Honesty is best

DEAR ABBY: I am a widow with four children. My mother passed away in March 2004, and 11 months later I found my husband dead in our bathroom after he had shot himself in the head. Needless to say, my world has turned upside down. I think I am managing pretty well, and I thank God every day for my children. I don't know what I'd do without them. However, I miss my husband more and more every day.

I do not know how I am going to handle all this. I don't know what I will tell my 3- and 4-year-olds one day when they ask me how their daddy died. I also can't picture myself loving another man, or being loved by one.

Am I destined to be a lonely widow? How can I tell my children the truth without destroying their lives? – MOURNING IN ARI-ZONA

DEAR MOURNING: I hope you realize that all of the emotions you are experiencing right now are NOR-MAL. You have suffered two tremendous losses in a short period of time, so it's not surprising that you are feeling the loss deeply.

When your children are old enough to begin asking questions about their father, explain to them that although their daddy loved them very much, he was sick and he suf-

DEAR ABBY: I am having a problem with a fellow classmate. He sits in front of me, and every day during class he turns around and asks me to marry him. Of course I say no, but he won't stop it, and it's starting to creep me out. One day he asked me why, and I told him because I have a boyfriend (which is true). Now he says he wants to hurt him!

I have tried asking him nicely not to talk to me anymore, but he still does, and he's in more than one class with me, so a seat change won't do much good. I'm not sure exactly what to say to him. Could you help me out? - CREEPED OUT IN WINTER SPRINGS, FLA.

DEAR CREEPED OUT: The next time Romeo proposes, tell him that if he doesn't knock it off, you will tell your teacher and the principal that he's harassing you and making threats against your boyfriend. If that doesn't cool his ardor, follow through. He may deserve an A for effort, but he deserves an Fin English if he can't comprehend what "no" means.
