Farmers under stress should talk, talk, talk

IGH

What causes stress for farmers and farm families? Do any of these sound familiar – paperwork, farm loans, old equipment, extreme weather conditions, fatigue, commodity they can better help each other find prices, crop disease, hired help, lack of family time?

Stress, tensions and problems are not something that independent, self-reliant people such as farmers want to say much about. However, talking is one effective way of dealing with stress.

Talking with someone about a worrisome topic helps put the problem into perspective, makes it seem not quite so large and provides the opportunity to look at various options.

Openly discussing problems with others who are supportive and good listeners can be helpful and healthy. Constructively venting problems, concerns and fears can help a person move from being frustrated and grouchy to working on solutions.

Farm couples and family members who have the ability to communicate easily with each other will be able to handle stress better. It is often difficult for men, in particular, to express their worries openly because of the belief they will be viewed as weak.

solutions, even make the job easier. It's also important to seek out advice from others in the community who are willing and able to help. Friends, extended family. church members and others can at least provide emotional support. They can also assist with reducing the confusion and uncertainty that complicates feelings of stress.

Unresolved stress can lead to both medical and emotional problems, such as heart disease and depression. It may be necessary for some individuals, couples or family members to seek further help from a family physician, clergy or mental health professional.

Nursing students graduated from Boothroy hospital

Among area graduations in the spring 75 years ago was the commencement of nursing students from Boothroy Memorial Hospital in Goodland on June 2, 1931. NURSES GRADUATE Three from Boothroy Receive Diplomas

Three young women from the Boothroy Memorial Hospital received their diplomas of graduation at the commencement exercises held last evening at the Methodist church. Those in the class were Miss Neva Hempill, Miss Pauline Murray and Miss Ruth Camp.

Reverend Dudley gave an inspiring talk emphasizing, especially, the high calling of the nursing profession and the nobility of the life of a nurse. The processional march was played on the organ by Mrs. Jesse I. Teeters, and the nursing staff of the hospital attended the exercises in body, dressed in uniform, and accompanied the class to the front of the church. A trumpet solo was played by Oliver Long, accompanied by Miss Georgie Hill, and a male quartet composed of Clarence Grant, Wilbur White, Donald Light and Richard McNeill sang a selection. Mrs. John Blain, accompanied by "The rumble seat is an emissary of Satan on a college campus," said Geo. O. Foster, registrar of the University of Kansas, in the first of a series of radio talks of interest to high school seniors and their parents over the university's station KFKU.

Mr. Foster's purpose in making these talks is to help parents prepare their children for college. He says that one grave error parents make is over-supplying boys and girls with money and automobiles. Neither is necessary or conducive to study he says.

student of the week

Name: Lauren Abernathy Parents: Paul and Gina Abernathy

Grade: Sophomore Age: 16

We've nominated this student because: of her outstanding performance in class and in the Goodland High School DECA Chapter. Lauren took second place in the Entrepreneurship Promotion Project at state competition and top twenty one in the Entrepreneurship Promotion Project at international competition.

Student Comment: My favorite subject in school is either English or History. The aspect of school life I like the best is seeing my friends and all the interesting conversations we have had in the library. After graduation, I will always remember the band trips and International DECA trips. (Especially 2005) Activities involved in at school: DECA, football statistician and band.

My choice of movies, books, and games: I enjoy the movies - Schindler's List, Where the Heart Is and Love Actually. I listen to any music and read any book. I also enjoy card games like poker or crazy 8's.

After I leave Goodland High School I intend to: attend a community college for 2 years and then transfer to a 4-year university, in which I will attain a degree in either Sports and Entertainment Management or Public relations.

And 10 years from now, I think I'll be: living life to the fullest and making lots of money in a career that I love.

Favorite Quote: "Don't look back! Something might be gaining on you!"
