

Grandfather advises boy to feed ‘good wolf’

Imagine if you will, two individuals sitting out on the front porch enjoying a beautiful day and companionship of two generations coming together.

The boy and his grandfather discuss many topics as the shadows change with the passing of time. They talk about how things have changed over the years.

They talk about what it was like when the grandfather was his grandson's age. There is admiration in the little boy's eyes as he ponders the things that his granddaddy is sharing. There is a sparkle in grandpa's eye as he looks proudly at this child so moldable — so impressionable. Suddenly, from within this wise old man come these words that catch his grandson off guard but that must be told because if handled right, they can save his grandson a lot of pain.

The grandfather says, “Son you must know there are two wolves living in my heart, and they are at war with each other. One is vicious and cruel; the other is wise and kind.”

“Grandfather,” said the alarmed grandson, “which one will win?”

this feeding process. Other people's wolves may seem more evident than yours, but none-the-less we all face the battle of sin. Just in case you may feel “better” about yourself than the guy across the street, understand that sin is sin and it is a problem.

Even the Apostle Paul battled the wolf, for he wrote in Romans 7:15, “I do not understand what I do. For what I want to do I do not do, but what I hate I do.”

Have you ever been there? You know the problem with sin is that it will keep you longer than you want to stay, and costs you more than you wanted to pay. It is painful isn't it? So, you want to defeat that wolf? Your hatred toward sin has to be more than paper-thin.

Let's go back to Romans again. Chapter 6:23 tells us that “the wages of sin is death.” If it stopped there, we might as well end this article, but it doesn't. The rest of the verse says, “But, the gift of God is eternal life.” God is concerned about your life, and wants you to have life. Not only now, but for eternity.

How do you deal with that wolf?

Let me wrap this up with this little story. A burglar broke into a house via a window and heard a voice saying, “I see you, and Jesus sees you.”

Startled, he quickly ran off. Thoroughly shaken, he tried to calm himself but decided it was just his imagination and went back. Once again he went through the window, and just as he was entering, he heard the same voice say, “I see you and Jesus sees you.”

Frightened again, he hurried off. The next day, he decided to return. As he entered through the same window, this time he got all of the way into the house, and he looked around just in time to see and hear a parrot say, “I see you and Jesus sees you.”

The burglar was relieved until the parrot looked down at the family's Rottweiler and said, “Sic ‘em, Jesus.”

It has been said, “people won't change until the pain of staying the same is greater than the pain of change.” Jesus' work on Calvary and His resurrection provide the ingredients for powerful change in your life. Get to know Jesus. Not just on Sundays, but every day. He will change you and empower you to be victorious over sin. So, like that parrot, why don't you say to the sin in your life — “Sic ‘em Jesus.”

Mentors can be help to parents and role models children deserve

Like most Kansans, I had the good fortune to be born to wonderful parents. But through no fault of their own, some children don't have caring adult role models.

All Kansas children deserve someone they can look up to, and all Kansas parents deserve help pushing back the threats from popular culture so they can instill in their children the values that lead to a good life.

That's where mentors come in.

Former Kansas State football coach Bill Snyder has agreed to continue his career of mentoring young Kansans by leading Kansas Mentors, a statewide effort to promote mentoring and to encourage more adults to become caring role models for Kansas children.

This week, Coach Snyder and I launched the Kansas Mentors Web site — www.ksmentors.ks.gov — where Kansans can go to find a mentoring program in their area.

There are dozens of great mentoring efforts already underway in Kansas communities, and we want to help connect Kansas children and adults with them.

If your mentoring program isn't listed, please let us know so we can add you to our list of mentoring efforts around Kansas. We also hope to help communities without a mentoring program to start one.

Mentoring really can change lives. Research shows children and young adults who have mentors do better in school, are less likely to use drugs and alcohol and are less likely to get into fights.

We invest in our children's schools and get involved in their lives because we care about our children and want them to reach their God-given potential. I hope you'll join Coach Snyder and me in creating a brighter future for all Kansas children by being a part of Kansas Mentors.

Woman, visitors celebrate birthdays

Judy and Ivar Samuelson from LaSalle, Colo., were down for the weekend of March 4 to visit Marge Westover. They all went to St.

Francis to celebrate Kyle and Laura Samuelson's birthdays. They are Marge's great-granddaughters.

Ralph Foster is in the hospital. We wish him a rapid recovery.

We were sorry to hear of the death of Jim Baldwin's father. Our sympathy is with the family.

Nadine (Selby) Struckhoff had triple bypass surgery recently.

Marge Westover fell on Wednesday of last week and has been slow in recovering. Her daughter Twila is staying with her. We miss her at the Senior Center.

Frances Jones returned home from visiting her daughter Anita in Wetmore. During her visit, they went to Topeka for a surprise 60th birthday party for her daughter Tamara. All of the family, with the exception of one, were there. Frances said they had a really good time.

The Brewster Bulldogs placed third at the state basketball tournament. The community is very proud of their effort. Go Dawgs.
