

One fair participant pushed the pedals hard during the pedal pull for family fun night at the Sherman County Fairgrounds on Monday night. Prizes were given to the kids who pulled the furthest.

Family

fun night

A little girl rode a tricycle across the finish line in the tricycle races, the final event at the family fun night.

A young man (above) ran to finish the race in the stick pony contest at family fun night. One family fun participant (right) gave her turtle a few last minute tips before putting it in the ring to compete.

Families out for fun

By Kathryn Burke
The Goodland Star-News

Family fun night at the Sherman County Fairgrounds Monday started with a pedal tractor pull.

Kids ages 4 to 12 pedaled hard to pull a heavy weight along the ground.

Parents cheered them on and snapped pictures. Winners were awarded in each age group.

Next, participants grabbed their stick horses for races.

Some of the younger kids stayed behind while others were coaxed to the finish line by parents.

A few participants were tripped up by the stick horses, but everyone took home some prize money.

The turtle racing was next and parents and kids gathered around a tight circle to see the contest.

The final competition was tricycle racing. Each age group had a turn plus a bonus 12 plus age group.

The fun ended with a water balloon fight in front of the fairgrounds building.

Kids got a chance to not only hit each other but to throw balloons at judges and audience members.