

Fall Festival downtown on Saturday

Taking advantage of the cold weather, the vendor who had the big slide for the kids (top right) sold coffee and cocoa (above) to keep the parents warm while the kids bounced and slid.

The sergeant (left) manning the Kansas National Guard youth shooting truck was prepared for the cold with his winter gear. It was a tough day to sell cold drinks, and one young salesperson (above) brought a blanket to keep her warm.

The Group from Burlington sang gospel music and were the first group to perform Saturday after the scuffy dog contest.
