska and Scott Coleman of Iowa State University as this year's honorees.

Murray, a Colby High graduate, went 138-12 in his high school career winning the state Class 4A championship at 135 pounds as a senior.

He wrestled for coach Steve Lampe at Colby Community College his freshman season.

Abbey

Coleman, a Manhattan native, was a three-time state champion in high school and was the Kansas High School Wrestler of the Year in 1998.

Abbey was one of four wrestlers awarded a $7,500 postgraduate scholarship last month by the NCAA.

Each year, the association awards 170 scholarships, 85 for men and 85 for women, to those who excel in academics as well as athletics.

Abbey, who received his Bachelor of Science degree in December, is continuing his studies in exercise science at Kearney.
