School plans crisis

Fake explosion to help training

The Oberlin School District will be working with emergency crews closely on Monday, April 28, when a mock explosion in the chemistry lab at Decatur Community High School will put the crisis plan into

Superintendent Kelly Glodt, who is serving as the public information officer, said the groups are working together to put on a mock crisis to work on the crisis plan and get train-

Although the group wants the drill to be as lifelike as possible, he said he wants people in town to know what is going on so 500 parents don't drive to the school trying to figure out if their kids are safe.

Mr. Glodt said the call will be made over the police radio just like a normal call. He said he knows many people have scanners in their homes, so the group wants the community to know ahead of time what is happening.

The whole idea started with the Decatur County Farm Bureau, and then other agencies got involved. What it will be is an explosion in the chemistry lab and the group will have to do decontamination. Pretend sulfuric acid will be spilled on some of the students, he said. Others may have glass cuts or other emergencies.

Some students will have to be taken to the hospital, while others will have to be sprayed down to remove the acid off their bodies.

Mr. Glodt said the school will be sending home permission slips for those students in the mock explosion. So far, he thinks there are about

Police seek arrest in domestic

A domestic dispute has led to city officers seeking an arrest warrant for a 28-year-old Öberlin man.

Police Chief Wade Lockhart said he was called to a house in the 200 block of South York Avenue a little after 9 a.m. March, 25 but there wasn't enough information to arrest

He said officers didn't get to talk to one of the men in the house at the time. Chief Lockhart said a little investigation turned up three active warrants for him out of Nebraska.

Officers tried to arrest the man about 10 p.m. that night, but before they had a chance, he took off out the back door and ran east.

While running, the chief said, he dropped some marijuana from his

The man made it back to the house, and he and another man left in a car, of which the woman of the house had given them the keys. The vehicle was reported stolen after it wasn't returned by Saturday, five days later. It was picked up last Monday in North Platte, Neb.

Finishing touches put on new track

VOLUNTEERS have been working at the Oberlin Speedway the last couple weeks to get it ready for opening day Saturday. The men hung the rest of the debris fence with the help of some farm machinery. The first race is scheduled to start at 4 p.m. Saturday. The gates to the pit and the grandstands will open two hours before start time. Tickets will be sold at the gate. People 12 years and older are $8, age 6 to 11 are $4 and 5 and under are free. The pit fee for rac-- Herald staff photos by Kimberly Brandt

Group will sell 50 trees

The Oberlin Tree Committee plans to get 50 trees this week to sell at cost to residents in the city.

Mayor Gary Walter, who sits on the committee, said the group met before the City Council meeting Thursday night, but didn't have a quorum. At a recent meeting, the group had decided to order 50 trees from Common Scents in McCook.

The committee ordered 20 greenspire linden, 15 burr oak and 15 prairiefire crab apple. Each tree will cost around $100, said Mayor Walter.

With the water project going on, several trees along Cass Avenue have X's on them and will be removed in the next few weeks, he said. It would be nice to see some of those replaced. Mayor Walter said he would like to see some of the trees planted along street rights of way.

Mayor Walter said the committee has applications in the county extension office with Agent Byron Hale. Only one tree will be allowed per business or home.

The location where someone wants to plant a tree has to be approved by Rocky Diederich of the city crew to be sure it will not cause problems in the future.

Although a young tree might be ideal for some spots now, said Mayor Walter, when it grows to a mature height it might not be a good Threes will be stored at the city
