

Giant spook visits college haunted house

Lloyd Koel, a diesel technology instructor at the Northwest Kansas Technical College, made an unusually large spook. Koel had some fun with students outside the college's haunted house on Halloween. The haunted house was open Oct. 27, 28, and 31 and the proceeds were donated to Genesis. The students charged $1 or 1 can food to enter. This year they raised over $150 and just over 500 cans of food. The money and food come at the right time of year for Genesis, just in time for the holidays.

Library to give books for national week

Goodland preschoolers will next week get copies of a book with the message that children need to be reminded they are loved "No Matter What" as part of National Children's Book Week.

The Goodland Public Library bought paperback copies of the book "No Matter What" by Debi Gliori with donations from area organizations and is working with area preschool teachers, the Goodland Head Start program and the Goodland developmental kindergarten program to distribute the books.

The state is inaugurating the program "Kansas: One Book, One State" this year during the week with the theme "Kansas Reads to Preschoolers. The purpose of the program is to encourage communities to read together, and its goal is to read to all children under age 5.

Gov. Kathleen Sebelius, honorary chair of the program, selected "No Matter What" for this year's event. Libraries throughout the state will be reading the book to preschool children during the week.

The Goodland library received help from the Goodland Kiwanis Club, Goodland Lions Club, Goodland Knights of Columbus, the Veterans of Foreign Wars ladies auxiliary, Exemplar Chapter Beta Sigma Phi, Kansas Pi Eta Sorority and Bowman's Heating and Air Conditioning to provide copies of the book for area preschoolers.

Children's Book Week is celebrated each year the week before Thanksgiving to make children more aware of what books and materials are available at the library and to encourage children to read.

Many new children's books will be on display at the Goodland library during the week, and children will receive bookmarks. Children can also participate in contests during the week.

Story hour participants will celebrate both Children's Book Week and Thanksgiving.

Family sets up scholarship in memory of farmer

The family of a Sherman County farmer set up a memorial scholarship in his name with the Sherman County Community Foundation.

Eugene L. Hall, a former member of the Goodland and Kanorado school boards, died July 14, 2004, at Hays Medical Center, and his wife, Donna, contributed $5,000 in memorials to the foundation for the scholarship.

An annual $500 award will go to a Goodland High School graduate, beginning this year. Students can pick up applications at the high school counselor's office or on the school's web site at www.usd352-k12.ks.us.

Hall wants the scholarship to go to an "average" student who normally would not get one, said Foundation President Kin Huang. Hall said she has seen countless average students who managed to complete college and succeed in life.

The scholarship is for graduates pursuing an education at a two-year or four-year college. A minimum high school grade point average of 2.5 on a 4.0 scale with community or volunteer service would be helpful. Selection will consider merit and financial need.

The foundation's board will select the recipient, Huang said, and the announcement will be made May 22 at the high school graduation. The winner will be eligible to reapply for the award each year.

Born Sept. 26, 1922, in Kanorado, he attended elementary school in Kanorado, then his family moved to Silt, Colo., and he graduated from Rifle, Colo., High School in 1939.

Hall served in the Army Air Corps from 1942-45 and then returned to Sherman County. He married Donna Dean Livengood in 1947 at the Livengood Homestead, and they had three children.

Hall was a member of the United Methodist Church and the Goodland Elks Lodge. He had served on the boards of the Northwest Kansas Technical College Board, S&T Communications, and the First National Bank.

Kanorado church was dedicated in morning today in history

By Evelyn Ward

Sherman County Historical Society
November 12, 1905: Pretty Little Edifice at Kanorado the Scene of Ceremony — Presiding Elder J.W. Meredith formally dedicated the new Kanorado church. He preached the dedicatory sermon in the morning and the Rev. John Eldridge filled the pulpit in the evening.

Services were also held in the afternoon, conducted by the Rev. L.M. Alexander, who, besides being a preacher, is a stirring singer. He is the resident pastor at Alma.

Including a provisional gift from the church extension of $250, the little church is clear of encumbrance. The cost has been about $1,700, and besides the $100 which had to be raised Sunday, the generous people of Kanorado and vicinity rolled the amount up to $140.

The church is well equipped with interior conveniences and decorations and is one of the prettiest churches in western Kansas.

November 13, 1905: AD — A Happy Home — To have a happy home you should have children. They are great happy home makers. If a weak woman, you can be made strong enough to bear healthy children, with little pain or discomfort to yourself, by taking WINE OF CARDUI — A Tonic For Women — It will ease all your pain: cure falling womb, ovarian trouble, disordered menses, backache, headache, etc., reduce inflammation and make childbirth natural and easy. Try it. At all dealers in medicines, in $1.00 bottles.

November 14, 1905: Jack Nass and Young Chinberg one day this week made 112 solid concrete foundation blocks. W.F. Wheatley, the manufacturer, says the boys are all right.

November 15, 1905: Put Strychnine In It — The Poisonous Drug Produces the 'Brain Vigor,' 'Energy' and 'Vim' Spoken of on the Package — Breakfast foods, which are much advertised, have been barred from some of the biggest hospitals in the country on the ground that they are spiked with strychnine, the most powerful heart stimulant known, put there by the manufacturer to produce the results claimed.

"It would be a crime," says a well known physician, "to feed these foods to the sick. They contain enough strychnine to produce very disastrous results in the case of patients in feeble condition. It is the strychnine that makes people imagine that such brands of breakfast food are building up their systems and giving them new life."

So this is the secret of the patent breakfast food! Strychnine, a deadly poison, is being fed to thousands of innocent purchasers. Perhaps this is the reason the package warns the consumer not to eat more than a certain number of table-spoons.

'Thousand-legged worms' invade homes, do not bite or damage furniture

Again, we are seeing millipedes invading homes. Millipedes, or "thousand-legged worms," are an arthropod relative of insects.

They can be distinguished from centipedes by the number of legs per body segment. Millipedes have four legs per segment, while centipedes have only two. Also, the millipedes' legs are quite short and may not be seen if viewing the millipede from above.

Though usually found in damp locations outside, they can become a problem inside the house and cause homeowners a great deal of concern. Household invasions often are sudden and sporadic.

Millipedes feed primarily on decaying organic material, rarely on living tissue. They do not bite people or damage household furnishings directly, but they will leave a mess and give off an odor if crushed.

Millipedes are worm-like and most often brownish-black in color. The legs ripple as they move.

Millipedes often curl up into a "C" shape like a watch spring if touched. Remember, you may not see the legs unless viewing the millipede from the side. They defend themselves by releasing a disagreeable odor when disturbed.

Millipedes require high moisture to survive and often die in a day or two after entering a house. Dead millipede bodies can then be vacuated up and disposed of. Drying out moist areas inside will help control these pests. Sealing and caulking around openings in the foundation will help keep them out. If this is not enough, spraying cyfluthrin (Home Pest Control Indoor/Outdoor Insect Killer), profoxup (Baygon), or resmethrin in a three-foot band around the outside of the house will help take care of them before they get inside.
