Moonlight Madness brings out best spooks

This chicken riding cowboy (Blake Drennan, 3) was second place in the 3-6 age group.

A walking candy corn (Josie Hill, 1) was second place in the 0-2 age group.

Frosty the Snow girl (Mikenna Hanavik, 5) was the winner in the 3-6 age group.

Freddie Kruger (Jazzmine Weis, 10) was second in the 7-11 age group.

Sally Nightmare before Christmas (Sydnee Thornburg, 11) was second in the 11-15 age group.

The best pirate of the night (Seth Stramel, 11) was the top winner in the 11-15 age group.

Judging the best Halloween costumes

Shrieks, screams and lots of smoke floated through the basement of Eldorado Western Wear, 1101, as the site for the fourth annual Moonlight Madness costume contest.

Over 50 kids plus parents and grandparents gathered to show off their Halloween finery and let the judges decide the top winners.

The first group of kids was the smallest in age from babies to 2, but there were about 20 in costume. First place went to Madison Albers, 2, who was a brave lion. Second place went to Josie Hill, 1, who had a great Candy Corn costume.

The 3-6 age group went second and there were about 25 in this for the judges to try to get a look at. First place went to Mikenna Hanavik, 5, who was a snow girl in a homemade costume. Second place went to Blake Drennan, 3, who was a cowboy riding a chicken complete with a black eye.

There was a new wrinkle on the old skeleton costume as Makayla Kennedy, 8, came complete with her own closet. Jazzmine Weis, 10, was the other winner in the 7-10 group with her Freddie Kruger costume.

A fancy pirate with a beaded beard was the top winner in the 11-15 group. Seth Stramel, 11, said he had worked up the pirate outfit last year, and had improved on it some this year. Sydnee Thornburg, 11, was the other winner in this group dressed up as Sally from the Nightmare before Christmas.

The Goodland Kiwanis Club provided the prize money for the winners.

A highlight was the clown, Marco Ault,

The clown (Marco Ault of McDonalds), made animals from balloons, and was a highlight of the Moonlight Madness Tuesday evening at Eldorado Western Wear. Ault said he went through three bags of balloons. He was surprised by the number of great homemade costumes.

from McDonalds, who handed out coupons and was kept busy making animals and swords out of balloons. He has been practicing as a clown for about six months, and as the crowd thinned out he showed the kids some magic tricks.

Entering Eldorado Western Wear everyone was given the choice of going down the stairs to the right or down to the left through a special haunted room where the unwary could find themselves being surrounded by a sorceress, a vampire and spider webs.
