The accountant said the co-op had increased its assets with the purchase of fertilizer plants in Atwood and Bird City and Krien Farm Supply in Bird City.

The business played catch up with capital improvements, which that had not been done for two or three years during the worst of the drought, Daughhetee said.

He said this was the first year since the drought started that every department had been profitable. Cowan said that drought had affected the business for the last seven years, and the cooperative lost money in 2003.

Cowan said they took in a large corn crop of 7,150,000 bushels last fall, with about 3 million bushels stored on the ground. This year, he said, the cooperative made a profit of $1,259,470.

The management team spent several months on a proposed merger with the St. Francis Mercantile Equity Exchange in St. Francis. The merger passed a vote of the members in Goodland but missed passing in St. Francis by 10 votes, he said.

Atwood, the Farmer's Co-operative Association, voted on merging with Frontier on Thursday, and that one apparently will go through. The merger passed by 100 percent vote in Atwood, Linin said. The deal does not require a vote in Goodland, he said, because the cooperative is only about a $4 million operation.

Vice Chairman Tim Livengood thanked Theron Culwell for serving nine years on the board.

John Deeds, a board member and nominating committee chair, listed the nominees for two board seats, Alan Townsend, Gordon Hawkins and Lee Ihrig.

He invited them to introduce themselves. Deeds said Townsend

Hawkins said he would do the best job he could for the company.

The members elected Hawkins and Townsend fill the two empty seats on the board. Ihrig will stay on as an associate.

Four door prizes were given away, two $50 gift certificates and the two flower arrangements.

"We are looking at a not-verygood wheat crop and we hope the fall crops will carry us through," Cowan told the members.

Four file for open seat on county commission

By Pat Schiefen

The Goodland Star-News the ballot for Sherman County commissioner from District 1, all Republicans.

The deadline to file for Republican and Democratic candidates was noon Monday.

Chuck Thomas, an Edson farmer, holds the seat now. He will face three challengers, including an engineer who's firm was bypassed by commissioners when they were deciding who would design county roads in part of Ward 4 south of Sixth Street, a joint city-county project.

Mary Ann Snethen, deputy county clerk, said all four candidates filed just before the deadline Monday.

Larry Enfield, a farmer, and Curtis Hurd, a retired contractor and former city commissioner, filed Monday. Also filing was Darin for election in the 13 townships in Neufeld, an engineer for Evans, There will be four candidates on Bierly, Hutchinson and Associates. All are Republicans.

Asked why he was running, Hurd said, "It's a dirty job but somebody has got to do it. I was on the City Commission for four years and enjoyed it. I feel we need some city representation. I am very interested in continuing the city-county cooperation."

Commissioner District 1 represents all of Goodland Ward 3, the and Iowa, Itasca, Union and Washington townships.

Only those registered in the district can vote in the race, said County Clerk Janet Rumple. The position will be the only county office on the ballot this year.

Township clerk positions are up

Sherman County – Grant, Iowa, Itasca, Lincoln, Llanos, Logan, McPherson, Shermanville, Smoky, Stateline, Union, Voltaire and Washington.

Randy Daise has filed for Grant Township Clerk. Shirley Anderson has filed in McPherson Township and Lou Taylor in Stateline.

Democrats and Republicans will be electing a precinct committeeman and committeewoman from each of the four city wards and each of the townships. These people make up the central committee for each party, which select candidates to fill vacant offices and decide party affairs.

Snethen said there have been some more candidates file for the Republican committee positions.

Rain helps fall crops to get better start inch of rain over the weekend, with some parts of the county getting even more.

While the moisture comes too late for most of the wheat crop, experts said, it may help some green fields increase their yield a little. Growing fall crops will get a boost.

At the Goodland Airport, the National Weather Service recorded .07 of an inch of rain on Saturday and .41 of an inch on Sunday.

The moisture was appreciated, and Jeremy Martin, a forecaster at the weather station, said there might be more.

"There is a chance of thunderstorms this afternoon," he said Monday, "with a better chance overnight."

Jeanne Falk, area crop produc-

Goodland reported nearly a half tion and economics specialist for Sherman, Cheyenne and Wallace counties with Kansas State University Research and Extension, said the rain won't do much for the wheat.

> "It will help to finish out the green fill," she said.

> The rain will help newly planted corn, especially on dry land, she said.

> "It will help producers help keep up with their irrigation," she added. "It's important to keep corn watered in its growing stage."

> Milo, feed and beans have been pretty much planted, Falk said. The rain will help them to get a good start.

> Most of the sunflowers have been planted and the rain will help to get them up, too, she said.
