Cheerleaders excel at summer camp

Eight Goodland High School football and basketball cheerleaders went to a National Cheerleaders Association summer camp.

Over 300 cheerleaders from Kansas and surrounding states attended the camp Wednesday-Friday, July 15-17, at Kansas State University in Manhattan.

The Goodland squad received awards and ribbons, and seven members were selected as All-American nominees.

The squad received the Spirit

Stick Award for teams that exemplify team spirit and comradery, the Technical Excellence Award for skills in motions and in the Evaluation Awards, four blue superior ribbons and two red.

Vanessa Crotinger, Emily Linden, Candice Meissinger, Ashley Cebula, Amanda Amthor, Tiffany Wing and Brooke Lennington were chosen for displaying strength in cheer motions, jumps, technique, leadership or attitude.

Taylor McLemore also attended. The girls were accompanied on the trip by their sponsor, Lynette McLean.

The association selects award winners at over 1,100 camps that it administers around the world each summer.

The National Spirit Group, one of the largest private cheer and dance organizations in the country, holds events for over 150,000 cheerleaders and dancers around the world.

Area students help Powercat Tractors team

Two area students were on the Kansas State University Powercat Tractors team that finished second in the eighth annual American Society of Agricultural Engineers International Quarter-Scale Tractor Student Design Competition.

Jace Chipperfield of Goodland and Eric Bussen of Wallace were on the team made up of undergraduates in biological and agricultural engineering and agricultural technology management. Both are in biological and agricultural engineering.

The K-State team is the only one to place in the top three, including four firsts, every year since 1999. The competition began in 1998.

Entries were judged in four areas — quality of design, oral report presentation, written report and ma-neuverability and pulling performance. Up against 26 teams from around the world, the 14-member team took first in two of the four pulling competitions, second in the written report, third in design ergonomics and sixth in oral presentation.
