ber 1931, Sherman County crowned a new corn husking champion. Nearly 1,500 people watched the drama unfold at the Ray Hartzler farm northwest of Goodland. According to the front page account in The Goodland News-Republic, Emil Peter won by "an ear!"

EMIL PETER NEW COUNTY CORN HUSKING CHAMPION

Beat Lawrence House And Goes to State

Sherman County crowned a new corn husking champion yesterday when the annual county contest was held on the Ray Hartzler farm 16 miles was declared the winner, with 16.47 bushels after all deductions were made, for his 80 minutes of work.

Lawrence House, county champion last year, placed second, a fraction of a bushel behind Peter. His total was 16.08 bushels. Lloyd Writesman of Kanorado was third with 14.71 bushels. Other participants were G.L

Rock, Goodland, 11.65; Morris Hahn, Goodland, 11.52; Herman Wagner, Ruleton, 11.04; Ray Sponsel, Goodland, 9.02; and F.M. Ford, Brewster, 7.62. House had a greater amount of corn in the wagon and a smaller amount left in the field that was picked up by the gleaners, but his husks and ribbons left on the corn caused heavy deductions and cost him his title.

The defending champion was a mighty good sportsman, and as soon as the results were announced telling that he had been dethroned by a newcomer, he was first to grasp the new champion by the hand and congratulate him on his victory. This was the first husking contest Mr. Peter ever engaged in.

The new champion is a modest young fellow, 23 years old, married, and a recent addition to this county, having moved to the north part of Sherman from Cheyenne County last spring.

Looked upon as pretty much of a "dark horse" when the contest opened, since he had not participated in such an event previously, he came through in great style.

The day was almost ideal, and a large crowd estimated from 1,200 to 1,500 people gathered at the derby. Everything went off smoothly. It was the most neatly conducted and generally successful contest ever held in this part of the country, not excluding last year's state and national
